COLLAPSES WHEN TRYING TO TELL SHE'LL FIGHT TO KEEP HER HUBBY

Will Call On Former Mate And Half Of New York Society

CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHY HER MAN DESERTED HER

Declares She Never Drank Anything Stronger Than Wine

By Relman Morin

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Nan Pierson Brooks Macy Brill, beautiful New York heiress, collapsed in a San Francisco hotel today, and reviving, vowed she would "bring my ex-husband and half of New York society" to fight an annulment suit brought by her second husband, William Brill, Jr., to Los Angeles.

She eloped March 29 to Yuma with Brill, who is also wealthy and socially prominent.

Their honeymoon lasted two days, then he disappeared, and she was informed Friday he had filed suit for annulment, charging they were intoxicated when the ceremony was performed, and that she had misrepresented her previous marital status.

Hysterical, she wheeled one of his large roadsters out of the four-car garage back of his home and sped 400 miles to San Francisco. She had no money or luggage.

Today, shortly after she arose, Mrs. Brill had another attack of hysteria. She burst into tears when she attempted to give a newspaper interview.

SENATOR BYRD CONDEMNS RAMPANT LAWLESSNESS

Asserts Firm And Courageous Enforcement Must Be Restored

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—Administration leaders predicted today there would be "many hours" of savage debate before the senate reaches a vote next week on condemning sit-down strikes.

They conceded there was little doubt the senate finally would adopt a blunt "declaration of policy" against sit-down tactics, but both Democratic and Republican ranks were badly split over what form the statement should take.

Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, in a statement, urged congress to declare "without delay or equivocation" that "sit-down strikes and lawlessness in organized or mass form should not be tolerated.

"Civilized government depends upon obedience to constituted authority," he asserted.

"With lawlessness rampant through the land, the influence of every official who has taken an oath to support and defend the constitution and uphold the law should be used in condemnation of such admitted lawlessness.

"Law and order will be restored only by firm and courageous enforcement of the law."

Senators Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, who touched off the controversy by trying to write a denunciation of sit-downs into the Guffey-Vinson coal bill, said he would fight every effort to side-track his amendment.

Administration chiefs remained hopeful, however, that the coal regulation and sit-down issues could be considered separately.

Every Ounce Of Available Manpower Used Against Surprise Attack

FIGHTING HOT ON BOTH MOUNTAINS AND COAST

Basque Armies Withstand Withering Assault Upon Liqueitio

WITH MILITARY OBSERVERS ON THE BILBAO FRONT, NORTHERN SPAIN, April 3.—(AP)—By the sea and in the All mountains of the Basque lands, a Basque government army struggled tonight to hold General Francisco Franco's insurgent armies from their autonomous republican capital, Bilbao.

It was a surprise attack and a double one which they fought to suppress with every ounce of available manpower. In their narrow strip along the Bay of Biscay, with insurgent country on the east and west and to the south, the Basques knew the fall of their northern stronghold would be a telling blow to the cause they support—the Madrid-Valencia government of Spain.

This region is rich in natural resources, and besides, it has an access to the sea and the help the sea can bring.

The fighting was hot both on the seacoast, some 21 miles east of Bilbao, and in the Cantarbian mountains which rim the Basque capital on the south and east.

Both sides made halting progress at separate points. But there seemed tonight to have no important gain of ground for either.

On the sea, government defenders withstood a withering assault on

Grandma's Traits Subject Studied By Mental Hygienists

Mystery Of The Photos And The Morning Porridge

A SERIES of lectures on the psychological problems of men and women more than 65 years of age is being sponsored by the New York City committee on mental hygiene of the States Charities association.

We are informed in the public prints that among the questions to be considered is this:

"Why does grandpa collect odds and ends of useless things?"

Also:

"Why does grandma keep the bureau drawers cluttered up with old photographs which no one, not even she, ever looks at?"

Likewise:

"Why must they (grandpa and grandma) have porridge when all the rest of the family prefers modern breakfast food?"

And still another:

WE HASTEN to assure the reader that the names of the ladies and gentlemen associated with the committee preclude the possibility of the questions being in the nature of persiflage.

They are serious minded ladies and gentlemen. If you asked them, "How far is up?" the chances are they would give the question their ear consideration. And they might come out with the right answer, at that.

They are interested in what they term the psychological changes in the process of growing old, though up to this time we did not know there was anything psychological about it. We

Public Welfare Commissioner Says More Money Must Be Raised

BATON ROUGE, La., April 3.—(AP)—A. R. Johnson, state commissioner, of public welfare, announced today that he had asked members of the legislature to petition Governor Richard Leche to call a special session of the legislature "immediately—to provide additional relief funds."

"More than 50,000 people in this state have applied for assistance; we expect 20,000 more; we have funds in sight to care for less than half this number," Johnson declared in a letter to legislators.

"We cannot let these citizens starve," he said. "We must promote the public welfare. We cannot go back on our promise to the people who have the right to live as much as we have. I repeat, we have simply got to raise enough money to make sure that social security does not fail in Louisiana."

Johnson said proceeds from the "luxury" tax, which supports the

Mr. Walker placed the money where he was instructed to in the letters and the youth was arrested by Sheriff A. Sholars of Winnfield Friday night as he went to get the money, according to the sheriff.

The opening services this morning and again at 7:30 p.m., are expected to attract capacity houses, it being predicted that 3,000 or more people will attend, coming from all parts of north Louisiana and even from Mis-

THREE MURDERS STILL UNSOLVED

Detectives Admit Defeat In Trying To Learn Slayer's Identity

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—The Easter morning murders on Beekman hill, after one sensational week in the headlines, headed tonight toward a place in New York's book of unsolved crimes—alongside the butterfly killings of Dot King and Louise Lawson, the strangling of Vivian Gordon, and the shooting of the gambler, Arnold Rothstein.

As quietly as distant relatives claimed from a slab in Bellevue morgue, and buried in Queens, the body of Frank Byrnes, "forgotten man" in the triple killing of glamorous "Ronnie" Gedeon, her mother, and the little English waiter who roomed with them, so did fifty detectives sigh, tacitly admit defeat, and start to close the book.

"We're at an absolute dead end," said Lieutenant Walter Harding.

"We're not one bit closer to solving this crime than we were when we first saw the bodies," Harding admitted. "And we haven't a thing to go on."

So it seemed entirely possible the mystery, one of the most baffling ever to confront the police, might rest itself in the unnamed grave that

SECURITY OFFICE MANAGER SELECTED

Notice of the appointment of P. L. Dark, of Winnsboro, as manager of the northeast Louisiana office of the social secuity board, was made in Washington, D. C., Saturday.

Monroe was named some weeks ago as one of the cities that will maintain an office of the security board. Offices have been engaged in the Ouachita National Bank building but they have not been opened, awaiting upon further governmental action.

Mr. Dark, who is said to have served as postmaster at Ferriday in the past, will, it is presumed, open up the local office in the near future.

Similar offices will be maintained in Shreveport, Alexandria and other cities of the state.

LEAKING VESSEL NEEDS AID BADLY

British Steamer, However, Unable To Respond To Distress Calls

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Severely battered by a mid-Atlantic gale, the British steamer Zealandic wirelessed tonight that heavy seas prevented it from proceeding further in answer to repeated distress calls of the stricken German freighter Borkum.

The Borkum was reported crippled and leaking about a thousand miles east of New York.

"Our steering house damaged by heavy seas. Cannot do anything for S. S. Borkum until weather moderates," the Zealandic wirelessed at 8:18 p.m., eastern standard time.

Hidden by blinding squalls that cut visibility to a bare half-mile, the helpless vessel drifted with the waves in the mid-Atlantic and waited for help.

From early morning to mid-afternoon her call for mercy kept sounding.

Her steering gear was gone, she said; she was taking much water at her plates, and she needed doctors badly.

The SOS gave the Borkum's position as latitude 40.02 N. and longitude 35.21 W., which would place the boat about 1,000 miles east of New York. She sailed from Newport, England, on March 25, bound for Havana, Cuba, and Mexican and Texas ports.

Four boats—the German steamship Ehrenfels, the French Colombie, the British Tamaroa and the Zealandic—started toward the Borkum. Then the Tamaroa dropped out.

Lloyd's register lists the Borkum, which formerly was called Ingram, as of 3,670 gross tons. She is 369 feet long, with a 50-foot beam. Her home port is Bremen, Germany, and she is owned by Norddeutscher Lloyd.

FALL OF CAPITAL

Liqueitio, 21 miles east and slightly north of Bilbao.

On the south, in the mist-shrouded mountains, a daring band of government Basques scaled a 4,600-foot mountain peak, La Cruz, a natural barrier between the insurgents and Durango.

Some insurgent war materials on the mountain peak fell into government hands. The stiff battle there left insurgent dead strewn in the lofty crevices.

On the other salients in the mountains, however, the insurgents edged ahead. Folk in the mountain village of Ochandiano, some ten miles south and east of Durango, evacuated before them. The Basque army, said insurgent commanders, was being badly riddled, despite reinforcements.

Insurgent seapower battered the government towns on the coast, trying to clear the way for Franco's soldiers. The battleship Espana, the cruiser Valasco and heavily armed trawlers poured shells into the string of picturesque government settlements in the Liqueitio area.

Government pilots bombed the Espana yesterday and reported one hit.

Unconfirmed reports said the Spanish government freighter Ana Maria, flying the Union Jack and carrying 650 tons of arms and food for Santander, was stopped by insurgent trawlers 45 miles south of Cape Finistere and forced to put into insurgent Ferrol.

At Vitoria, on Bilbao's south, Franco's officers assembled 100 bombing planes and as many pursuit ships for an ambitious offensive against the Basque lines. The Basques, themselves, had but a score of planes.

A general Basque mobilization order rushed thousands of defenders into government ranks, already amounting to 15,000 or 20,000 well-equipped men. Refugees from mountain villages thronged into Bilbao—some reports said there were 90,000 of them, creating a serious problem for Juan Aguirre's Basque government.

Reports of dissension both amongst the civil population of Bilbao and in the ranks of Franco's northern armies were heard.

With 800 casualties reported in a Wednesday insurgent air raid on Durango, the Basques charged the insurgents now were accusing government supporters of setting fire to churches during the attack. Many of the killed and wounded were in churches, crowded for morning mass.

Thirty insurgent planes were driven off from Bilbao yesterday, after a machine gun attack on Durango. At the time of the latter raid, a British popular front committee was in the town, but none was hurt.

On the western end of the Basque country, the government resumed its months' long siege of Oviedo with big guns and infantrymen. To the southeast of Bilbao, insurgents contended they had shaken government troops out of positions 30 miles north of Burgos, erstwhile insurgent capitol.

Nonetheless, with our usual helpful spirit, we have been canvassing for information that might assist the committee in its consideration of the questions set forth. We have been making inquiry among men and women of our acquaintance of more than 65 years of age, as to why they do thus and so, and we may be able to save the committee a lot of trouble.

We have discovered why grandma and grandpa must have porridge when all the rest of the family prefers breakfast food. It is because grandma and grandpa like porridge.

A very nice grandma enlightened us on this point. She did not presume to say that her reason for the bureau drawer loaded with unlooked at photographs covers all the grandmas in the world, but she rather implied that she will take a little 6 to 5 that it comes close. She is a right sporting grandma.

The photographs in her bureau drawer are the photographs of her children, and grandchildren, in varying stages of their growth. She does not throw them away, or burn them, because she does not wish to offend the subjects. Besides, she thinks it is bad luck to destroy a photograph.

BUT THIS VERY NICE grandma finally admitted to us that among her collection of old photographs, there is one that she takes out once in a while and ponders, though no other human eye ever is permitted to gaze upon it.

It is a photograph of a young fellow in the khaki uniform and turned up hat of Mr. Teddy Roosevelt's rough riders. Grandma wonders, as she ponders this photograph, if she did not err in passing up Harley's last offer of marriage. He did not like children.

WE ASKED several grandpas why they collect odds and ends of useless things, and in all but one case received the same answer:

"What useless things?"

That stumped us. The committee has not specified.

The exception said:

"I don't know why. I have been collecting odds and ends of useless things so long that I guess it is now an unbreakable habit. It runs through my family, too.

"I am the owner of a large collection of useless promissory notes from my son-in-law, he is useless himself. He has a wonderful collection of useless stock. My daughter, his wife, has a tremendous collection of useless friends.

"My grandson has lately been collecting useless habits. My granddaughter is marrying a useless foreign fellow. She is useless, too. Maybe the committee would like to interview me."

WE DID NOT go very far with the question, obviously raised by the younger generation with reference to grandma and grandpa, that is to be considered by the committee:

"Could we move out of this increasingly shabby neighborhood without seriously upsetting them?"

Of the six sets of grandpas and grandmas we polled, five held us up for interminable periods explaining that they positively would not be upset if the children and grandchildren would leave them there, and promise not to come back.

The sixth set tried to induce us to go to a police station with them and help them bring about the removal of the children and grandchildren immediately.

These elders have no respect for their youngers.

Later she saw reporters for a few minutes.

"You know as much about it as I do," she said. "I don't know why Bill disappeared after we came back from Arizona.

"When I saw him in the garage yesterday, he took me in his arms and told me he loved me and was coming to me. He didn't say why he left me.

"Then, 10 minutes later, one of the reporters told me he was asking for an annulment."

Her eyes filled with tears again, and she moaned:

"He can't do that to me.

"I never in my life have taken a drink of anything stronger than wine. My former husband, George Macy, can tell them so. And he would, too. And so would all my friends.

"I love Bill and I'm not going to let his mother or anyone take him away from me. I'm going to get George Macy and half of New York society to come here and testify to my character.

"I don't know what they think I am. I married Bill, legally. We were stone sober and there will be four witnesses for that. His mother and Bill and I discussed it all for two weeks before the ceremony.

"Then we had two heavenly days and nights together before he left me. I'm a wife in more than name only and I'm going to keep my husband."

She said the only accusation her husband's mother had hurled at her, during a short scene together yesterday, was that she had used her influence to "have the story of our marriage published in Los Angeles."

She left today for some unknown destination near San Francisco, and said she intended to return to fight the suit.

The heiress, when she divorced George Henry Macy at Reno, sued his mother, Mrs. Martha Law Macy Kerr, and his stepfather, Alan H. Kerr, for alienation of affections, asking $150,000. It was later announced the divorce contained a settlement of $100,000.

Gipsy Smith arrived in Monroe Saturday and established headquarters while here at Hotel Frances.

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, pastor of the church, who has been ill and in a local hospital, was removed home Saturday and will endeavor to be in his pulpit this morning to act as host to the distinguished guest-preacher.

Church members and congregations from all organizations in Monroe and West Monroe are asked to attend all services possible to hear this distinguished speaker.

Gipsy Smith is well known as a type of evangelist who does not invade a community to rant and roar. He does not come to denounce public officials or to preach against the "sins of society." He is not coming to stir up strife nor to ask for a financial guarantee of any sort. He does not indulge in lurid discourses against drinking, gambling and card playing. He takes for granted that true Christians deport themselves aright.

A simple, sane, rational, reasoning, loving religion is the brand that he offers. In this line of work he excels and in this can be attributed much of his outstanding success.

NEW WOOD FOR SPLINTS

TUCSON, Ariz.—(AP)—Surgical splints will be made from flowering stalks of sotol plants of the Arizona desert, say range ecologists at the University of Arizona. The sotol was selected for its light, firm wood.

WEARS CORONET

The coronation has created a problem for London hairdressers that American coiffeurs won't have to face—designing hair dress for the peeresses who will wear coronets at the ceremony. If any of the noble ladies are attractively blonde, they'll no doubt want to look as pretty as the model above.

TWINE MADE FROM WEED

VINITA, Okla.—(AP)—A weed, as yet unclassified, found growing on the farm of B. D. Pennington of Centralia, was found to produce a fibrous string much stronger than ordinary cord. Pennington sent samples to McAlester penitentiary, where a binder twine plant is located, and if it is proven advisable he plans to plant several acres on his farm next year and sell the plants to manufacturing concerns.

state social security program, were falling far short of expectations.

"Luxury" tax returns have dropped steadily from a high of $394,237 in December to $241,227 in February, he said, with March returns expected not to reach $250,000.

Present expenditures total $650,000 monthly, Johnson said, and the welfare department is receiving approximately only $550,000, forty-two per cent of which is supplied by the federal government.

"I have to get more money as quick as I can get it," Johnson added, "or our office will have to close up."

In his letter to the legislators, Johnson said:

"We are paying children $7.33 per month and we are paying the old people $12.00 per month, which is not much more than a mere pittance. • • •

"We must not permit people who cannot work, and who have no relatives able to support them, to suffer misery and outright starvation for the lack of a few million dollars. You see business improving, employment increasing, incomes going up; and we see, and I especially, because of my position, misery and sickness and hunger on every side."

CO-EDS MORE SOCIABLE

CHICAGO, Ill. — (AP) — Co-eds were found to be nine per cent more sociable than male students in a survey made by DePaul university. Sixty-two per cent of the boys go directly home after classes while only 36 per cent of the girls do so. Fifty-three per cent of the boys work outside of the college compared to 36 per cent of the girls. The average weekly allowance to the boys is $3.50, for the girls, $4.

In 7,001 British road accidents, 7,202 deaths resulted. Pedestrians were "the sole or contributory cause" in 50 per cent of the cases.

CHOUDRANT TEST DERRICK BUILT

Men Who Brought In Claiborne Field Drilling Wildcatter

Derrick has been built and a heavy rig will be moved this week for a wildcat test for oil and gas on a 10,000 acre block south of Choudrant which has been taken over by E. T. Oakes and H. D. Easton, operators who recently opened up a new oil field near Lisbon in Claiborne parish.

The location for the new test is on the George T. Shaw-Caldwell Land and Timber company block, and the contract calls for a 6,000 foot hole. The test is in section 30-18-1, and the operators are said to have based their location on favorable results of geophysical work done in that area.

A large portion of the Oakes-Easton block lies in Jackson parish, the scene of two deep tests drilled during the latter part of 1935. The wells were drilled by the American Liberty Oil company, of Dallas, Tex., and were reported to have cored an oil sand at approximately 5,300 feet in the Glen Rose series. A well was also drilled to the northwest of the block by the Arkansas Louisiana Gas company, but the test was abandoned at approximately 4,600 feet after encountering salt water. In view of recent developments in wells drilled to the Travis Peak series in northeast Louisiana during the past 18 months, it is expected that this company will drill another well on its block in the near future.

A block of 6,000 acres northwest of Ruston is also being assembled in township 19 north, range 4 west, and drilling operations are expected to commence within 60 days.

CLOTHING FIRM TO NOTE ANNIVERSARY

The clothing firm of Hart, Schaffner and Marx will observe the fiftieth anniversary of the firm's founding with a two-day program today and Monday to be held at Chicago, where the company has its headquarters.

Leading figures in the clothing industry and merchandising field will take part in the program. There will be talks on current problems of merchandising, luncheons and dinners, a style show of the fiftieth anniversary line of clothing and a theater party.

Bruce Barton, widely known author and chairman of the Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn advertising agency, will head the list of speakers at the dinner on the first day. Mark Cresap, chairman of the board and president of Hart, Schaffner and Marx, will preside.

Abraham Hart, vice-president and secretary, will review the half century of history of the firm, which includes such outstanding achievements as being the first company in the apparel industry to advertise nationally, the first large clothing firm to introduce collective bargaining with its employes, the first large clothing firm to abolish work in the home, the first to adopt the "all wool" policy and the first to manufacture clothing to fit the individual form.

E. R. Richer, the company's advertising director, and Arnold Gingrich, editor of Esquire, will discuss topics of present day interest in their fields. Tributes to Hart, Schaffner and Marx will be offered by B. J. Cahn, president of B. Kuppenheimer and company, and Sidney Hillman, president, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, who has played an important role in the remarkable progressive labor policy which has distinguished amicable labor relations between Hart, Schaffner and Marx and its employes for 25 years.

Herman Masur, president of D. Masur and Son, of Monroe, has gone to Chicago to attend the program.

Flush Kidneys of Acid and Poisons

Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Nights

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed.

But be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness. (Adv.)

ROTARY OFF TO NATCHEZ SUNDAY

Annual Conference To Open; Monroe Seeks 1938 Convention

The Monroe Rotary club, 50 strong, will attend the two-state conference April 5-6 at Natchez, Miss. Local members are specially interested, as one of their number, J. M. Every hotel facility in Natchez has been taxed to the limit, it is understood, and many delegates will be accommodated in private homes. There will be 71 clubs of Mississippi and Louisiana represented.

The present meeting will be the last one held by the Seventeenth district as now constituted, it is expected, as plans are underway to divide it into two districts.

As a prelude to the conference, a reception will be held at Stanton Hall, this afternoon. Following the reception, a negro spiritual entitled "Heaven Bound," will be given in a large negro church.

The conference will open in the Grand theater, Monday morning, when the address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor W. J. Byrne, of Natchez, followed by a second address of welcome by Oscar Darby president of the entertaining club.

SOLONS HOLD TO STANDS ON WAR

None Regret Action In Voting On Issue Twenty Years Ago

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(AP)—The 21 men now in the senate who voted for America's entry into the World war 20 years ago said today they still stood by that action.

The two present senators who opposed war against Germany still contend they were right.

Commenting on the anniversary next Tuesday of the declaration, those in the first group who could be reached expressed disappointment with the war's aftermath, but said America's participation was a regrettable necessity.

Senator Neely, Democrat, West Virginia added:

"Except in case of invasion, I would never vote for another war."

Senator Lundeen, heavy-set Minnesota Farmer-Laborite who said "no" when the crucial question was before congress, remarked today:

"Ask those who voted us into that carnage if they are proud of it; I challenged them from the senate floor on April 6 last year, and their silence was eloquent."

A reply came quickly from Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, who has more years of continuous service than any other member of congress:

"Voting to declare war was the proudest act of my life; I am prouder of it every year."

Senator Norris, Independent, Nebraska, once denounced as a traitor for opposing the war resolution, said:

"The course of history for 20 years has justified my vote."

Regret at the necessity of the war was expressed by Senators Connally, Democrat, Texas, and Hayden, Democrat, Arizona, who, with the present Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York and three others left the house to enlist. Nine present senators were in the house at that time.

Unanimously, the 21 agreed the nation has a better chance now to keep clear of conflicts. Some of their comments:

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho: "We see the last war accomplished nothing."

Senator Johnson, Republican, California: "If we had possessed military might in 1917 the acts committed against us, which dragged us into war, would never have been committed."

Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina: "We are better armed. Money spent on the navy speaks more loudly than any words on the floor of the senate."

Senator White, Republican, Maine, who as a member of the house cast his first congressional vote on the war roll call:

"While I felt the solemnity of the moment to the full, I must admit I voted with no real appreciation of the consequences—economic, social and political—that were to follow."

FRENCH QUARTER UNDERGOES PURGE

Action Puts New Orleans' Infamous District On Move Again

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—(AP)—New Orleans' infamous "district" is on the move again.

George Reyer, superintendent of police, has called for a "cleanup" of the venerable and historic French quarter and has put Captain James Cripps in charge of the purge.

The district was once located in a section of several blocks around Basin street, bounded by cemeteries, a railroad and Canal street, the main business thoroughfare.

That was until several years ago when the late Huey Long, battling Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley for political supremacy, charged Walmsley's police were "shaking down" the women.

He used national guardsmen to rout them and they scattered to many places, but principally concentrated in the nearby French quarter.

Aristocratic old families muttered when questionable neighbors took up abodes next to their residences. The better class of people began to move out.

Dives sprang up like mushrooms. Thieves, gamblers, "muggle heads," (smokers of marihuana cigarettes), and other low characters thronged in.

French societies, the chamber of commerce and other civic groups became alarmed.

The quarter, or Vieux Carre, for decades has been the mecca of tourists with its French-Spanish architecture, its quaint antique shops, its saloons, its night clubs and such like.

Many substantial families live in famous buildings with important historical backgrounds. Artists and writers have colonies in it.

So now, for a week or more, Captain Cripps and his squads have been busy picking up questionable characters. Almost 50 were taken in one night.

The "cleanup," however, apparently has applied principally to women.

Slot machines are found everywhere. Games of black jack and Klondike are openly operated. And there are many bookies to take bets on horse races—only, however, since the racing season here ended.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Haywood Mills, 608 Mill street, West Monroe, Saturday reported the theft of a new bicycle which he said was stolen during the afternoon from in front of the Capitol theater. The bicycle was described as size 28, red and white and bearing serial number 565588.

PARKING CHANGE BEGINS APRIL 10

Traffic Tickets Will Be Issued To Persons Violating Regulations

Commencing April 10, traffic tickets will be issued to persons violating the new parking rules which will then come into effect in the downtown district of the city, according to notices posted Saturday by Chief of Police Frank V. Reitzell.

The new rules prohibit the parking of automobiles for more than one hour on streets in the following limits:

North Second, North Third and North Fourth streets between DeSiard and Jefferson; Walnut street between DeSiard and Jefferson; DeSiard street from the Ouachita river to North Sixth street; Grand street from Jefferson to Wood; St. John, Jackson and Catalpa streets from DeSiard to Grammont; Harrison street from St. John to Catalpa; Grammont street from Grand to Catalpa.

Traffic tickets will also be issued to every person double parking or parking with right wheels more than 18 inches from curb and to all persons parking within 15 feet of any street intersection.

"These rules have been made in the interests of the public and we hope that all owners of automobiles will cooperate with the police department," Chief Reitzell declared.

RHYMES WELL TO GET SCHLUMBERGER TEST

A Schlumberger test will be run in the Rhymes well near Clear Lake, Richland parish, today, according to information obtained Saturday.

The well is being drilled by the Gulf Refining company and is one of the deepest tests for oil and gas ever drilled in this country. The last core was said to have been taken from a depth of 9,960 feet and the total depth of the well is now more than 10,000 feet. The test is located in section 32-17-6 east.

The test will determine productivity and porosity of the formations encountered which have been identified as belonging to the lower Trinity series.

Dr. Stephens was for years actively engaged in the practice of his profession as physician in Natchitoches. He also was vice-president and a director of the Exchange bank of Natchitoches.

He found time to devote to public interests and served during the administration of Governor Heard as member of the state board of health and in 1904 became its president. He also served as president of the school board of Natchitoches parish.

He also showed his public spiritedness by the gift to the city of Natchitoches made by him and his sister, Mrs. John Parker of Monroe, of the beautification of the banks along Cane River lake. This has been devoted to recreational purposes.

He is survived by his widow and his sister, Mrs. Parker, as well as a number of nieces and nephews.

The Search For Contentment

"What do you want to be when you grow up?" a little girl of 11 years was asked.

"I want to be somebody's wife," was the reply.

The occasion which produced these remarks was furnished when a group, including the little girl, was engaged in listening to a broadcast of a professional person who was laying down the declaration that children knew better what they wanted to do with their lives than did their parents, and should be aided and abetted in getting into environments congenial to them.

If one accepts the theory that this world is merely a place in which to find contentment, and that it is possible to find contentment, and that it is quite possible to achieve that end by means of technical and mechanical adjustments, then the getting of round pegs into square holes should have every one sitting pretty.

But if one accepts the theory that this world is a sphere of education and experience through which human beings must pass in gaining spiritual perfection, that brings on more talk. It suggests the proposition that perhaps, after all, what we had rather do here is not necessarily the thing we should do—that learning to do things we have no desire to do may be essential to the development of certain sides of our beings.

When children go to school they are not allowed to do merely what they want to do, but rather what the teachers know they should do to give them a properly rounded educational equipment. If a student likes history and hates arithmetic, he should not be permitted to pass up arithmetic, for he will need to know something of that study in meeting the practical problems of every-day existence; the knowledge is a necessary part of his equipment, however much he dislikes to acquire it. So with some other things in this life; perhaps we need to learn them—whether we like them or not—else we may be lop-sided.

If human souls do pass from this world to another, and on and on in their learning, it is not inconceivable that the following of one certain bent through the spheres would make a soul exceedingly lop-sided. This particular idea is not advanced as a fact, or even as a theory, but merely as something to think about. The late George Inness, Jr., famed American landscape artist, used to say that he believed he would be accorded larger opportunities for expressing himself through his beloved painting after he had "passed beyond the vail."

But as to finding each person a place of contentment in this world, can the thing commonly be done? How many persons know what would be their place of contentment? Haven't we many times seen a person convinced that if he could but do this or that he would be happy; yet after trying out his desire find the result unsatisfying? Haven't we seen persons go from one allurement to another and never find what they wanted?

It would be interesting to know if those experts who make a profession of fitting round pegs into square holes, and who spend so much time telling the wide, wide world how necessary the thing is to happiness, are themselves happy. They give the impression of being no more contented than anybody else.

Hunting happiness is a common pursuit. But no one has ever learned the trick of running it down, for the simple reason that it cannot be run down. If happiness will not come to us voluntarily we shall not have it. It comes to those who turn their thought and attention to doing that which their hands find to do and doing it with all their conscientious might—yet ready to flee at the first wrong move.

A PROTEST TO THE LEAGUE

It is not difficult to envision in the mind's eye the sardonic humor with which Premier Mussolini will view the protest by the Spanish government to the League of Nations against "the presence of various regular Italian divisions on the Guadalajara front."

Il Duce has had a wealth of experience with the potency of the league as an agency for the establishment and the preservation of peace. The league raised a feeble hand of protest against the theft of Ethiopia, but the heir to the laurel wreath of the Caesars, like the big bad wolf, huffed and puffed and nothing was ever heard of the league again. It is only now that its name is mentioned after having been shrouded for many months in impenetrable silence while the world has proceeded to follow the customs of the ages by engaging in wars and in preparation for wars.

In appealing to the league, the Spanish government leans upon a weak reed. Whatever prestige and power this symbol of a great ideal may have had are gone, shattered and dispelled by the mailed fists of the current crop of ruthless realists.

Dead for five minutes, a man in the northwest says his only sensations were of relaxation and ease. Another way of experiencing the same sensations is through the sit-down strike.

British professor has begun "playing the horses," with a view to showing his class the folly of gambling. It would be the irony of fate if he won.

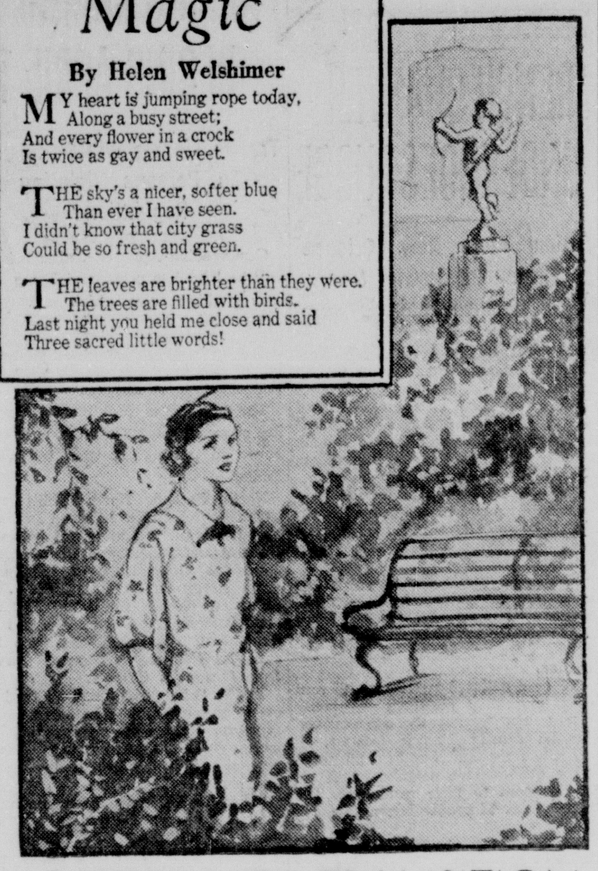

Magic

By Helen Welshimer

MY heart is jumping rope today,
Along a busy street;
And every flower in a crock
Is twice as gay and sweet.

THE sky's a nicer, softer blue
Than ever I have seen.
I didn't know that city grass
Could be so fresh and green.

THE leaves are brighter than they were.
The trees are filled with birds.
Last night you held me close and said

SYMPTOM OF TRANSITION

By BRUCE CATTON

When the world reaches the stage where the anger of one man can put it in danger of a ruinous war, it has fallen into a disastrously bad fix. That it is in just such a spot right now is made evident by Mussolini's reaction to the defeat of Italian troops by the Spanish government army.

Mussolini's soldiers went to Spain as "volunteers," but all Europe knew that they were there with Il Duce's blessing. And everything went well until they tripped over their first real battle. Then, with heartening unanimity, they set out for the rear.

Now the trouble with all this is that it has left Mussolini's face very red, and a red face is the one thing a dictator cannot stand. So Europe has a new "crisis."

Mussolini warns that dreadful things will happen if the British newspapers don't stop making fun of him and reminding their readers of Caporetto, that World war disaster in which Italian troops were routed.

He summons his ambassadors from all over Europe to find out how the public pulse is beating, and there are rumors that he will completely disown the non-intervention movement in order to make plain his disapproval of everything.

So Europe was brought closer to the edge of war than at any time since the Ethiopian sanctions were invoked—and all because one man has had to take a bit of bad news.

Wars come from many reasons, some of them tragically inadequate. But can anyone think of a poorer reason than the fact that a lone mortal lost his temper?

This, unfortunately, is nothing new in the history of Europe. The same sort of story was told in Napoleon's day. Then, as now, world peace was at the mercy of one man's whims. A great many men had to die and much misery had to be loosed on the world before that uncomfortable era passed.

But it did pass, at last—and that is the thing to remember. Napoleon wasn't a permanent fixture; nor was the kind of government he stood for. The world was in a period of transition, then, with the last vestiges of feudalism being cleared away so that men could get the world's work done; Napoleon was simply one of the steps in the process.

Isn't the same thing true today? These dictators, sprouting like weeds all across Europe, are not permanent, and neither is the kind of government they represent. Once more the world is in transition, with an out-of-date kind of society trying to give birth to something that will enable men to live together with more comfort and less friction. The transition period is abominably hard, as all such periods are, and the dictators are part of it; but sooner or later it will end and they will vanish.

* * *

The problem now is to make the change as painless as possible—to put up with these angry, dictatorial men as best we can until the slow evolution of society puts them where they can no longer endanger the rest of us.

A BOOK REVIEW

WHIMSY, ADVENTURE FEATURE, LATEST BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

The mother who picks up Lucy Sprague Mitchell's "Another Here and Now Story Book" composed and compiled by the author, will be delightfully impressed with its contents.

Beginning with the little whimsical sing-songs and make-believe of the 2-year-old, it carries through its pages the fresh gay spirit of childhood up to "6-year-oldness." Rhyme and prose lilt along with the months of the child's developing world. Mrs. Mitchell and co-authors of this collection are experts in child study, and therefore we find rhyme with "reason."

It is the roller-skating season, just the time for girls over 10 to read Ruth Sawyer's book, "Roller Skates." The story follows a little girl through a year largely spent skating over the streets of New York many years ago. The tale is written with a quaint beauty that would be appreciated by an older reader, and is a most worthy addition to the growing girl's library.

* * *

A high school girl of talent and ambition breaks into the movies, sees the inside workings of the film industry and the life of an extra, becomes disillusioned, and leaves to continue her normal girlhood. This is the theme of Madeline Brandeis' sensible junior novel, "Adventure in Hollywood."

Babs Lord, the movie-struck girl; Sandy Vickers, the boy who depends on her camaraderie to reach his own play-writing goal; Consuela, who helps Sandy with his little theater when Babs deserts her; Duke Caldwell, the antagonist—all are real young moderns. Mrs. Brandeis, herself a former producer, gives an honest picture of the "romantic" industry that might serve to avert a few heartbreaks.

An adventure story as full of amusement as of thrills is "Smuggler's Sloop," by Robb White III. Tobie and Tommy, 12 and 14-year-old sister and brother, befriend a West Indian smuggler, and, in saving his boat from the authorities, are set adrift in the Caribbean sea. Their daring and resource through the following days, their eventual capture by savages, and their escape through the jungle, pack the book with tense reading.

HOW THAT BOY HAS GROWN!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

I have been doing considerable boarding out recently after a long lapse incited by delicious home cooking—and I'm still for home cooking after almost a lifetime of eating in restaurants, hotels and lunch carts.

Yet I do think at the moment New York has the finest array of excellent food purveyors it has had in many a year. There used to be a dozen choice spots and now several hundred. All bang-up.

One still misses the Casino in the Park, the old Claremont and the cozy Pierre's that was niched on Park avenue. German cooking, with the exception of Luchow's on Fourteenth and the always deservedly packed Lindy's on Broadway, doesn't seem to be as popular as it once was. At least, the several I visited were empty.

Europe has sent us a flood of crack French and Spanish cooks and, next to the French, the Spanish flavor seems to predominate the cuisine. Off hand, some of the comparatively newer, higher priced and excellent restaurants I recall are The Mascotte, The Passy, Montparnasse, Restaurant Robert, La Salle Du Bois, Du Perriot's and Theodor's. For a slightly lower tariff there is the ever growing chain of red-fronted Longchamps, where no-tipping is a rule.

Too, there is rich and high class food at what the gourmets call The Big Three: The Stork Club, El Morocco and "No. 21." These places are not always filled at the dinner hour but are jammed later, and their prices are not for the reluctant purse.

The two better Italian restaurants, to my notion, are Giovanni's uptown and the long established Moneta's in Mulberry. El Chico is my favorite of the Spanish outlay. It is down in the village and imports real Spanish artists from Valencia. The village also has the uptown Chili Villa on Barrow street now.

For a more reasonable tariff in dining out I don't think there are any better dinners in the dollar to a dollar and a half range than those at the Therese Worthington Grant and Lebus tea rooms. And now and then I find myself hungering for a meal at Schrafft's. I like the daintiness of their service and all their ice cream flavors, especially coffee.

One could not survey the eating places and fairly omit The Colony. Suffice it to say it is tariffed skyward, but there is no finer eating place the world over. I enjoy the quiet surroundings and lack of music. That does much to compensate for the whopping check.

I have been trying to assist from memory's store Charles B. Driscoll in a book wherein he does a grand job of writing on a poor subject and to be called "A Book About O. O. McIntyre." It is surprising how much fun it is to recreate scenes of other days, revive old friends and acquaintances. So many have gone and so many others have been lost track of. On one paper, for instance, in the mid-country there is only one man in the editorial room who was there when I was. On still another there isn't a survivor.

The lilt of names has always fascinated me somehow. When I think of Cincinnati I think of such department stores as Shillito's, Pogue's, Mabley and Carew and Alms and Doepke. Other remembrances of the Queen City's nomenclature include: Avondale, Mt. Auburn, Nicholas Longworth, Rud Hynicka, Baymiller street, the Emery Arcade and Cumminsville.

There seems to be—seems, my eye: there is—a sudden flood of horror literature lately. Three books to reach me the same day bore these titles: The Thing in the Brook, Nine Doctors and a Madman and Murder in the Newspaper Guild. Publishers keen to detect the public reading taste know there is a desire or they wouldn't market such volumes. All the authors strive valiantly but a bit hopelessly to equal the stark terror that seems to belong only to Poe.

A theatrical historian tells me the all-time flop record on Broadway was achieved by the evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson when she made a personal appearance—all in white—at the Capitol a few years ago. A great ballyhoo preceded her engagement and no one understood just why—but the customers stayed away. It was the slimmest attendance in the history of that enormous and successful theater.

Two New York newspapermen at least belie the general impression that ink-stained wretches of the daily press are slovenly habited. These two are Maury H. B. Paul and Lucius Beebe, whose elegant wardrobes have so excited two monthly magazines that each is carrying a story with pictures to show how sartorially superb these scribes are. And no one in a town of snappy dressers has ever topped the war correspondent Richard Harding Davis. He was appearing in top hat and Inverness cape at first nights more than 20 years ago.

I subscribe to this private opinion of a favorite observer: "When the French are right there are no finer patriots, thinkers nor citizens. But when they fly off the track no type of humanity can be so illogically mean and petty."

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

FIRST example of coronation stamps to be released on May 12 throughout the British Empire comes from New Zealand. It is a set of three values, each bearing portraits of the king and queen, surrounded by Maori designs. The New Zealand coat of arms rests between them.

* * *

Only Samoa, Australia, and India have decided not to have any special coronation issues, but their decision may be changed at the last minute.

* * *

Canada may be the first of the British dominions to issue a regular series of King George VI stamps, even before the coronation stamps come out.

* * *

The Rhode Island tercentenary commemorative stamp, first issued May 4, 1936, has been withdrawn from sale. Total number printed was 75,000,000.

* * *

For the first time in philatelic history, stamps are to be issued for more than one country. They are intended for use only within the Little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Yugo-Slavia and Rumania. Rumania has already printed its stamps, with the names of the other two nations on them. These will be permitted only on mail going to either of the other two nations.

YOUR HEALTH

Dr. Frank E. Adair

Attending Surgeon, Memorial Hospital, N. Y. Secretary, American Society For the Control of Cancer

Cancer is the modern menace of civilized nations. More people have died from the ravages of cancer than from battle casualties. Last year (1936) in the United States cancer took the lives of 153,000 of our women, children and men. Cancer kills more of our American citizens each succeeding year. Cancer is marching on! Its hideous features peer through the window of some family in your block nearly every year.

The tragedy and pity of it all, is that a large proportion of these lives was needlessly sacrificed.

Every doctor freely admits that but little can be done for the case of advanced, disseminated cancer. On the other hand, however, cures can be obtained in great numbers if the patient comes early. But how is the doctor going to cure you if you neglect the disease until it is in an advanced stage? Is the doctor to blame if he fails then?

The medical men appreciate if the cure rate is to increase, that the public must be better educated on the early symptoms. The entire plan for conquering this disease rests on the foundation of education. Of what is the educational program to consist? Is it a complicated, difficult system? Can the lay public with a non-medical education grasp the significance of the symptoms?

As a matter of fact, the system for education of the lay public on cancer cannot possibly be more simple or more direct. The scheme of education can be grasped by everyone, even those of the lower ranges of intelligence.

Each one must become reasonably intelligent about his body—about the house in which he lives. That is the price one must pay for civilization. If one will not assume the obligation to himself and to his body which civilization imposes, then he better return to the jungles and take his chance with the more primitive dangers of living there.

We must all be aware of ourselves, and alert to any very marked changes in body function from the normal. We must know enough to distinguish between a gastro-intestinal upset, and pain in the hip joint. If the fuse in your home blows out you may not be able to fix it, but at least you know enough to call in the electrician and not the plumber.

I have a sincere belief in the ability of the American public to absorb enough common-sense knowledge about cancer, to cut the death rate in half. You are not expected to make the final diagnosis yourself—that is the job for the doctors; but you can do one thing which is of far greater importance than all, namely, take yourself and your problem to your doctor, and let him decide what should be done if anything.

If you find a lump in the breast; an ulcer of the lip or tongue that will not heal; bleeding from one of the body orifices that cannot be explained; persistent indigestion with a distaste especially for meat, go see your doctor. He will take over your problem. If you learn only a few of these simple signs, and act on them, the probability is that you will never die of cancer. Surgery, radium and X-rays will handle most cases in the early stages.

Recently one of the most impressive peace time movements of modern times has taken place. Due to the horrid fact that one out of every eight women reaching the age of 40 dies of cancer, the women of America have recently risen up as one mighty force. They have formed an army to fight the cancer menace. This movement is called the "women's field army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer."

In 39 states of the Union the women are cooperating with the state medical society in an effort to teach every woman in their community a few simple facts about cancer. Commanders, vice-commanders, captains, lieutenants, etc., have been appointed. The women of America are enrolling in great numbers in their new educational army. The movement is bound to succeed and the death rate in women will be cut.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON. — Predictions that congress will sit right through the summer and perhaps on into December are based on the knowledge that there is a huge log jam of important legislative proposals piling up behind the battlefront on which the supreme court issue takes precedence over everything else.

Most bets are that the Roosevelt court plan won't come to a vote in the senate before early May. It may come to a vote later than that if a major filibuster develops. Meanwhile, the hearings of the senate judiciary committee on the bill are dragging more slowly than anyone expected.

Congress marks time while the administration concentrates all its energy on the attempt to persuade it to vote to put new justices on the supreme court. Many of the major legislative proposals hanging fire, it is believed, depend on a revamped supreme court for subsequent validation.

* * *

Wants Showdown Now

Roosevelt is convinced by history that every president has to face a bitter struggle with the senate in his second term. He wants his big showdown now, ahead of everything else. His followers believe that if he can win the supreme court fight he will have nearly everything his own way after that, whereas if he loses he will no longer be able to dominate legislation.

So for the moment congress is dawdling along with measures which are mere chicken feed. Statutes and powers which would otherwise expire this year are being renewed, as in the case of the new neutrality law and the extension of the president's authority to renew reciprocal trade treaties. Special excise and "nuisance" taxes must be re-enacted before July. Authority as to RFC loans, dollar devaluation and the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund already has been extended.

Roosevelt's plan for drastic government reorganization was a huge sensation when it was proposed a few weeks ago. But no one has heard of it for at least a month. A joint congressional committee on reorganization met once or twice and did nothing except sneer at the proposal that cabinet salaries be raised from $15,000 to $20,000, and other salaries for top jobs proportionately. If Roosevelt wins his supreme court battle, reorganization will again be one of the big 1937 issues. And it will take up a great deal of time.

Farm Bill Ahead

An administration bill is being prepared to provide for regulation of wages and hours. It probably will be tossed into the hopper at a hot point in the court fight, with warning to labor and any other interested parties that it's just the kind of measure which the supreme court as now constituted can be expected to kill.

A general major farm program is being rounded out. Congress is unlikely to adjourn without passing new laws for crop control, crop insurance, and the ever-normal granary scheme, which Secretary Wallace says are impossible so long as recent supreme court opinions stand. The present soil conservation act is threatened, especially in the south, where predictions of 20 cent cotton this fall—made by brokers who profit through handling volume—have caused growers to revert to old-time habits of planting all their land to cotton.

Still another big proposal is the one by which the administration intends to nibble at the farm tenancy problem—extending government credit and assistance to tenants in the hope that many of them can again have land of their own.

And More And More

The Wagner-Steagall housing bill will require extensive hearings and debate, representing as it does a new government policy and formal federal entry into a new field of activity. The administration has yet to make up its mind as to a future relief policy, and the amount of money required for that. New federal power policy may be expressed in legislation and the society security act cries for amendment. It is also proposed to tax foreign investments in the United States in such a way as to get them under control.

Your correspondent is omitting a lot of things, too. It certainly does look like a long, hot summer. One of several reasons Roosevelt will try to keep the boys in session until he gets nearly everything he wants is that the next session will come during an election year, when it's never possible to keep congress tied to its job.

"Payroll Builders and Boosters"

In presenting this feature of "PAYROLL BUILDERS AND BOOSTERS OF MONROE, WEST MONROE AND OUACHITA PARISH," the News-Star—World also gives to its readers the first of a series of Booster editorials in which it is proposed to deal with the industrial, business, educational, agricultural, and other advantages that are to be found here.

The primary proposition, it is hoped, will be conducive to better civic spirit and a closer feeling of community interest, not only among business and industrial establishments, but among individuals as well.

Monroe and West Monroe are on the threshold of still greater development, if we can but realize the wonderful opportunities that we have at hand. Hundreds of desirable industrial sites are located here within easy reach of railroad, water supply and other desirable facilities. Even in Monroe and West Monroe there are hundreds of people who cannot realize and comprehend the marvelous possibilities and opportunities that are to be found here. Therefore, in addition to acquainting the visitor and new-comer with the situation, something of an inspirational nature will be supplied our home folks.

With cheap and convenient fuel, excellent railroad and water facilities, the industrial development is of the greatest importance. Monroe and West Monroe are truly cities of beautiful churches and schools.

The number of advertisements of this page speaks volumes for the friendly feeling that exists here in Monroe and West Monroe among our business, professional and industrial concerns. We believe that the Twin Cities are due for an era of prosperity even greater than they have ever before experienced.

This page will run each Sunday for a period of ten weeks, carrying further editorial articles on the growth, progress and development of Monroe, West Monroe and Ouachita Parish. Patronize and support these concerns, they are the real boosters and builders for our communities.

The resources of Ouachita Parish are not confined to any one phase of production or industry.

Ouachita Parish is known far and wide as the center of the World's Greatest Gas Fields, which furnish cheap and abundant fuel for every domestic and industrial requirement.

Ouachita Parish is the headquarters for the distribution of electric power and light, furnishing unlimited current for every electric need, both domestic and commercially.

Ouachita Parish is the center for the greatest pulp and paper mills of the South, the product of which goes into every quarter of the globe. Ouachita Parish is the home of the Carbon Black industry in the South. The unlimited supplies of gas are converted into carbon black, to be used in the manufacture of ink, paints, automobile tires, carbon paper and a wide variety of other finished products.

FLOYD SPENCER TO SPEAK HERE

Famed Agronomist Will Address Kiwanis Club Wednesday Noon

Floyd Spencer, famed throughout the south as one of the greatest agronomists of this section of the country, will make an address before the Monroe Kiwanis club at its regular meeting Wednesday noon in Virginia hotel. Upwards of 40 agricultural and community club leaders of the parish will be special guests of the club on the occasion. The program is being arranged by the Kiwanis club's agricultural committee, in cooperation with E. L. Straham, agricultural agent and Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, home demonstration agent. The event is an annual one in the Kiwanis club's program.

Representatives from the agricultural committees of other Kiwanis clubs in northeast Louisiana are expected to be present to hear Mr. Spencer's address.

After receiving his B. S. degree in agriculture from Louisiana State university in 1914, Mr. Spencer began working for the Louisiana livestock sanitary board. Later he was made swine specialist in the livestock extension. When war was declared in 1917, Mr. Spencer enlisted as a private, but was soon promoted to the rank of first lieutenant. He served overseas for nearly a year.

After his discharge from the army, Mr. Spencer returned to the agricultural extension division as corn club agent. Later, he served as organization specialist, and rendered efficient work in helping organize the Louisiana farm bureau federation. In 1924, the future assistant director was made district agent, in charge of the northwest Louisiana district. His promotion to the assistant d[illegible] came in August, 1928.

During all these years, and while continuing his other official duties, Mr. Spencer was preaching the gospel of more and better soy beans. It was no doubt due to his constant preaching that others took up the refrain, and today nearly every farmer in Louisiana plants soy beans for fertilizer or for feed.

Speaking of Mr. Spencer's abilities one Louisiana editor said:

SOY BEAN EXPERT

FARM WORK PROGRESSING

CALHOUN, La., April 3.—(Special)—Farmers in this area are making excellent progress with their spring cultivation. Due to heavy rains and cold weather, they were slow in getting started with farm work, but warm sunshiny days recently have heartened them and helped them to make double-quick time with their plowing and planting.

PIANO TOURNEY SET FOR MAY 14-15

The first annual piano tournament under the auspices of the National Guild of Piano Teachers will be held in the auditorium of Northeast Center L. S. U. May 14 and 15, it was announced Saturday by Mrs. Dallas Goss, chairman of the local chapter. Upwards of 50 piano students of all ages will participate in the event, which is part of a nation-wide program. Town students entered in the tournament will be excused from their school classes for auditions on the 14th of May. Out-of-town students will play on the 15th of May. Participants from all sections of Northeast Louisiana are entered for the tournament.

Each entry in the tournament will play in a private audition before a competent authority. No prizes are given but each player receives a certificate of rating. Performance will be judged in relation to the age and period of study of the player, and for accuracy, tone, touch, phrasing, dynamics, pedalling and style. All who wish to participate in the tournament must be registered through their piano teachers and must submit a repertoire of at least four pieces they can play from memory.

Each repertoire must include at least one selection from the following musical groups: The early classic period, represented by Bach; the sonata period, represented chiefly by Beethoven, Mozart and Haydn; the romantic period, represented by Schumann, Mendelssohn, Chopin and Weber and the American composers' group. Pupils who have had less than two years' study are not subject to these requirements but may enter any four or more standard pieces. By requiring that each player include an American work, the guild has sought to stimulate an interest in contemporary American music.

Highest tournament honors will be awarded to those with a 95 per cent rating; high honors to those with a 90 per cent rating. Players who enter a repertoire of four pieces from memory will be placed on the district honor roll provided their rating is 80 per cent or above; the state honor roll will be achieved by those who capably perform seven-piece programs; a repertoire of 10 or more pieces will place the entrant on the national honor roll.

RUSTON PASTOR TO LEAD TULLOS BAPTIST REVIVAL

JENA, La., April 3.—(Special)—Beginning Sunday, April 11, Rev. O. E. Autrey, pastor of the Temple Baptist church of Ruston, and former pastor of the Tullos Baptist church, will conduct a two weeks' revival at the Tullos Baptist church.

Music for the meeting will be under the direction of W. C. Holloway and Fred Higdon, choir directors, and A. F. Holloway, who is in the charge of the Booster band.

The Tullos church, which has added more than one hundred members in the past 18 months, has completed a building campaign by which they now have three buildings in the town, the main church building, an educational center and a mission building. Four services will be held each day, as follows: 8:30 a.m., church building; 3 p.m., Tullos High school; 6:30 p.m., mission building; 8 p.m., church building.

AREA BAR ASSOCIATION TO MEET AT WINNSBORO

WINNSBORO, La., April 3.—(Special)—An annual meeting of the bar association of the fifth judicial district, composed of Franklin, Richland and West Carroll parishes, will be held next Wednesday night at Winnsboro.

Judge John R. McIntosh of Oak Grove, former judge of the fifth district and president of the association, will preside at the meeting.

Officials of the court of appeals of the second circuit, which will open a session in Monroe on Monday, have been invited to attend the assembly.

Ford "60" owners report 22-27 miles per gallon

LONG BEFORE the 60-horsepower Ford V-8 engine was offered to America, we knew it was capable of unusual economy.

Two years' hard usage in England and France had proved that. Road tests of all kinds proved it again.

But in keeping with Ford policy, no mileage claims were made until they could be established in actual service.

Now the story can be told. . . . The new Ford "60" is more than meeting expectations! Thousands of private owners, cab companies, fleet operators, and others who keep careful records, report averages of 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline. That is the highest mileage in Ford history—and Ford cars have always been famous for economy!

If you want a big car for a small budget, see and drive the Ford "60." It's available in five body types.

It's just as roomy, sturdy and safe as the Ford "85." It has the same distinctive modern design. It delivers V-8 smoothness and quiet even at speeds up to 70 miles an hour. And, best of all, it brings you its brilliant operating economy at the lowest Ford price in years!

POWER FIRM TO EXPAND SERVICE

New Sub-Stations To Be Built As Result Of Increasing Demands

Sub-stations of the Louisiana Power and Light company in north Louisiana will be expanded or rebuilt in order to take care of increasing demands for light and power, stated A. O. Evans, division manager, Saturday. The sub-stations that will be improved are those located at West Monroe, Winnsboro, Delhi and Tallulah. The cost of the projects will total $175,000 and are to be completed by August 1, Mr. Evans said.

All crews of the company are busily engaged in this work but no extra men will be required, as experienced workmen are required and staff of the company is adequate to meet requirements.

This company operates, as the northern division of the state, in all the territory that lies north of the Red river. Twenty-one parishes are included in this area.

A total of more than 12,000 customers are furnished light and power service from this company in north Louisiana. In rural sections, the average users of the service do not average more than 10 to a mile of line. In the Monroe and West Monroe area, however, the average is far higher, running about 50 to a mile.

Mr. Evans returned from New Orleans Friday, where he attended a meeting of the Louisiana Power and Light company, at which time plans for extensions and spring work were outlined.

CHAPTER VII

"It's safest to assume he takes me for a fool," Judith warned herself. Aloud she gave him the address of her apartment.

"Good!" exclaimed the young physician. "I was afraid it would be nearer the hospital than that!" He released his foot from the accelerator, and Judith watched the speedometer needle hover between 20 and 25. "I'm a very careful driver," Harris added with a smile. "I don't believe in speeding—especially with a girl like you in the car."

Suddenly his manner changed. His voice lost its bantering lightness. "Look here, Miss Howard. You said you caused this accident because you weren't looking where you were going."

"That's right."

"It puzzles me that a pretty young woman should be out walking alone—hatless—with her head down even when she crossed the street. Something was troubling you. Would you want to tell me about it?"

Judith tried to evade the question with a laugh. "You're something more than a doctor, aren't you?"

"But you were troubled, weren't you?"

"Y-yes . . ."

"Anything wrong at home?"

Judith shook her head. "I live alone in the apartment."

"Then it has to be a love affair." He turned to her with a grin. "That's elementary, my dear Miss Howard."

She wondered why she felt not the slightest resentment at his probing. There was no question but what this personable young doctor had the "bedside manner." Judith realized, too, that down in her heart she was ready enough to tell her story to someone. Someone beside Virginia Bent.

"You were right," she told Harris quickly. "I was thinking about something else when I started to cross the street."

"And that 'something else' was a man, of course. I hope nothing serious has gone wrong."

"Well . . . it's serious," Judith had to admit. He turned to her quickly, and she added with a little laugh, "At least it's final."

"Oh. . . . You're not going to see him any more. Is that it?"

* * *

Judith was astonished. "How did you guess that?"

"It wasn't much of a guess. I knew very well that no man would be deciding not to see you any more." Carefully he threaded the car in and out among the thinning night traffic. "How did you happen to make this momentous decision?"

"He—he didn't want to marry me." This startled Eden Harris for a moment, but when he had taken another look at Judith's face he seemed relieved. "I get it. You're a young woman who plans to take full advantage of the fact that this is a leap year."

"No. . . . You see, Steve and I have known each other for a long time. More than four years, to be exact. I—I thought that was a little extended for an engagement."

"I should think so! But what made this Steve so backward, I'd like to know."

Judith hesitated, then found herself continuing. "He didn't think he was making enough money to marry. I was willing to keep my job—wanted to, in fact. But Steve couldn't agree."

"Proud, eh?"

"Yes, and to me it seemed foolish pride."

Harris did not answer for a moment. They drove with only the hum of the motor between them. Then: "When did all this happen?"

"I told him yesterday."

"Yesterday?" repeated the doctor in astonishment. "You were speaking of it in the past tense, and I had an idea that—"

"It should be in the past tense," Judith told him. "But that's what Steve can't believe. He tried to see me tonight. I went to a movie to get away from him. Then when I came home he was waiting in the doorway. I'd turned down the street again when this accident happened." She studied his profile, hoping that he would make some comment on what she'd told him. And when he offered none she could not refrain from asking, "Do you—well, do you think I was right, Doctor Harris?"

He thought a moment. "Yes, I'm sure you were. The conditions the past few years haven't been very conducive to young marriages. But when two people have been in love as long as you and this man it makes things—difficult, to say the least. Yes, I think you were right in wanting Steve to meet conditions as they are. Personally, I see no harm in a wife working out of the home, especially if she's healthy and competent. Of course, later on, she'll want a home and children. But by that time the husband is likely to be making enough to support her."

* * *

Judith sighed with relief. "You don't know how good it is to hear you say that."

"Well," Harris laughed. "That's just a general statement, and I don't pretend to be an expert." He looked down at her. "You're really quite ready to stand by your decision?"

"What makes you doubt it?"

"Because you're afraid to see him."

Judith nodded. "I'm—I'm afraid he'll convince me that we should just keep on going together, and postpone marriage a little while longer. He's done that so often. I suppose you think I'm weak."

"Not weak. It's just that you still love him," said Harris quietly.

"Yes . . ." she admitted. "I still do."

Harris lapsed into silence, drove several blocks before he spoke again. And when he did release himself he had resumed his former manner. Reaching into his pocket, he drew out a pack of cigarets. "Smoke?"

"Thanks." She accepted the light from his pocket torch, then raised her eyes to his, trying to match his mood. "Tell me, doctor, do you think time will cure me?"

"I don't know," he replied in mock professional manner. "Love is a curious disease. Time is the only treatment to which it responds—and you can't depend absolutely on that."

"But what was it Shakespeare said? 'Men have died . . . but not for love.' It's never fatal." Nevertheless Judith's borrowed cynicism refused to ring true.

"I wouldn't say never fatal. Rarely fatal is more accurate. You're very young and—as I think I've said before—very pretty. Other men are going to fall in love with you. A great many, I should think, now that you've given Steve the gate and the field is open. It's hard for you to believe now, but I think the chances are good that you'll run into someone you like better even than you liked Steve."

* * *

Yes, Judith agreed silently, it was hard to believe. So difficult, in fact, that she did not believe it at all. Steve was the man she had loved first, and now she felt sure that he would be the only one, always and forever. Perhaps in time the hurt would quiet a little, and the wound heal. She would be like the soldier whose wound straightens him often, but whose memory does not recall the pain, the field of battle, or the swoon against the earth.

Suddenly her unhappy thoughts were interrupted by Eden Harris' jovial, "Well, I think this is your place, isn't it?"

Judith nodded. "Yes . . . and thanks so much for all your kindness."

"Now that you're safely home I'll admit that I could have reached here by a much shorter route. But I just had a hunch that you had some things on your chest, and that you'd feel better if you could get them off."

"You're a nice person," Judith smiled sincerely. "Thanks again, and there's no need for you to get out. But I would like to know the name of the man who drove the car tonight. I'll want to see how he's getting along."

"Francis Jarvis is his name. But you needn't worry about him. He'll be in his office tomorrow, as right as rain." As Judith opened the car door, Harris put out a restraining hand. "Not a word about whether you hope you'll see me again?"

Judith laughed. "I was never one to look up the rules. But doesn't Mrs. Post require that the lady be silent on that subject?"

"That may be. But there's nothing to prevent her showing it in her eyes."

Judith widened her eyes. "Well, what do they say?" she laughed.

"I can't tell. Those are enigmatic eyes, Judith Howard. But I hope we'll see each other again."

"So do I, really, Doctor Harris."

"And the way to manage it is for me to come and call on you. May I?"

Of course. Good night . . ."

Five persons were hurt in traffic accidents during March and a total of 53 arrests were made for traffic violations including 10 arrests of persons who were charged with drunken driving.

Value Of Winter Legumes Shown Ouachita Farmers

Examples of the results obtained in growth of winter legumes when various methods of planting are practiced were studied Friday by approximately 50 farmers who participated in the tour of winter legume fields of Ouachita parish representative of the approximately 3,000 acres grown in this parish this past winter.

Led by E. R. Strahan, parish agent, the farmers visited fields in all parts of the parish and held short discussions at each stop in which the grower outlined the procedure followed in planting the various legumes seen. These soil-improving crops are being plowed under now and will be followed by cotton and corn. This practice will mean thousands of dollars more for Ouachita parish farmers, according to Mr. Strahan, since it has been found that greatly increased cotton yields result when winter legumes are added to the soil preceding cotton.

C. W. Davis, Baton Rouge, district agent of the Louisiana State university agricultural extension division, and R. A. Wasson, extension agronomist, pointed out to the growers the reasons why failures result with legumes. They stressed the importance of thorough innoculation, proper planting and proper soil drainage.

A story of increased cotton production when cotton is grown following legumes was told by the farmers visited.

Percy M. Donald, who resides 11 miles northwest of Monroe, was the first farmer visited and he said that vetch plowed under on his cotton land had increased his cotton yield from 300 to 500 pounds of seed cotton an acre. He is growing 12 acres of vetch on his land this year and he showed the farmers that where vetch had been grown last year the growth was much better than on the land which was growing the crop for the first year.

Vetch has doubled the yield of cotton on the W. A. Calloway farm near Bosco, according to the story he told the farmers when they visited his place.

Said Mr. Calloway, "When I came here six years ago my cotton yield was so low that if it hadn't been increased I would have had to leave. I grew and turned under vetch for five years and my yield was increased from slightly more than 200 pounds to 500 pounds of lint per acre."

Mr. Calloway is growing 60 acres of vetch this year and has also started a bur clover seed patch from which he expects to harvest seed for this coming fall in May. Mr. Davis urged the other farmers to start a bur clover seed patch since this winter legume has numerous advantages over other legumes because, he said, innoculation is assured, being carried in the bur. A farmer can grow seed enough on one acre to seed 30 to 40 acres, from three to five voluntary crops will come up when the crop is allowed to go to seed, and the burs can be sowed on the top of a row and the rain will beat them into the ground.

Leaving the Calloway farm, the farmers proceeded to N. W. McHenry's place south of Monroe on the Columbia road. Here they saw a 200-acre field of vetch which had been planted high on the row on well-drained soil and had made an excellent growth. It was pointed out that vetch should be seeded 32 pounds to the acre and covered five inches deep. Asked what he thought of winter legumes, Mr. McHenry answered that they "are the best paying thing I know of" and had returned him increases of $15 an acre in cotton yield. He has been growing winter cover crops before cotton for 14 years.

Dr. Frank Collins, on the Sterlington road near Lamkin, is growing 32 acres of vetch and has started a bur clover seed patch. His farm was visited and he told the growers that vetch had increased his cotton yield from around one-fourth bale to three-fourths of a bale to the acre. R. L. Moore, 15 miles northeast of Monroe on the Sterlington-Bastrop road, was visited next by the farmers and he said that vetch had increased his cotton yield by from 400 to 500 pounds of seed cotton per acre and had more than doubled his corn yield. He said that deep covering of vetch seed was the most important factor in growing this winter legume.

The farms of Dr. E. C. Calvert, near West Monroe, M. S. Dixon, Sterlington, and Guy P. Stubbs, 10 miles east of Monroe, were also visited during the day where demonstrations with legumes were studied.

The following participated in the tour: C. L. Ponder, R. R. Kitchens, J. W. Boyles, H. H. Strozier, P. M. Donald, W. T. Avant, and John W. Tidwell, all of West Monroe, route 1; B. A. Tarner, R. R. Cann, W. A. Brandt, N. W. McHenry, George Knight, and W. W. McDonald, all of Monroe, route 2; T. J. Roan, and W. A. Mills of Calhoun; H. F. Cassell and L. O. Murrell, parish agent and assistant parish agent, respectively, Vernon parish; J. R. Greer, J. E. Rutledge, Roy Sandifer, R. B. Hester, and Dr. E. C. Calvert, all of West Monroe; John T. Bryant, Dr. Frank Collins, Abe Arent, Sidney Stroud, M. W. Stroud, and J. C. Steele, of Monroe; S. O. Henry and W. E. Leckie of Eros; M. S. Dixon, Sterlington; R. L. Moore and James Moore, Monroe, Sterlington route; W. A. Calloway, Bosco; O. S. McDonald, Monroe, route 2; J. M. Day, Monroe, Sterlington route; H. W. Griggs, Calhoun; J. W. Standley, J. W. Standley, Jr., and R. R. Martin, Monroe, route 3; E. W. Stinson, Monroe; W. A. Caldwell, Monroe; J. L. Sanders, assistant in soil conservation, Monroe; J. T. Branch, Monroe, route 3; R. A. Wasson, C. W. Davis and L. V. George, L. S. U. agricultural extension division; E. R. Strahan, parish agent and Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, home demonstration agent.

CENTRAL SCHOOL PLAY SCHEDULED ON MONDAY

An elaborate fairyland play, "The Maid and the Golden Slipper," will be presented at the Central Grammar school auditorium Monday at 8 p.m. by students of the lower grades of St. Matthew's Parochial school.

The play presents two step-sisters who are favored with social prestige and all that goes with it and who are scornful in their attitude toward Cinderella, less favored than themselves. But a fairy appears and bestows a beautiful gown upon Cinderella and golden slippers. Thus attired she wins the favor of the prince.

Lena Ford is to serve as accompanist and the cast of the play will be as follows: Mary Edith Breard, "Cinderella"; William Geiger, "Prince Charming"; Heloise Rimes, "Godmother"; Sarah Ann Hunt, "step-mother"; Roy Fay, Mary Loyce Darcy, "step-sisters"; Freddie Jean Endom, "Cupid."

There will be an extensive "court" for "Prince Charming," and "fairies" and "elves," will make up the cast. Many rehearsals have been given and the play promises to prove an event of much interest.

TWO ACT COMEDY PROVES SUCCESS

'Barbarossa Of Barbary,' Given At Northeast Center On Friday

A large and enthusiastic audience attended the production of "Barbarossa of Barbary," a two-act comedy at Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, Friday night. The comedy was a presentation of the music department of the college and was directed by Dallas Goss.

"Barbarossa," renegade Greek pirate, usurps the Algerian throne and becomes a self-appointed ruler. "Commodore Stephen Decatur," of the United States navy, confronts the buccaneer, demanding future safety of American ships in the Mediterranean. Then the plot becomes involved as "Decatur" falls in love with the pirate's daughter, who is betrothed to "Mulai Ahmed," wealthy ruler of Morocco.

The musical comedy included a cast of 50 students. The principal roles were played by John Winkler, as "Barbarossa;" Johnette Register, as "Althea, daughter of the pirate; Chester DeCuir, as "Commodore Decatur;" Sam Dunlap, as "Jim Crow;" Earl Heckler, as "Ferdinand;" Mary Katherine Penuell, as "Isabelle;" Elton Brazzeal as "Mulai Ahmed;" and Frank Smith as "Tingad."

Elaborate costumes were worn, patterned from the period in history that was represented. They were furnished by the L. S. U. school of music.

All parts were well taken and the musical numbers were all of high grade and suited to reflect much credit on pupils and instructors.

Dallas Goss, director, was assisted in rehearsals by Miss Grace Ingledue, instructor in speech, and by Miss Ada Bess Hart, physical education instructor.

Grew Worse Daily Before The Gly-Cas

Mr. Brannen, 71, Enjoys Good Health Again; Stomach, Bowels Fine, Eats And Sleeps Good, New Strength And Energy Returns.

"Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have ever taken that did exactly as it claimed," said Mr. T. C. Brannen, Shell Beach road, P. O. Box No. 837, Lake Charles, La. "For years my stomach had caused me constant trouble it seemed. I lost all control over my bowels, my entire system became terribly weakened and filled with poisons, many complications developed. My kidneys were soon affected, back pains added to my discomfort and a good night's rest or sleep was out of the question as I was up at all hours. Then malaria developed and reduced what little strength I had left. For years I tried many different kinds of medicines but met only with repeated failures—until Gly-Cas was recommended to me. I found it to be the one medicine that did not disappoint me."

"Gly-Cas actually surprised me how quickly it took hold of my case," he continued. "The poisons were driven out of my body, stomach and bowels regulated and my kidneys began to function normally. Those dreadful backaches are now in the past, eat and sleep good and new strength and energy is fast returning. No wonder people do not hesitate to recommend Gly-Cas—you can be sure of its results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. —Adv.

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Whence then cometh wisdom? and where is the place of understanding? God understandeth the way thereof, and he knoweth the place thereof. And unto man he said, Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding." (Job 28). The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Evil has no reality. It is neither person, place, nor thing, but is simply a belief, an illusion of material sense." (p. 71).

Eastertide continues through the Octave of Easter day, that is, eight days inclusive. Thus, all scriptures specially referring to the Resurrection may be read, and the opportunity for Communion may be still afforded; for it is required by general consent, as well by ancient canons, that every one should endeavor to receive Holy Communion at the Easter season. The Collect for the day, the first Sunday after Easter, known as "Low Sunday," reminds us that our Lord "died for our sins and rose again for our justification." It is of the latter that we think today in the closing of the Easter Octave. The whole teaching of the Epistle is Sacramental. "Whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world." The life of the risen and victorious Christ is given us in holy baptism. While the arresting note of the holy Gospel is our Lord's Easter greeting: "Peace be unto you." Peace is the thing our Lord came into the world to bring. The angels proclaimed it at His birth, and He brought it through suffering and shameful death on the Cross. There He made peace between God and man. That this peace may remain in the world, He said to His church on that Easter nite: "As my Father hath sent Me, so send I you." And when He had said this, He breathed on them and said to them: "Receive ye the Holy Ghost, whosoever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them, etc." "Go in peace, the Lord hath put away thy sins," is said to the penitent after confession. We shall, please God, receive this blessing also, which is the peace of God which passeth all understanding, which shall keep our minds and hearts in the knowledge and love of God and of His Son Jesus Christ our Lord. It is the ending of every Eucharist. Fraise God! Services for this Sunday are as follows: The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7:30 and 11 o'clock. The church is the greatest leader of thought in the world. There are 557,000,000 people professing the Christian religion. This army of the church can check the wave of crime if the members will cooperate with its ministers. The first thing to do is to protect your own family by erecting a family altar and then see that every member of the family attends all regular church services. The next step is to "win your neighbor." "When the ministers have the support of the entire community and every pew is filled, then a united effort can be made to eliminate crime." (Selected). The church needs you and you need the church. Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. The Twin City quartet will sing at the beginning of services. We are greatly encouraged over the prospect for our church and Sunday school as well as the B. T. U. during the month of April. Interest seems to be increasing all along the line of activities in which the church is engaged. W. D. Combs, the superintendent of Sunday school, expects a record attendance at the Sunday school hour of 10 o'clock. Lloyd Mercer, director of the B. T. U., is gratified with the interest shown in the new set-up of the organizations over which he has the direction, and expects to see a great time Sunday evening at the B. T. U. hour, beginning at 7 o'clock. To make the day complete, Rev. W. E. James will bring two messages Sunday. The subject of the message for the morning hour will be "The Seal of a Vow." After the morning message, the Lord's Supper will be observed. At the evening hour the message will be one of prophesy, the subject of which will be: "What of These Days?" Rev. James has a reputation for prophetic discussion and, we believe, will sustain interest in his subject in the minds of all who hear him. We would be glad to have you in our church at all services of the day. We are just common folks and a common cordial warm welcome awaits any and all who meet with us.

This is the first Sabbath in the church year. Is there any one who can predict the results of the twelve months ahead? God is with His people. When they adhere to the Truth, follow in the footsteps of God in the flesh, even Jesus Christ, and are faithful, He will bless. The goals reached are ours to determine. Under His direction we expect to make the worship periods tonics to the soul. He meets with His people. God is worthy of man's praise, adoration and entreaty.

The Lord's Supper will be observed this Lord's day. You are most cordially invited. And since our thoughts are turned to the Cross, the meditations will bear on Calvary. If you are interested in the Scripture texts, read Galatians 6:14 and Titus 2:14.

Have you indicated to the Diaconate the part you are to assume of the budget? "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Your financial support means lights provided, heat, choir, the ministry of the Word, a house in which to worship, orphans supported, aged servants of the faith provided with food, clothing and shelter, the religious training of youth in the tenement and mountainous regions, the preaching of the Gospel in China, Japan, Korea, Mexico, Africa and Brazil and the education of students who attend Presbyterian schools and colleges. Why not invest not less than five cents a day in this enduring work? If each member of the church will give the amount indicated the budget will be underwritten. God expects every Presbyterian to do his or her duty. On your own initiative why not call the church office now? Phone 1011, and reveal the portion of the budget you will assume.

We extend a cordial welcome to everyone, especially those who are affiliated with a Christian church. A portion of Holy Scriptures suitable for this time is found in the Book of the Acts, 10:34-41. The apostle Luke has incorporated in the Book of Acts several of Peter's sermons that are typical examples of the Apostolic preaching. In all of these sermons, the resurrection of Jesus Christ, which we celebrated on Easter, has a prominent place.

JERSEY CLUB TO DONATE HEIFER

Valuable Animal Will Be Awarded At Calhoun On April 6

One of the features of the Louisiana Jersey Cattle club meeting and dairy tour on April 6 will be the awarding of a three-month-old heifer calf to a visitor at the north Louisiana experiment station at Calhoun. The only requirements are that all registrants be bona fide farmers and that they be registered, giving both name and address, at the station by 2 p.m., and are present at 4 p.m. on April 6, when the drawing will take place. Farmers who intend to be present may register with Sidney Stewart, superintendent of the station, prior to the meeting, or at Louisiana Polytechnic institute, Ruston, on the morning of April 6.

The heifer calf to be given as a prize is from the experiment station herd, which has the highest average production of butterfat of any herd in the state, according to testing records. In 1936 this herd averaged 386 pounds of butterfat per cow. The calf's sire is "Jumbo Jinx," great proved sire at the head of this herd, and its dam has made 350 pounds of butterfat as a heifer. The dam is the daughter of a proved sire formerly at the experiment station that was the first bull in Louisiana to be proved by the new method of comparing all lactations of daughters with those of their dams.

The experiment station herd should prove of interest to farm visitors. It is milked twice a day and all possible feed and pasture are raised. The prize calf is thus a product of better dairying methods, which will be stressed throughout the day's program.

REPORT ON STATE ROAD WORK GIVEN

Louisiana Improves 1,630 Miles Of Highways During Past Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—(Special)—Louisiana completed the improvement of 1,630 miles of highways during fiscal 1936 and by the latest reports had either completed or was constructing 13,798 miles this year. These facts are disclosed in the April issue of "American Highways," a publication of the association of state highway officials.

Work finished last year included 155 miles of concrete roadways, 1,379 miles of untreated gravel construction, 43 miles of untreated macadam and 53 miles of roads drained and graded. The state also completed 21 bridges, with a span of more than 20 feet, and eliminated three railroad grade crossings.

Of highway work either completed or now under construction, this January, Louisiana had, according to the report, 2,305 miles of concrete roads, 11,156 gravel, 104 miles of low cost bituminous construction and 233 miles graded and drained.

Total road mileage in the state is 38,228, and in the state highway system, 18,235, which is extremely favorable as compared with other states of the nation, particularly other southern states.

Monroe Offers Wealth Of Advantages To Industries

Natural And Man-Made Facilities Give City Rich Trade Area

Climate, soil, transportation facilities, rich trade area, and payrolls, all combine to make Monroe highly sought for location for new business enterprises in the opinion of those who are in a position to know.

A certain real estate man sat down the other day in his Monroe office and unrolled a map of Louisiana. "One of the chief reasons why Monroe is forging to the front as one of the important cities of the state lies right there," he said as he pointed to his map outstretched before him.

"You may say that there is no competing city, north, south, east or west for approximately 100 miles. That means that Monroe has a trade area of 75 miles. In this area live an estimated 175,000 population. This area, too, includes some of the most fertile soil to be found anywhere. Monroe draws for her business upon this wide stretch of country. It is not simply the 35,000 population of Monroe and West Monroe that is depended on for support of the old established stores and the new ones that are fast locating here. It is the trade area that attracts.

"Then, this section has climate that is such as to give an almost complete 365-days-in-the-year growing season. The north has a limited season. Monroe has the potentialities of making great agricultural strides.

"Then look at the unsurpassed highways, rail facilities and air lines. These, too, are the basis of a great community. Monroe people often overlook these matters with which they are so well acquainted. The newcomer grasps them quickly.

"When a store management has decided to establish a Monroe branch, it sends down as an advance man, someone who can check up on the volume of traffic past a certain corner or on a certain block. Then the firm's real estate department gets busy and endeavors to acquire the business site that will evidently be suited to the handling of a large volume of business."

At this time there are five large concerns away from Monroe that are eager to get DeSiard street locations, according to reliable information.

And, speaking of DeSiard street locations, the same realty man stated that rents have been revised to bring them into line with the growth and importance of the city. Leases, he said, have been signed during the past eighteen months that in his opinion will total much more than a million dollars.

Fifteen drilling rigs were announced for removal to Lisbon, the new oil field 63 miles from Monroe. Local gas companies have extensive drilling campaigns in progress or to be initiated shortly.

Construction of homes is another indication of progress. Last year there were 220 new residences built in the two cities. There are virtually no vacant houses or store buildings to be had in Monroe or West Monroe today.

The month of March, just ended, showed a total of $72,023 in construction, including a total of 17 new residences.

Monroe residents sometimes bewail the absence of payroll. They forget that the largest mill of the kind is in Brownville, where there is an investment of 12 million dollars. Its annual payroll is one million and a quarter dollars and it expends an equal amount for pulp wood annually. One thousand men are employed in the plant and 1,000 more in the woods.

Its products, 600 tons a day of liner board and kraft wrapping and bag paper, are sent throughout the United States to Mexico, Cuba and Porto Rico.

Then, there is the tremendous sum invested in gas, carbon black and power plants in Monroe and Ouachita parish, employing many men and turning loose much money every week, month, and year.

Another payroll source, in the Monroe trade area, are the small sawmills of which there are many. All have fair-sized staffs of men and contribute to the filling of the weekly pay envelopes.

The real estate man asserted that figures cited by Fred Hanna, manager of the motor bureau, show that there are more than 24,000 automobiles in 14 parishes of northeast Louisiana. The estimate that the cost of a car, its repairs, and upkeep runs $50 a month on the average, gives a total of an unbelievably large sum for all of the cars each month. No less than $1,200,000 is the sum that would be required, if the figures are to be believed, for these cars. "And what keeps them up?" "Pay rolls in this Monroe trade area," was the answer.

We had to admit that the man must be right.

SAFETY STRESSED IN '37 CHEVROLET

Greafer Strength And Stability Make New Model Outstanding Car

A recognition that safety is one of the primary requisites in the modern automobile is reflected in both the body and chassis of the new 1937 Chevrolet, according to Chevrolet engineers and designers.

Safety provisions in the new models are of two general kinds, officials explained—those making for greater strength and stability in the product itself and those affording the driver a greater ease of control. A noteworthy array of both types of improvement is found in both the new Master and Master De Luxe models.

Under the head of improvements making for greater strength and stability, engineers explain, fall such changes as Chevrolet's new box-girder frame, lighter and stronger than the old YK frame which it supplants on the Master De Luxe series, and lower, due to the new hypoid rear axle drive gears adopted in both the Master and Master De Luxe series for 1937. The new frame, in combination with hypoid drive, makes possible a reduction of the car's overall height, which means a lowering of the center of gravity for more stable performance on the road, engineers pointed out. A sleeker, more graceful appearance is an incidental effect of this change, resulting from the lowering of the car.

Improved suspension contributes much to the stability of the new models, the designers declared. The rear springs in both series line up directly under the frame, eliminating torsion due to overhang and giving a better ride. Knee action, with its accompanying stabilized steering, provides maximum front-end stability on the Master De Luxe, while semi-elliptic front springs, with hydraulic shock absorbers and improved steering assure excellent roadability on the Master model.

One of the important refinements in the Master series, engineers declared, is a new shock-absorbing drag-link in the steering mechanism which results in a degree of steering ease entirely new in conventionally sprung cars. This link is essentially a "floating" member, the ball and socket at either end being spring cushioned on both sides. It operates to absorb practically all road impacts before they can reach the steering wheel, thus making an important contribution to driving ease and safety.

Strength and stability are both greatly heightened by the new unisteel bodies with solid steel turret top, found throughout both series. These bodies, designers explained, are lighter, more rigid and more permanently quiet. Their component units—turret top, side panels, cowl and rear assemblies and floor—are welded into a single unit about a structural steel framework, each joint of which is also welded. Outer shell members are welded to this skeleton as well as to each other. Scientific insulation does away with drumming, vibration and road noises.

Chevrolet's new bodies incorporate better visibility, the engineers said, with windows, windshield and doors being wider than in 1936. All models have safety plate glass all around at no extra cost.

Factors affecting the ease of control have undergone much refinement, officials revealed. There is improved steering, better braking through the perfected hydraulic brakes, smoother gear shifting with an entirely new syncro-mesh transmission and easier clutch action. Controls and instruments are relocated for greater accessibility and convenience, and especially noteworthy improvement has been made in the adjustable front seat, which now rises ¾ of an inch and inclines forward slightly when in its forward position, for the greater comfort of the driver.

Between the numerous safety features offered in the new bodies, and the increased safety factor throughout the mechanical units, engineers say the new Chevrolet provides greater security for driver, passengers and general public than any previous car in Chevrolet history.

Floods Increase Jungle Perils of African Run

SWOLLEN RIVERS and floods in Africa, like that which paralyzed the Ohio Valley here, couldn't stop a record-breaking official run from Johannesburg to London in an American-made automobile.

Unexpected hazards like the one above, with water flowing over the bridge instead of below, increased the dangers of the 8,600-mile trek through jungle and desert to the English capital. But two dauntless motorists got through, despite washed-out roads and torrential rains. Driving a Plymouth sedan built in the U. S. A., they completed the trip in 19½ days, thus chopping in two the former record of 40 days from the Rand to London.

Sonnie du Toit, former race driver, and J. Gleisner, Johannesburg journalist, are the new record holders. Their exploit reveals one of the most colorful endurance trials ever staged abroad with American cars. The route they took consisted of actual roads only one-third of the distance. All the rest of the way, their stock-model Plymouth sedan splashed and pounded over barely-visible tracks through desert and jungle.

Several times they were stopped by lions, and twice they frightened herds of trumpeting elephants which fled at the glare of their headlamps. They crossed 800 miles of the Sahara Desert in 38 hours—a new all-time record, French authorities say.

From Algiers, they crossed by boat to Marseilles. Ironically, they first became completely lost on the country lanes of Kent, between Folkestone and London. Suburban motorists put them back on the road to their goal before they lost any time.

STUDEBAKER GAUGE 'MEASURES' PAINT

And now, in this bewildering age of inventions, we have an electrical gadget so sensitive that it can accurately measure to an 'nth degree the thickness of lacquer or enamel on a steel surface. The first of these startling devices to make its appearance is now in service at the Studebaker corporation in South Bend, Ind., where it is being used in the paint division to check the thickness of the many coats of lacquer on Studebaker car bodies.

It's all very simple, claims Thomas Owens, operator of the new thickness gauge. Elementary, in fact! He explains that its operation is based on the simple theory of balancing an unknown electrical resistance against a known electrical resistance and reading the result from a dial on which a needle does all sorts of puzzling (to you) maneuvers.

The Studebaker people have found the gauge of splendid service in establishing an accurate check on the thickness of lacquer on all parts of an automobile body as it emerges with the final coat.

The Central Auto Co., 310 North Third street, is the local Studebaker dealer.

The letter "A" has stood at the head of the alphabet during the whole of the period that it can be traced historically.

MANY USED CAR BARGAINS NOW

Pontiac Official Points Out Reasons For Present Opportunities

Used car purchasers will get more for their money in the present market than at any other season of the year, declares C. P. Simpson, general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor Division.

This is due to the fact that the very active new car market being enjoyed since the announcement of 1937 models in November has brought an exceptionally high grade of trade-ins to the new car dealer's used car lot, Mr. Simpson said.

"A high percentage of cars now being taken in trade," said Mr. Simpson, "are only one year old. They are used cars turned in by people who make a practice of getting a new model each year as soon as it is announced.

"The cars they trade in are, accordingly, in very good shape; but because they are only one year old they command a high allowance. They are high priced used cars from the dealer's stand point, and they tie up a lot of his money.

"So in order to get his capital in liquid form, rather than have it represented by high priced used cars on his lot, he cuts the price well below what he might reasonably expect to get in the fast-moving spring selling season. He can't afford to have his capital tied up until April, the fastest-selling used car month of the year.

"It has been estimated that it costs a dealer one dollar each day that he carries a high priced used car in stock. Were he to carry such cars from this time until the first of April the net loss to him would amount to $90. So the smart dealer, rather than shoulder that extra burden of $90, cuts the price on the used car by that much to move it and release his money, which he needs for the conduct of his new car business.

"Our own organization is now in the midst of a national used car reduction campaign which extends through the month of January. As a part of that campaign we have recommended to our dealers that they cut prices on their used cars as much as 25 per cent in order to clear them out now, reduce their stocks and be in shape to take full advantage of the fast selling season in the spring.

"This is good, practical business sense. The dealer with used cars in stock in the middle of winter is like the haberdasher with straw hats to sell in August. The store keeper cuts the price on his straw hats to move them, and so does the smart automobile dealer.

"All this is to the advantage of the used car buyer. By making his purchase in mid-winter he gets a high priced used car at a bargain figure. He can get a much better used car now than he can get for the same money in the spring."

PLAQUEMINE RETAINS STATE BOXING CROWN

SPORTS.

GEORGE V. LOFTON, SPORTS EDITOR

MONROE, LOUISIANA, SUNDAY, APRIL 4, 1937

SPORTS CHATTER

By George V. Lofton

MR. DEAN'S LATEST

Mr. Jerome Herman Dean precipitated an argument Friday night that led to a fistic encounter (plus spikes) between some eighteen members of the St. Louis Cardinals and two sports writers. Needless to state, Mr. Dean and his mates were decisive winners. The Cardinals undoubtedly would have won even if there had been only two of them against two sports writers.

The point, however, is that Mr. Dean should be the last man in the world to sock a sports writer. His ingratitude is amazing.

The sports writers have kept Mr. Dean and the Cardinals in the headlines during the winter months when football and basketball ordinarily hog the space. Everybody knew or thought that Mr. Dean's holdout campaign was anything but on the level, yet the party of the first part sought out the newspaper boys at every opportunity and poured out his troubles—and defiance to Mr. Branch Rickey and the Cardinal bosses. His remarks were faithfully recorded and passed on to baseball fans who are always glad to gobble up a bit of gossip during the off-season.

Now that the ballyhoo season is over, and Mr. Dean is on the dotted line, he's ready to take offense at something written about him in the newspapers. Mr. Jack Miley, New York Daily News sports columnist, was the sockee. It would have been libellous if Mr. Miley had reflected on Mr. Dean's ancestors or called him a thief. Anything short of that would be legal in this instance. Therefore, Mr. Dean shouldn't have had much of a squawk coming.

The antics of Mr. Dean during the fag-end of the holdout season were beginning to bore the writers and fans alike.

SHORT TAKES

Old Carmen Hill, the bespectacled hurler who toiled for Pittsburgh's Pirates, Birmingham's Barons and the Louisville Colonels, accompanied the Purdue baseball squad to Ruston for the series with Tech. Carmen is working in an automobile plant and is merely helping out with the pitchers during a short vacation.

Dutch Fehring and his Purdue associates seemed to have a right good time. Dutch has lots of friends here and he's always welcome.

The Texarkana baseball club is called the Liners because of that imaginary line that runs down its main drag. As good a name as any, we suppose.

Eddie Hock and his Twins will be strangers when they get back from that exhibition tour. They return to the home base on April 19, just two days before the Cotton States schedule opens.

The Ouachita Valley league's difficulties have all been ironed out and everything's set for a big year, according to T. O. Dent, the Valley's efficient president. Four clubs—Brown, Crossett, Hodge and Bastrop—are backed by paper mills.

Pepper Martin made a big hit as a boxing referee the other night. The boys were too willing to hit the mat when struck or struck at, but Pepper wouldn't cooperate. "Get up, man," he'd tell 'em. "I can't count past nine."

DUBACH NINE WINS ITS OPENING GAMES

DUBACH, La., April 3.—(Special)—The Dubach Plungers, priming themselves for competition in the north Louisiana baseball rally at Ruston in which they won second place last spring, won two games this week, defeating Hico's nine, 16 to 6, Wednesday, and trouncing Simsboro, 8 to 2, on Friday. Earlier in the week, they had defeated Junction City, 30 to 7.

The Plungers, with every man back from last year's team, stand a good chance to win the district title this year. They are conducting a game-a-day schedule that will keep them plenty busy right up to the day of the tournament.

Next week the locals will meet the Louisiana Tech freshmen in two games, Bernice, Hico, Gibsland and Ouachita parish of Monroe.

A six-man pitching staff is holding up exceptionally well and is the main reason why the Plungers are able to go through such a strenuous schedule as maintained by Coach J. B. Moup.

Curby Jones, on the mound for Dubach, Thursday held Simsboro's Oilers to three scattered hits. Ray and Curby Jones and Earl Harrist shared the hurling chores against Hico.

NELSON SLUMPS TO TIE FOR 3RD PLACE WITH 213

Ed Dudley Also Passes Early Pace-Setter; Bobby Jones Posts 73

By Kenneth Gregory

Ralph Guldahl

The 25-year-old Missourian was seven strokes under regulation figures for the distance. He picked up four of them with birdies on the last six holes of his third round 68, to overhaul Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., the leader for two days.

While Nelson cracked under the par-shattering pace to take a 75 and drop into a tie for third place at 213, Bobby Jones, playing here for the fourth time since he abdicated his golfing throne in 1930, remained far down the list despite a nicely played 73, his best score in the annual tussle with the professionals.

Guldahl, victor last winter in the Augusta Open and the Miami-Biltmore in one of the greatest comebacks of recent years, caught up six strokes on young Nelson, who fired first and second rounds of 66-72.

Shooting a 71, one under regulation figures, big Ed Dudley of Philadelphia, the home course professional, also pulled ahead of Nelson to advance to second place with a total of 212. Nelson dropped back into a deadlock with Lighthorse Harry Cooper of Chicago at 213.

It was Guldahl, who had but one three-put green today, who missed a four-footer on the last hole that would have given him a tie with Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., for the National Open crown at Chicago in 1933.

The stage appeared set for a spectacular finish when the field of 43 moves away tomorrow on the final 18-hole lap of the $5,000 money scramble over a course designed by Jones for his annual frolic with the salaried players.

The three previous tournaments were decided in sensational stretch rallies. Horton Smith of Chicago, blond-haired veteran of the links who had dropped into 26th place, just two strokes ahead of Jones, won the 1934 inaugural and repeated last year by a single blow.

Jones said he played his best golf of the three days in manufacturing his 73, one over par, which advanced him into a tie for 28th place at 226, ahead of such well known campaigners as Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn., Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., and Craig Wood of New York.

It looked like a close battle over the final lap between Guldahl, Dudley, Cooper and Nelson. Although six strokes behind the leader, Johnny Revolta of Chicago was within striking distance with a 215 tally.

Victor Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., Italian, was in sixth place, a stroke back of Revolta. Both had par 72's for the third round. Sarazen, who blazed through to tie Wood in 1935 with the aid of his "double eagle," shot a 73 but with a 54-hole total of 227 was far out of the running.

Bracketed in eighth place with 217 totals were Jimmy Hines of Garden City, L. I., Al Watrous of Detroit, Leonard Dodson of Springfield, Mo., and Ky Laffoon of Chicago. Hines carded a third-round 68, four under

PHILLIES

The Wilsonmen will journey to St. Petersburg tomorrow to tackle the Boston Bees. They dropped a 6-1 decision to the McKechniemen in the previous encounter.

RED SOX

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—After today's exhibition game with Brooklyn was washed out, Manager Joe Cronin, alarmed by the Red Sox' lack of condition, forced his players to go through an hour's drill in the heavy rain.

CARDINALS

LAKELAND, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—A heavy rain broke into Manager Frankie Frisch's plans to shake up the Cardinal team for today's exhibition here with the Detroit Tigers. The game was cancelled and Frisch will try the new lineup and batting order against Rochester at Daytona tomorrow.

The Cards are slated to break camp Friday for their northward trek, which will send them to St. Louis for the spring series with the Browns two weeks from today. Dizzy Dean, Jim Winford and Ira Smith will face Rochester tomorrow.

DODGERS

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers are giving thanks these days that the winter trade reports involving Van Lingle Mungo didn't get past the "talk" stage. If there is one pitcher in the citrus circuit who is "right," the big Brooklyn fireballer is the man. He already has fanned 21 enemy batters in his Grapefruit league appearances, and, profiting by Manager Burleigh Grimes instructions on how to pace himself, appears ready to go the full nine innings any day. The Brooklyns' game with the Boston Red Sox was rained out today.

AMBERS TO FIGHT PEDRO MONTANEZ

Champion Likely To Be On Short End Of Odds In Non-Title Battle

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Lou Ambers, who has traveled a rocky road in the seven months he has carried the lightweight portfolio, has picked another tough spot for himself Monday night.

He goes against Pedro Montanez, sensational Puerto Rican knockout expert, in a 10-round non-title bout in Madison Square Garden and indications tonight are the fight will present the unusual spectacle of a champion on the short end of the betting odds.

Montanez, undefeated in 18 months of campaigning in this country, has been made a 7 to 5 choice in the Broadway spots. Unless there is a flood of up-state Ambers money over the week-end, these figures are likely to prevail when the glove throwing gets under way.

It will be Ambers' eighth trip to the post since he bounced the 135-pound crown off Tony Canzoneri's head last September. Since then he has won four, lost two and had one draw in his over-the-weight matches.

The defeats were administered by Eddie Cool of Philadelphia and Jimmy McLarnin, former welterweight champion. The best the "Herkimer Hurricane" could do against Enrico Venturi, the Italian contender, was a draw, with bouts with Charlie (Stumpy) Jacobs, Davey Day, Al Roth and Roger Bernard all were chalked up in the Ambers column.

In his 24 fights in the United States, 60 per cent of which he won by knockouts, the fast, shifty Montanez has met and turned back some of the leading lightweights, including Venturi, Aldo Spoldi, Al Roth and Steve Halaiko.

The fight is important to both boys. Ambers has signed to defend his title against Canzoneri May 7 and a loss to Montanez certainly would not enhance his value as a box office attraction. On the other hand, a victory for the Puerto Rican would establish him as the outstanding contender for the championship and force a return bout with the title at stake.

DALRYMPLE TO BE BROWN END COACH

Naming Of Former Tulane Star As Wing Mentor Completes Staff

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 3.—(AP)—Gerald Richard "Jerry" Dalrymple, all-American football star of Tulane university in 1930 and 1931 and rated one of the greatest players ever turned out in the south, has been named Brown university end coach by the athletic council, Dr. Frederick W. Marvel, director of athletics, announced today.

Dalrymple is in the city and will remain here to take up work with the Bruin wings when the spring work opens next Wednesday. He held a regular wing post at Tulane in 1929, 1930 and 1931, and captained the Tulane Rose Bowl team that went through the 11-game regular season of 1931 undefeated, then fell before Southern California, 21 to 12, at Pasadena on New Year's day, 1932.

The appointment completes the Bruin staff that will work under Head Coach D. O. "Tuss" McLaughry this fall. Denny Myers, University of Iowa graduate, has been reappointed varsity line coach; George E. "Eck" Allen, University of West Virginia alumnus, has been named varsity backfield coach, and now Dalrymple, Tulane graduate, has the varsity end post.

Dalrymple has coached at Southwestern Louisiana institute at Lafayette, La., in 1932, at Arkansas State Teachers' college in 1933 and 1934, and at Eastern New Mexico junior college in 1935. He was on leave of absence studying at Louisiana State university for a master's degree in physical education this past fall.

Cronin Expects Improved Position For Red Sox This Year

By John J. Romano

Joe Cronin had his ears pinned back by the critics who picked the wealthy Red Sox to win the 1936 pennant. A sixth-place finish was not to their liking. Big names like Jimmy Foxx, Bob Grove, Wes Ferrell and others looked like a cinch to have the Sox up there battling it out to the finish with the edge in Cronin's favor, with Lefty Grove whizzing them over the pan in his old Athletic days' style.

Cronin was blamed for insisting on playing when overweight and forced to favor a bad wrist. Had the quarter of a million beauty spent some money acquiring a younger player the failure of the Sox would not have been so bad. Now with the opening game of the 1937 season scheduled to break loose in two weeks the critics are stomping all over Joe's ideas and berating him for his determination to stay in the regular line-up. The protests are induced by the presence of young Bobby Doerr, who has shown himself to be a nifty second sacker and well worth a trial with his better known teammates.

Afraid Of Doerr's Youth

Jimmy Foxx is set at first base. Pinky Higgins is a changed man since taking on with the Sox, and will cover third. That leaves Eric McNair a cinch for the shortstop position with Cronin attempting to edge out young Doerr, Jack Kroner and Oscar Melillo. The latter pair are seasoned veterans and would do in a pinch. The same description applies to Cronin.

Then why the hesitation about turning the job over to Doerr and giving him a better mental outlook on the task ahead of him? His youth! Which in all cases is one of the rawest excuses made. If Doerr, rated one of the finest infielders in the Pacific Coast league, is too young for a big league job, then how do you account for Bob Feller stepping out of the sandlots and hurling as well as he did last year? Feller was only 17 when he was sent in against the St. Louis Browns. Freddy Lindstrom, Waite Hoyt, Mel Ott and a few others were younger than Doerr when called into the big show.

If that is Cronin's excuse he is certainly using poor judgment for a smart player and manager. Making Doerr fight for his job is taken with good grace. The youngster would hustle without further incentive. Stepping into the field with a sense of a proprietory interest in his job would make him more confident and certain of himself. This opinion has often been expressed by those watching the lay-out at Sarasota, Fla.

Garden Well Supplied

Cronin has a likely looking bunch of new men fighting it out for outfield berths. Roger Cramer is assured of his old place. Mel Almada has a job on his hands fighting off Fabian Gaffke, who got in some games last year, Buster Mills, Red Daugherty and Dominick Dallesandro.

Daugherty, a former Holy Cross star, is well liked and is doing everything asked in order to clinch a berth. His inexperience is against him, though, and he may be farmed out for further seasoning. Should Dallesandro make the grade he will become the smallest man in big league baseball. The five foot three inch mite gets plenty of distance behind his blows and covers plenty of space in the outfield. He is lightning fast and gets a ball away from him as speedily as any member of the club. His size is in his favor because he will give pitchers plenty of trouble getting the ball down where it will be called a strike should he not offer at it. Cronin has taken a shine to the little fellow and may keep him around in a utility role. He would be a good pinch batter to send up when a rival pitcher gets wild. That, plus his speed, would cause plenty of annoyance.

The Red Sox pitchers have the stuff. Zipping them over with plenty of smoke and his curve breaking in old style, Grove looks fit for a good season. Everything hinges on how Wes Ferrell is treated and how he reacts to being punished last year. Wes is every bit as good as he wants to be and it is all up to himself. Trade rumors have been circulating the grape-vine for the past month. Who knows but that a surprising announcement may be made any time and Ferrell's value to the Sox eliminated? That's how it goes in baseball.

All in all the Red Sox shape up as the mystery club of the American league. The only certain thing about them is that they won't wind up in the cellar!

TWINS BEAT OPELOUSAS IN EXHIBITION, 10-5

JACKSON SOLONS HERE MONDAY TO PLAY TEXARKANA

Monroe Overcomes Early Lead To Beat Indians; Play At Lafayette Today

OPELOUSAS, La., April 3.—Manager Harry Strohm's Opelousas Indians dropped today's exhibition game, the first of the season, to the Monroe Twins of the Cotton States league, by the score of 15 to 5.

The Indians took an early lead over the Twins behind the pitching of Tom Savage. The Tribe ran into trouble in the fourth inning when Monroe scored five markers. Frith, who relieved Savage, could not find the plate and was sent to the showers after he had filled the bags and walked in several runs. Burke, the last pitcher sent in for the Tribe seemed to check the visitors.

In spite of the one-sided score, the Monroe club was able to garner but ten hits off the three Tribe pitchers, three of which were home runs. Opelousas was credited with eight hits.

The Tribe will meet the Norco Essos in another exhibition game here tomorrow afternoon, while the Monroe club goes to Lafayette.

SOLONS HERE MONDAY

The Jackson Senators, members of the recently reorganized Southeastern league, a Class B circuit, will come here Monday for an exhibition game with Manager Bill Windle's Texarkana club at Casino park. The Monroe Twins, which beat the Opelousas Indians at Opelousas yesterday, go to Lafayette for their second exhibition game of their current tour today. Monday the Monroe club plays New Iberia, also of the Evangeline league.

The Texarkana club will return here immediately after the game with the St. Paul team of the American association at Texarkana today.

The Jackson club, still owned by George Brannon, well known figure of the old Cotton States league days, is managed by Ike Boone, the slugging outfielder who always has been a whale of a minor leaguer but who couldn't quite make the grade as a major leaguer. Ike used to hit minor league pitching with a vengeance and there was every indication that he could also pound the ball in the majors, but his fielding never was quite satisfactory.

According to reports, Manager Boone has gathered together a pretty good ball club at Jackson and the Senators are certain to give the Texarkana squad plenty of opposition.

Manager Windle's starting pitchers Monday depend upon the selections for today's game with St. Paul, but the rest of his lineup will be the same which played against the Twins in two games here.

LONGHORNS SEND VETERAN SQUAD AGAINST INDIANS

Veranda-Cain Scrap To Feature Attractive Card At Neville Arena

Boxers of Northeast Center of L. S. U., without competition for the past three weeks, will go into action again here Saturday night against the strong Texas university mittmen. The battles will be fought at the Neville High school arena, beginning at 8:15 p.m.

The engagement with Texas U. will mark the close of the boxing schedule locally and probably for the season. Coach James Malone said last night that a meet had been tentatively scheduled with Centenary at Shreveport, but no date had been set.

Every member of the Indian team is in fine condition, Coach Malone said, and can be expected to give his best Saturday unless some unforeseen illness or injury slows up the Indians this week.

Heading the card of eight bouts will be the light-heavyweight battle between Center's colorful Tony Veranda and Walter Cain of Texas. Veranda's fights here this year have been little short of sensational, win or lose, and fight fans can expect plenty of action from Veranda and Cain on Saturday. Cain, with a record similar to Veranda's, has won over half his bouts this year, is a hard hitter and a willing mixer, according to information from the Texas U. training camp.

The Snyder Parham-Bob McKinley battle should be another corker, from all indications. Parham has had rather easy sailing with the Indians this season, polishing off practically all opponents with ease, but Coach Malone believes that Parham will be up against his toughest opponent of the year when he meets McKinley. The Texan has had considerable experience in A. A. U. and college boxing and has experience equally convincing as that of Parham, who has held several A. A. U. and Golden Glove tourney medals.

An ex-marine battler will be matched with Monroe McNaughton, the rugged Rayville scrapper, who represents the Redmen in the 145-pound class. Billy Hume, who did plenty of fighting as a merchant marine before entering Texas university for some book learning, is slated as McNaughton's opponent.

Bumps Gormley, veteran bantamweight of Northeast Center, will also draw a veteran opponent in Bob Goodrich, 118, of Texas. Goodrich has stacked up a good record this year, winning six out of seven bouts.

Others to appear for the Indians will be Lavelle "Shorty" Green, 126; James Gremillion, 155; James Williams, 165; and "Red" Anders, heavyweight. All of these boys are good fighters and are well known locally. Green won medals as a boxer for Neville High school for two or three years before joining the Indians this year; Williams was a boxer of championship caliber for Choudrant a couple of years back; and "Red" Anders battled for about five years as a member of the Arcadia High school mitt team.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE OPENS BEFORE 40,000

SAN FRANCISCO, April 3.—(AP)—The Pacific Coast league officially opened the 1937 professional baseball season—and its 35th campaign—before 40,000 fans in four California cities today.

Largest opening day crowd, 12,000, packed the Seals' stadium here and watched the Seals knock over their home town rivals, the Mission Reds, 7 to 6.

At Sacramento, where Governor Frank Merriam was among the 8,500 fans, Seattle's three-run ninth inning defeated Sacramento, 6 to 4.

Los Angeles trimmed San Diego, 9 to 7, before 11,223 fans with a five-run splurge in the sixth.

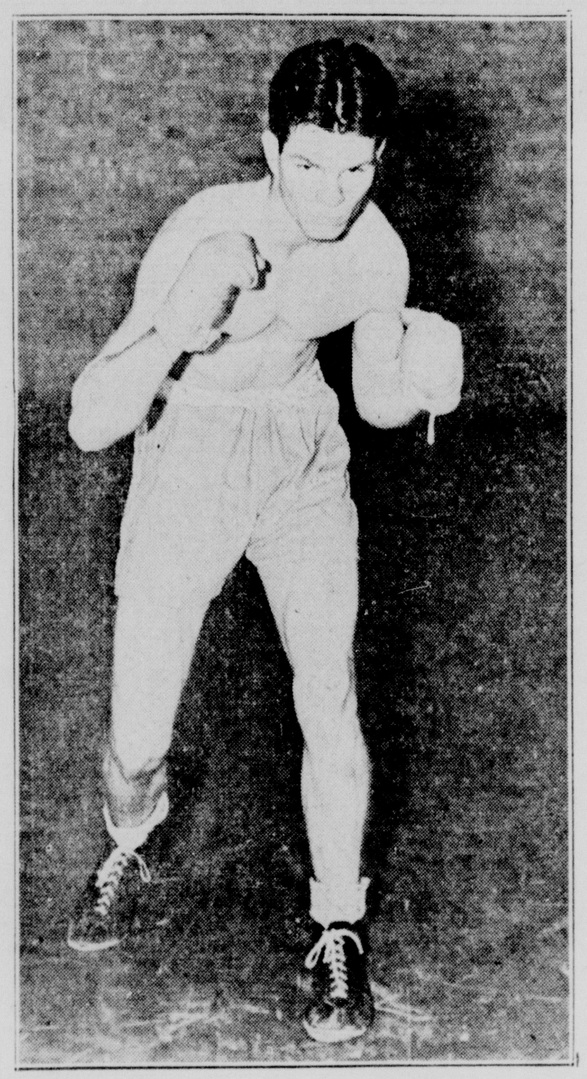

Heavy hitting by Nino Bongiovanni helped Portland's 1936 champs down Oakland, 5 to 3, at Oakland, where 8,000 saw the battle. Portland's Ad Liska turned in a four-hit twirling job.

HODGE TRAFFIC CLUB TO HOLD JAMBOREE APRIL 13

JONESBORO, La., April 4.—(Special)—The second annual Advance Traffic club jamboree and golf tournament will be held in Hodge, beginning April 13, and will continue for three days. Invitations have been sent to traffic men in every part of the United States and some two hundred visitors are expected to register for the three day jamboree sponsored by the Advance Country club of Hodge.

During the three day visit, a series of entertainments are being planned for the guests, including a golf tournament, a banquet and a dance, and the representatives from all the major railroad lines of the United States will find a diversion of entertainment furnished by the members of the Hodge fraternity of traffic men and golf enthusiasts.

TEXAS STAR TO FIGHT HERE

Bob McKinley, 135-pounder, is one of the stars of the Texas university boxing team, which meets the Northeast Center of L. S. U. scrappers at Neville High school arena next Saturday night. McKinley, who probably will tangle with Snyder Parham, Indian ace, has lost but one fight this season.

Laugh, Clown, Laugh--- Dodgers Getting Serious

By Harry Grayson
(NEA Service Sports Editor)

CLEARWATER, Fla., April 3.—Burleigh Grimes is attempting to take all the gaiety out of the Brooklyn camp, but Old Wire Whiskers' efforts to accomplish this phenomenon only have succeeded in making it funnier than ever.

The first thing Grimes did was bring in Percy Beard, the eminent hurdler and coach, to teach the Daffy Dodgers track methods on the bases. Although Babe Herman has long since departed, the Flatbush Funsters still require lessons in jumping over one another on the paths and in the outfield. That is one way in which to keep them from being "hoited," as they say on the banks of the Gowanus.

Professor Beard got the 6 foot 2½ inch, 195-pound Jack Winsett leaning on the correct foot and in the proper direction at first base as Exhibit A when someone asked what would happen if the pitcher at that instant took it into his head to try to pick Winsett off. The professor hadn't thought of that and could not reply.

Where for three years the easy-going Casey Stengel let the lads do pretty much as they pleased, Grimes sits in the hotel lobby and checks his hired hands in at night. Buddy Hassett isn't crooning for the guests this trip, but the Dodgers never fail to come up with something new and this spring it is a magician in the person of Pitcher Jim Peterson.

Peterson, once up with the Athletics and here from Louisville on trial, is a member of the American Society of Magicians. He pulls rabbits from a hat and whatnot, but has not yet mastered the art of making batters disappear.

Peterson no doubt will go back to Louisville if for no other reason than that he is a Dodger at heart. Grimes seems bent on getting rid of everybody who smacks of being a Dodger.

Grimes and Dressen Feud

Perhaps that is why the Missouri farmer sold Nick Tremark, a sideshow attraction standing only 5 feet 5, to Louisville. Tremark and his pet canaries were around for three springs under Stengel. He looked like the best fly-chaser with the outfit and his .379 missed the New York-Pennsylvania league batting championship by two points.

Grimes, who was tossed out of 20-odd games in the American association in 1936, already has a feud on with Charley Dressen and the Cincinnati club as the result of his second basing combination, Tony Malinosky and Cookie Lavagetto being put on crutches by Reds coming into second base with spikes high in an exhibition game here.

Cooler heads kept Grimes and Dressen apart, but Old Wire Whiskers takes nothing from no man and you can count on the fireworks starting for fair when the clubs start playing for keeps. It will be recalled that Grimes flattened Fred Haney last summer, and did his best to carve the Toledo manager with his spikes.

Van Lingle Mungo, apparently entirely satisfied, tops the Brooklyn bowling corps. The pitching shouldn't be too bad with Fred Frankhouse, Ralph Birkofer, Al Butcher, William Watson Clark, Harry Eisenstat, Luke Hamlin, Roy Henshaw and George Jeffcoat present to assist one of the really great hurlers of the game. Other pitchers here are Tom Baker, Walter Signer and Henry Winston.

Birkhofer, portly southpaw, and Lavagetto, who is to be given every opportunity at second base, came from Pittsburgh for Ed Brandt, veteran left-hander. Eisenstat, a left-hander with loads of stuff, has been taking optional courses at minor league extension schools for the past three years. He figures that a sore arm here last spring cost him a year of major league life.

Next to Mungo, Hamlin, large right-hander drafted from Milwaukee and formerly with Detroit, looks like the finest pitcher here. Hamlin bagged 19 games for a sixth-place Milwaukee club in 1936. Roy Henshaw, diminutive southpaw, and Shortstop Woody English came from the Chicago Cubs in the deal involving Linus Frey.

Baker got in 35 games last year to win only one while losing eight. Signer copped 16 games for Allentown in 1936, topping New York-Pennsylvania first-line pitchers in earned run averages with 2.96. Winston divided the season between Allentown and Brooklyn, with nothing much to show for it.

Seeks Sub Catcher

Grimes sees Babe Phelps down to 220 pounds, as an improved catcher. There never was any question about his hitting. Sid Gautreaux is the only other backstop in camp. Grimes would like to acquire a catcher between now and opening day.

The first string infield will be composed of Hassett at first, Lavagetto at second, Joe Stripp at third and either Malinosky, up from Louisville, or English at shortstop.

Winsett, home run king of the American association, has a stranglehold on left field. Johnny Cooney and Gilbrt Brack, another of the Louisville lads who accompanied Grimes to Brooklyn, are battling for center field. Heinie Manush and Eddie Wilson now are the leading candidates for right field.

Other outfielders are Eddie Morgan, who starred with Columbus in 1936, Jim Bucher and Randy Moore. Bucher and Moore are grand utility men. The former can play any outfield or infield position, so Morgan may go to an AA league for another year.

The Daffy Dodgers' comedy may be of a lower and rougher variety this season, but they will be interesting. In Burleigh Grimes, Old Wire Whiskers, the Brooklyn club has a fist-fighting manager of the old school.

EFFORT TO MOVE CUP MATCHES TO PHILLY DEFEATED

Bitter Row Precipitated As New Yorkers Are Charged With Monopoly

By Scotty Reston

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—An attempt by Samuel H. Collom of Philadelphia to move the North American zone Davis Cup finals from Forest Hills to Philadelphia was defeated by the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association today after a bitter two-hour debate revealed a deep cleavage in the association ranks.

Collom, president of the association in 1928-29, charged that the Davis Cup committee of the U. S. L. T. A. is trying "to centralize all tennis here in New York" and accused them of not being able to see "beyond the tall buildings of Manhattan."

After reading a bitter four-page criticism against the association, Collom moved that the matches be taken from the West Side club to the Germantown Cricket club, where they were held last year. The motion was seconded by John C. Perry, Jr., also of Philadelphia. After a long and heated discussion, President Holcombe Ward of New York ruled the motion out of order. Ward said the award of the matches was the job of the Davis Cup committee and not in the province of the executive committee.

Explaining that he was in Florida when the Davis Cup committee met and that he inadvertently did not receive the association announcement of the meeting, Collom asked that the committee hear his argument anyway.

"I tell you the taking away of the match from the Germantown club is a blow to amateur tennis in this country," Collom said, "and the manner of its taking away sows the seeds of discord among us.

"Is New York to stage all the international matches because of supposedly greater money returns?" he asked.

"If you want to centralize all tennis here in New York, and stifle tennis growth in other parts of the country, let us do it openly in our duly elected body," he suggested.

Collom started the argument a week ago by charging that members of the association were trying to establish a New York tennis "dictatorship."

He was criticized in today's meeting by Jones W. Mersereau of New York for "judging the case in the newspapers." Mersereau characterized these tactics as "just plain bad taste," according to Collom.

The North American zone finals will probably bring Australia and the United States together May 29-30-31. The United States team meets Japan at San Francisco, April 30, May 1-2, and on the same dates Australia meets Mexico at Mexico City. The Americans and Aussies are favored to win.

DEAN BRAWL STIRS FLORIDA TRAINING CAMPS

FRISCH DISMISSES HOTEL BATTLE AS CLOSED INCIDENT

Miley And Dizzy Tell Their Versions Of Assault On Sports Writers

TAMPA, Fla., April 3.—(AP)—A couple of dabs of iodine and a black eye remained the only visible reminders of "the battle of Tampa" tonight as Frankie Frisch dismissed the matter with a wave of the hand.

"It's a closed incident," said Frisch. "It's all washed up as far as I'm concerned. We're still one big happy family and we're going right along with our work."

His St. Louis Cardinals, including Jerome Herman Dean, whom witnesses credited with precipitating the scrap with a couple of sports writers in a hotel lobby here last night, were doing just that.

So was the other principal in the affair, Jack Miley, sports columnist of the New York Daily News. He wore the iodine on a small cut on his head. Irving Kupcinet of the Chicago Daily Times, still another participant, was on his way back to Chicago, continuing his work, also. He sported the black eye.

The Cardinals went today to Lakeland where a drizzling rain sidetracked their scheduled game with the Detroit Tigers. The idle time afforded ample opportunity for post mortems but the St. Louis club had little to say about the battle.

Miley gave his version of the affair, which witnesses said saw him and Kupcinet battling with virtually the entire Cardinal club in the crowded hotel corridor, in his column in the New York Daily News today.

Dean, he said, approached him about adverse sports comment and said "I wish you would not write those things about me."

There was more conversation and Miley said he asked, "What are you going to do about it?"

Dean, he said, "swung a lady-like left hook. The thing grazed my eye. There were 18 Cardinals behind him. They all swung. Some of them had bats, others had spiked shoes, and a few had only their fists."

Somebody, he said, reached around Dean and connected with Miley's eye. Another youth, Miley declared, "reached over, tapped me with a pair of spikes on the skull. 'How do you like them, chum?' he said."

Dean was docile today but smiling.

Somebody informed him that they understood Miley had made remarks about "busin leaguers" in connection with the Cardinals.

"I guess Mr. Miley don't want none of the Cardinals," replied Dean.

Training camps hummed with speculation about what Frisch might have said to Dean about the affair.

One version, unconfirmed from any source, had it that Frisch inquired of his loquacious pitcher, "Haven't you any better sense than to risk your pitching arm in taking a sock at a sports writer?"

There appeared to be some question also as to who hit Miley to start the free-for-all that made the lobby of the Tampa Terrace hotel a bedlam for three minutes last night.

Dizzy said he didn't remember.

"Maybe I hit him; maybe I didn't. I ain't quite sure. Maybe I just threw a curve," he said.

At any rate, observers felt that Frisch's reading of the riot act to the team last night had calmed some of the troubled temperaments who entered the fray.

"There's not going to be anything more like this," Frisch told them.

Best accounts said the trouble started when the St. Louis team returned to the hotel, still in playing uniforms, after a game with Cincinnati.

Miley and Kupcinet, were in the lobby. Dean, accompanied by Mrs. Dean, were entering an elevator.

"Isn't that Mr. Miley standing there?" she asked.

Dizzy reckoned it was, and then approached Miley to make sure. After telling Miley he didn't like some of the things written about Dean, arms fanned the air. Then, best accounts said, Kupcinet and Paul Dean joined in, followed in a twinkling by most of the members of the Cardinal squad. During the melee, Miley was struck with the shoes.

Six Records Fall As Track Stars Compete At Austin

BLAINE RIDEOUT BEATS VENZKE IN UPSET OF RELAYS

Francis And Tomlich Win Two Firsts In Annual Texas U. Carnival

By Harrell E. Lee

AUSTIN, Tex., April 3.—(AP)—Athletes from the mid-west and Texas cracked six meet records and equalled two more today in the university division of the Texas relays, first major outdoor track and field meet of the year.

Sam Francis, Olympic weight man and all-American fullback from the University of Nebraska, and Al Tomlich, sprinter and hurdler from Wayne university of Detroit, divided individual honors with two first places each.

Francis contributed a record-blasting shot put of 51 feet, 11 3-4 inches, boosting the mark he set here last year by 2 3-8 inches.

His good left arm then won the discuss with a throw of 146 feet, 10 1-4 inches.

Competing without any outdoor practice, Tolmich showed the same form he displayed in the indoor meets last winter. He tied the meet record of 14.3 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles and won the century in 9.7.

Blaine Rideout of the bespectacled Rideout twins, freshmen at little North Texas Teachers college, Denton, turned in the biggest surprise of the day when he finished a half step ahead of the celebrated Gene Venzke of Pennsylvania in a one-mile exhibition.

The time of 4:20 was considerably slower than previous marks of the Pennsylvania Olympian. Young Rideout set the pace all the way and had just as much left for the final lap as Venzke.

The Rideout percentage standing was reduced to .500 when Wayne finished far behind Don Lash of the University of Indiana in the 3,000-meter run. Lash sliced 6.4 seconds off the seven-year-old meet record by breasting the tape in 8 minutes, 37 seconds. The old mark of 8:43.4 was set by Nutnam of Iowa State.

Wayne Rideout had beaten Lash in the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans last winter but had no chance today when Lash opened up with his famous sprint about 250 yards from the finish. His margin at the end was about 20 yards.

The other new meet records were contributed by Jack Vickrey, University of Texas high jumper; Alton Terry, Olympic javelin-hurler from Hardin-Simmons university, Abilene, Tex.; the Drake two-mile relay team of Horstemeier, Patterson, Mahannah and Cole, and Frey of Michigan State, whose team placed first in the one-mile race.

The Drake quartet shaved four seconds off the mark of 7:51.6 established by the Louisiana State two years ago. Frey's time for the mile was 4:26.2 The previous best time in the team race here was 4:28.4, made last year by a Kansas State runner.

Terry's javelin throw of 219 feet 8 1-2 inches, broke the former mark, established eight years ago by Bevans of Kansas State Teachers, by 12 feet, 7 inches to replace one of 6 feet 5 5-8 inches established by Philson of Drake in 1935.

Rice made far the best showing in the sprint relays. The Owls' time of 41.5 seconds in the 440-yard relay equalled the record set last year by the University of Texas speedsters.

Rice and Texas tied in the half mile relay and the Owls won the sprint medley and finished second to Kansas State in the mile relay.

Sharing surprise honors with Blaine Rideout's triumph over Venzke was the showing of Fred Wolcott, Rice freshman hurdler from Snyder, Tex. Running in the junior college and university freshman division, Wolcott topped the 120-yard high sticks in 14.3 seconds, equalling the time made by Tolmich.

WE HOPE THE PROF IS RIGHT, BUT—

DENVER, April 3. — (AP) — Shorts, supplementing bloomers for feminine athletes, have changed the attitude of youth toward sex, Alfred O. Anderson, president-elect of the Central Physical Education association, said today.

"You don't see the boys standing around any more staring at girls' legs on athletic fields," he explained.

"Co-physical education—Contests or exercise for both boys and girls—promotes clean-mindedness.

A staunch advocate of women's physical education, Anderson assured in an interview that despite increasing emphasis on athletics, "American girls are not destined to become strong-muscled Amazons."

"We have gone far beyond the idea of muscle building," he said.

"We will still have with us the 'stream-lined' girl although her shoulders will be square instead of the 'bottle-neck type.'

"Girls who take part in athletics develop poise, confidence and personality," he said. "They learn to understand boys better by learning to take defeats."

The St. Louisan strongly favors "co-physical education." "The day when athletic fields are built solely for boys is at an end," he stated. "Mixed games have an important bearing on youth's attitude toward sex."

WINNING GOLF
by Lawson Little

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 3.—Our average week-end, business man golfer starts to get figgity about ten-thirty Saturday morning. He wonders if his stenographer can get all the papers ready for his signature so that he can dash out to the country club in time to have a hasty cup of coffee and a sandwich before teeing off with his foursome.

That is a regular occurence every Saturday morning with many golfers throughout the country. The same player, after making all his first tee bets, accompanied with the usual arguments, steps up to the ball tries to give it a bash that would send it two hundred and fifty yards straight down the fairway.

Get Feel Of Club First

Unfortunately the ball will not behave like the office force and will not be forced around the course to the proper positions. The professional golfer is a player who might be able to get away to a good start without any practice shots, but certainly rare is the case when the average player can. Before any professional tournament, the observer will notice that the practice tee is lined up with players hitting shots out to the shag boys. The reason for this is that these players realize the value of "getting the feel of the club" before the round begins.

If a top amateur or professional does not have this little warming up session before his round, he will certainly start off the first few holes with the greatest of care—paying particular attention to striking the ball easily, squarely and straight. If the pin is tucked behind a bunker on the first hole, the smart player will play for the center of the green until he has become "ready to go," that is, fully warmed up. This usually takes from four to six holes if the player starts cold.

We all know how the baseball pitcher warms up before he goes into the box; how the football player runs up and down in front of the bench before he enters the game. If trained athletes feel it necessary to warm up before they engage in active competition, it seems to me that it is even more important for the average player to do so.

Lacking Warm-Up, Start Easily

If the player finds that he can not get to the course in time to spend, say, fifteen minutes on the practice tee, he should surely start his round easily. He should use utmost care and, at times, great will power to put himself in the right frame of mind. If he has hurried from the office, driven his car as fast as consistent with safety, then jumped into his clothes in a rush and gobbled a bit of food, his mind, speech and actions will be in a speedy tempo. Now through his own will-power he will have to settle down and make all of his actions directed to the golf ball slower. A better policy still would be for the player to sit down on the first tee bench and relax, remaining absolutely still and silent, for about five minutes. Then he can step up to the ball, use caution and begin his game.

Remember if the address is fast and jerky, the rest of the swing is almost sure to follow in the same tempo. A slow deliberate address with a slow smooth start on the backswing will cater to a smooth deliberate delivery of power at the correct time.

BASEBALL HAS ITS SIT-DOWN STRIKE

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)—Number one holdout Red Ruffing settled more firmly in his chair today—as determined as ever to "sit it out" unless the New York Yankees meet his demand for a $16,000 contract.

The latest ultimatum from Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the world champions, that "Ruffing will sit in Chicago all year before I'll pay him more than $15,000," failed to shake the big righthander who pitched 20 of the Yankees' 1936 victories.

"Colonel Ruppert says I can sit all summer before he'll pay me more than $15,000," Ruffing snapped. "Well, that's all right with me, only I say I'll sit right here until he offers me $16,000. That's $15,000 for pitching and $1,000 for pinch-hitting."

"I want to play ball, but if $1,000 can keep me out, I'll stay out," he added.

Ruffing said he had gone to no bother about making plans for the summer, provided he and the Yankees remain apart on the $1,000 point. He owns an apartment building and plans to devote his time to managing it.

RUPPERT RAGES

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, New York Yankees owner, was back at his desk today, coughing like a seal and raging at his lone holdout, Red Ruffing.

"Ruffing will sit in Chicago all year before I'll pay him more than $15,000," stated the colonel. "And I'll tell you another thing: Until he's in perfect pitching shape, he won't get paid at all."

Ruppert said it was his intention to pay Ruffing only for the number of weeks he is in tip-top shape.

"He can't jeopardize the club's chances by staying out like this and think he can get away with it," said Ruppert.

This is the only sober note in the colonel's tune about the Yankees, however. He thinks they're sure to repeat, and picks Cleveland as their most dangerous opponent.

"The Yankees have never been in better spirit than they are right now. They really look like world champions," he said.

Ruppert praised the condition of the entire squad, but was especially enthusiastic about three young pitchers, Frank Makosky, Steve Sundra and Lack Larocca. He also praised the work of Lefty Gomez, Joe Dimaggio and Lou Gehrig, all of whom held out beyond the start of the training season.

"I tell you, Gomez looks like the Gomez of old. He's in wonderful condition, and he's burning them in the way he did when he led the league," said Ruppert.

TECHMEN DEFEAT PURDUE IN FINAL

Bulldogs Even Four-Game Series With Boilermakers In 6-4 Victory

RUSTON, La., April 3.—(Special)—Defeating the Purdue university baseball team 6-4 here Saturday afternoon, the Louisiana Tech nine split a four-game series with the Boilermakers, who started their trip back to Lafayette, Ind., immediately after the contest.

Tech won the opener with Purdue 8-6 Wednesday, and lost to the Boilermakers Thursday and Friday by scores of 13-3 and 2-0, respectively.

S. X. Lewis, Tech pitcher, did all the hurling for the Bulldogs in both of their victories against the Indiana squad. Saturday he went the route without walking a man, fanned nine and fielded eight assists.

The scoring began for the Bulldogs in the first inning, when Gardner took a walk, stole second, made third on the catcher's error and was batted in by Adkins' triple.

Gresham, Horton and Lewis annexed three Tech runs in the fifth. A three-base hit by Lewis scored Gresham and Horton, both of whom singled.

In the sixth, Burt, with a base hit, and Adkins, with a double, were driven home by Carroll's bingle, to wind up the Bulldogs' runs.

A hit by Baker in the second finished a run by Breslin, who clouted a three-bagger. The second Purdue counter came in the fifth, with a homer by Pitcher Rosser. Rosser's double in the sixth brought in Lucas and Krause.

Centenary is next on Tech's baseball schedule. The Gents and the Bulldogs will play in Shreveport Wednesday, and at Ruston Thursday.

'PLAY DAY' TO BE HELD AT CENTER

High Schools Invited To Send Ten Girls To Compete In Event Saturday

The Women's Athletic association at Northeast Center of L. S. U. has designated, April 10, as "play day," in which the various high schools in this section of the state have been invited to send their delegates. All activities will take place in the college gymnasium and on the campus.

According to Miss Ada Bess Hart, instructor of women's physical education at Northeast Center, inter-school competition has been emphasized for years in all the high school sports with the result that only a small number of girls have had the opportunity of learning to play with other schools. The purpose of "play day" is to promote a program of physical activities for all students rather than a chosen few, to stress enjoyment of the various sports, to minimize the emphasis placed on individual accomplishments, to learn the principles of new games and to carry them back to the respective schools where they might become an integral part of the play program, she said.

All activities included in the "play day" program are those in which the average girl can compete. The activities will include volley ball, softball, tennis, horseshoe pitching, archery, soccer, folk dancing, relays, and stunts.

"Play day" will be culminated by the selection and coronation of the "health queen," and a trophy will be awarded. Each school sending ten girls must designate one as a candidate for this honor. It is necessary for the entrant to bring a duplicate of her health examination card. In addition to the cards, the girls will be judged by good posture, normal weight for age and height, appearance as to wholesomeness and vitality, and regular attendance at school.

Miss Hart said that all schools who are interested in participating in this event must file their entry blanks on or before Wednesday, April 7.

Braddock And Gould Make Motor Tour In Chicago Area To Pick Camp

CHICAGO, April 3.—(AP)—James J. Braddock and Manager Joe Gould traveled nearly 300 miles by motor today inspecting prospective training camp sites near Chicago preparatory to the world heavyweight champion's departure tomorrow for the Wisconsin northwoods.

No definite selection was made of the spot where Braddock will do his boxing for his title bout with Bomber Joe Louis June 22. Instead, Manager Gould will remain in Chicago to make a further inspection while the title-holder heads north for his conditioning camp at a private estate on Lake Sissabagama six miles from Stone Lake, Wis., 420 miles north of Chicago.

Happy he has a fight in sight at last, Braddock is anxious to start his five weeks of roughing campaign. Although his plans do not call for boxing, he is taking along two sparmates.

Manager Gould intends to have Braddock's sparring partners pursue the same routine the champion does so they will be well conditioned helpmates when the real training begins.

Mike Jacobs, who holds a long-term contract on Louis' services and who will be associated with Joe Foley in promotion of the Comiskey Park bout, left for New York today after closing radio contract details and discussing seating plans for the contest. He plans to return within 10 days.

Promoter Foley announced the Illinois State Athletic commission had approved the intermediate prices for the championship affair. With ringside seats selling for $27.50, the prices will be scaled down to $3.30 for the lowest price seats. Intermediate seats will sell for $6, $11 and $16.50, including tax.

V. F. W. OBSERVES 7TH ANNIVERSARY

More Than 200 Members And Visitors Present At Big Celebration

More than 200 members and visitors were present Thursday night when the Rodney J. Hobbs post and auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign wars celebrated the seventh anniversary of the founding of the unit in Monroe.

The session was opened in regular ritualistic form by the advancing of the colors, the singing of "America," and the invocation by the post chaplain, H. L. Morrow. Just before the invocation, a short memorial service was held in memory of William V. Neese, member of the post, who died suddenly on Wednesday. The post commander and chaplain conducted this service.

The post dispensed with the regular order of business at the sound of the gavel, and the commander extended a welcome to the guests and visitors, and then introduced Captain G. N. Mills, department historian, past post commander, and post historian, who gave a concise history of the post, mentioning that the post was organized on April 13, 1930, with 13 members. Captain Mills was high in his praise of the generosity of Fred Stovall, who donated the post colors, which are still in use.

C. A. Hunt, past department commander, gave an interesting account of the accomplishments of the post, and introduced the charter members of the organization. Mayor Arnold Bernstein made an address congratulating the post on its seventh birthday, and assured the post of his continued cooperation as in the past. Mayor Bernstein decorated A. C. Thomasson, of Alta, and William A. Dunn, of West Monroe, with the Purple Cross, recently awarded by the war department, to these men for wounds received in action.

Roy B. Griffin, senior vice-commander of the department of Louisiana, and post commander of the Boone-McDowell post in Bastrop; Theodore Robinson, commander of Hanna Richardson post, Winnsboro; Jim Buie, state representative from Franklin parish; Ted Madsen, commander of Ouachita parish veterans' council; J. W. James, state representative from Columbia; Ben J. Rosenthal, J. Brown department hospital chairman; W. D. H. Rodriguez, city commissioner; Lawrence Himel, deputy chief of staff, department of Louisiana; Mrs. Lena Morrow, president of the Hobbs post auxiliary; Mrs. C. A. Hunt, Mrs. Lena Morrow, president of the Hobbs post auxiliary; Mrs. C. A. Hunt, Mrs. Mildred Duggon, department hospital chairman; Mrs. Verne Cooper, president of the auxiliary of the Bastrop post; Mrs. Lawrence Himel, president of the auxiliary of the Rayville post; Mrs. Flora Wilson, of Alexandria; Mrs. Scharff, Dr. C. L. Mengis, commander of L. B. Faulk post, Monroe; Dr. Irving J. Wolff, coroner of Ouachita parish; L. J. Fish, commander Alexandria post; Representative T. J. Coenen, Richland parish; Judge David I. Garrett, Judge W. M. Harper, Frank W. Hawthorne, district attorney; Representative Barlow Inabent, Monroe.

Just before the meeting closed, Mrs. Morrow, president of the ladies' auxiliary, with appropriate remarks, presented the post with a beautiful birthday cake, bearing seven candles, and the V. F. W. insignia. The cake was sent to the disabled veterans at the veterans' hospital at Alexandria.

Appetizing refreshments, consisting of chicken spaghetti and Italian salad with cold drinks were served to all, under the direction of B. B. Logan, senior vice-commander, Sam Inzina, and Carmelo Tarnatore.

PUBLIC FORUM

STATE TRAFFIC LAW

To the Editor:

Since act 296 of 1928 of Louisiana was adopted, regulating traffic upon the public highways of Louisiana, apparently not 50 per cent of the inhabitants of this state know the said act contains the following language:

"Provided further, that whenever pedestrians are using the highways they shall be required to walk on the left hand side of the highway." That provision is contained in the last clause of section 20 of said act.

It is a very useful and vital requirement if observed. A person walking down the highway on the right side, with his back to the cars approaching him is not in position to aid in protecting himself or to get out of the way in case he has so blocked a narrow highway as to cause meeting cars not sufficient space to pass each other. I find that not over one-fifth of the colored people living out in the country observe or seem to know that the law requires them to walk on the left hand side of the highway so that they will meet the traffic coming on their side. I know of any number of accidents which would have been avoided had pedestrians been observing this law.

Evidence Conflicts With School Book Tale On Tragedy

By Willis Thornton

(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Why was Lincoln murdered?

A silly question! Every school child knows that it was because John Wilkes Booth, a half-crazy actor, thought he could become a hero and serve the southern cause he loved, by the fatal pistol shot.

That is the verdict of history, the story as told to numberless school children for the 70 years and more since the tragic event.

Today a more sinister story is being projected. In a new book, "Why Was Lincoln Murdered?" the story of that tragic night of April 14, 1865, is told in a new light, with neglected, forgotten or concealed evidence presented in a new array, leading to new and startling possibilities.

These imply that the full story of the events surrounding Lincoln's assassination never has been told, probably never will be told. They imply that there were strange circumstances surrounding and overshadowing the event, suggesting that Booth was not a lonely and half-mad conspirator, but that he had powerful sympathizers if not actual backers.

That those backers were not southerners at all, but men powerful in the ruling clique of the federal government. And that there are strong suggestions that Lincoln's secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton, knew more about the outrage than he ought to have known.

Otto Eisenschiml is the author of the book. He is a manufacturing chemist, and not a professional historian at all. Born in Vienna, his father was an American Civil war veteran, and brought Otto to the United States in 1901 as a young man. Otto heard the stories of the war from his father, became interested in them.

Why Did Grant Leave?

Ten years ago, one question especially began to interest young Eisenschiml. It was this: Why did General Grant, who had been expected to accompany the Lincolns to Ford's theater on the fatal evening, leave Washington at 6 o'clock that evening, canceling his engagement with the president?

None of the regular explanations satisfied Eisenschiml, who went deeper and deeper into the story of Lincoln's tragic end, until he had spent 10 years in research. At one time he had as many as nine investigators looking up disputed points for him.

The result of all this was the new book which raises such disturbing questions. Eisenschiml doesn't claim to have proved a case against anybody or to have found anything that would stand up in court before a jury. He simply presents the long series of inconsistencies and strange circumstances that surround the event, and asks, Why?

The Washington policeman, John F. Parker, assigned to guard the door of the presidential box, was inexcusably, almost unbelievably, negligent. Yet he was never prosecuted, not even dismissed from the force until three years afterward, and then ostensibly for another cause.

There is reason to believe that Lincoln visited the war department on the day of the assassination, asked for a certain man there to be detailed as a personal aide and bodyguard for the evening, but was brusquely refused by Stanton.

Assassin's Name Withheld

The official news of the shooting, controlled by Stanton through his military censorship, was inexcusably late in being sent out. There was a still-unexplained breakdown of commercial telegraph wires during the evening, and the name of Booth as the assassin was not sent out by the official telegraph until too late to make the morning papers, though long before that time Booth's identity was pretty well established.

The hunt for Booth was so bungled that if he had not broken his leg he would have gotten away clean. The one road Booth would seem most likely to take was least guarded. At least one search party, hot on the trail, was suddenly recalled.

The actual capture was made by a party of soldiers directly under Stanton's war department. Despite orders to bring Booth in alive, and the fact that 25 soldiers had him cornered in a barn, he was shot dead. Herold, the dull little fellow who accompanied Booth in flight, was brought in alive, but was one of the four hanged.

A diary found on Booth's person had many leaves missing. Whether Booth himself might have torn them out or someone removed them later, no one knows. But they were the dates before the crime, and the book was in Stanton's charge between Booth's death and the trials.

The accused in the assassination plot were shackled in such a way that they could not talk or write. And although others appeared to have aided Booth's escape at least as much as the eight who were sentenced, only the ones who might have been enough in Booth's confidence to know of his connections were hanged or otherwise silenced. John Surratt, believed to have been second to Booth in the conspiracy, escaped to Canada and abroad, and was only brought back after nearly two years, though his whereabouts were known.

Lincoln Stood In Way

A radical Republican element in the north disagreed violently with Lincoln's conduct of the war and his plans for the peace. They saw that if the seceded states were restored to their former position, radical Republican domination of the national scene would be lost. Lincoln stood in the way of any who were ambitious under such a scheme of things. As Vice-President Johnson was then generally believed a weakling and a drunkard, Stanton stood a good chance to become No. 1 man if Lincoln died suddenly.

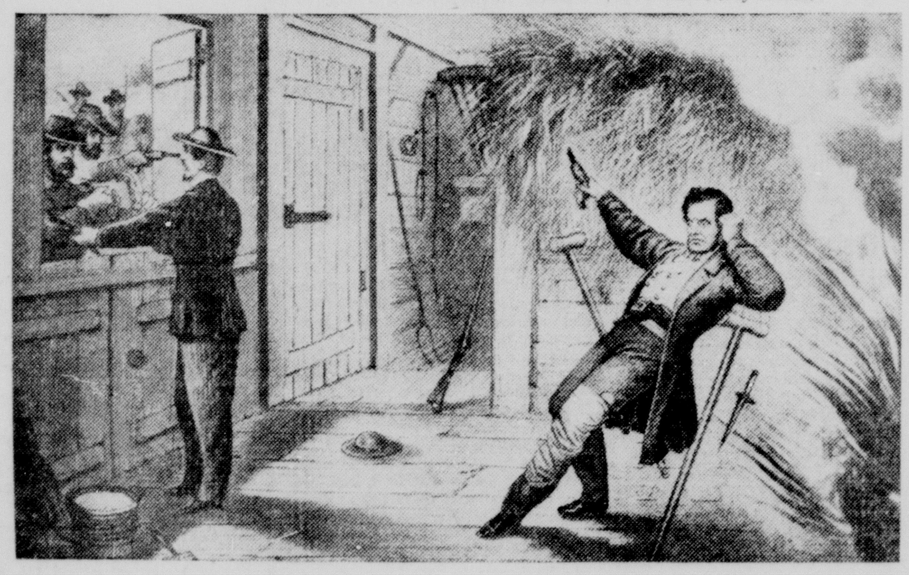

Johnson himself knew Booth, and the very morning of the assassination Booth called at Johnson's hotel and left a card with him, perhaps with deliberate intent to cast suspicion on him.

Eisenschiml's book accuses no one, and admits freely that it makes a complete case against no one. But its long list of unanswered questions, strange coincidences and overlooked facts, give strength to his main thesis: That the whole truth about this dark page of American history is not yet known, that there are many aspects of it that may never be known, and that exact and final truth even after 70 years of close attention and study, is an elusive lady indeed.

THE MURDERER'S DOOM. MISERABLE DEATH OF J. WILKES BOOTH, THE ASSASSIN OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN

Shot through the head by Sergeant Boston Corbett in barn on Garrett's farm, near Port Royal, near the Rappahannock, April 25, 1865.

* * * * * *

(There are a number of historical inaccuracies in this contemporary print of the drama at Garrett's barn. At the moment of the shooting, Herold was out of the barn, and not on the point of surrendering. The horses of the pursuing party were far away and would not have been visible even had they been nearer, as it was dark. The structure had no openings except the front door; the shooting was done through a crack in the wall. The building was filled with furniture, not with hay. The immaculate clothing, the well-made crutches, and the falling dagger, all represent additional historical errors.)

MRS. HAHN WILL BE HONOR GUEST

National Legion Auxiliary President Will Be Given Banquet

Announcement is made that Mrs. Oscar W. Hahn, of Wayne, Neb., national president of the American Legion auxiliary, will be the guest of honor in Monroe, April 21. She will arrive by way of Natchez, where she will be met by the following delegation: Mrs. L. J. Hulin, department president of the American Legion auxiliary; Ernest Hawkins, commander of the department of Louisiana; Roland Cocreham, department adjutant, and Dr. C. L. Mengis, grand chef de gare of the Forty and Eight.

They will then proceed to Monroe where a banquet will be held at Hotel Virginia, on the same night at 8 o'clock.

At this banquet officers and members of all posts and auxiliaries of the American Legion in the fourth and fifth congressional districts will be invited.

Plans originally were for a visit to Shreveport by Mrs. Hahn but later this was called off and for this reason it is urged that a large delegation attend the Monroe banquet from Shreveport and other places in the fourth district, stated Mrs. C. L. Mengis, president of the auxiliary of the L. B. Faulk post.

On the day following, Alexandria will be visited by Mrs. Hahn, who will then continue on to Baton Rouge for a dinner given by the auxiliary there.

On April 23, Mrs. Hahn will be escorted to New Orleans where further entertainment will be accorded. She will later proceed to San Antonio where an extended schedule has been arranged for her entertainment.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE

CALHOUN, La., April 3.—(Special)—Many improvements have been made at the north Louisiana agricultural experimental station this spring. The driveways have been graveled and the dairy rooms have been painted white, with red roofs. A new sign is being posted on the grounds, all of which adds much to the attractiveness of the place.

MAYOR BELL BUYS LUMBER CONCERN

Mayor C. C. Bell, of West Monroe, has just purchased from the Monroe Building and Loan association the mill, plant, office building and grounds occupied by the C. C. Bell Manufacturing company, Inc., on Coleman avenue, in that city. The purchase price was not given.

This plant, one of the largest of the kind in the Twin Cities, was erected by Mayor Bell, and was one of the important business enterprises of this section. With the coming of the depression, the plant was of necessity closed and it eventually reverted to the Monroe Building and Loan association, holders of a mortgage on the property.

For the past several years, Mayor Bell has operated the plant under a lease. He is now purchasing the property and is assured that with the revival of business throughout the country that this plant will again experience a resumption of past activities.

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—(AP)—Fifty cents a bale of the losses from Friday's session on the cotton market were recovered today in comparatively active trading.

Recent liquidation apparently had run its course and buying interests were in charge of dealings during today's two-hour session.

The upturn carried May to 14.38, July to 14.28, October to 13.79 and January to 13.84. Middling spot cotton was ten points higher at 14.78.

A better trend to the weather indicated nearly all sections would be planting by mid-April, but the opinion persisted that in many sections the new crop would be off to a late start.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, April 3.—(AP)—Selling dried up in today's brief stock market session and selective recoveries of fractions to 2 points or more prevailed in exceptionally quiet dealings.

Further improvement in United States government securities, evacuation of Chevrolet sit-downers, signing of a wage-hour agreement in the soft coal industry and belief an amicable conclusion of the Chrysler union negotiations is imminent helped to bring in mild support for the list.

At the same time many issues were unable to get very far in front and there was an assortment of losers at the close. Oils and specialties, with a few steels, motors and rails, pointed upward. Coppers and rubbers were virtually neglected.

Wall Street appeared to be still under the influence of administrative frowns on mounting costs of durable goods, but yesterday's shock seemed to have worn off to an appreciable extent. Transfers were around 700,000 shares.

Commodities were mixed. May corn at Chicago jumped to another 12-year top and other grains exhibited strength. Rubber and copper futures backed away. Cotton was inclined to edge forward.

Shares on the upside most of the time included Skelly Oil, Texas Corp., Seaboard Oil, Phillips Petroleum, Continental Oil, Standard Oil of Indiana, Shell Union Oil, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Chrysler, General Motors, Deere, Westinghouse, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio, Omnibus Corp., Crown Cork, International Nickel and Cerro de Pasco.

Slipping a shade either way were U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Standard Oil of N. J., Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, North American, Electric Power & Light, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, General Electric, Boeing and Montgomery Ward.

Backward were Monsanto Chemical, Johns-Manville, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, National Lead and Lone Star Cement.

Besides expectations of another lift in petroleum prices, oil shares had the benefit of forecasts that, for the country as a whole, increases in crude stocks to record peaks are likely to end this month. It was thought total production for April will be about the same as it was in March.

While the majority of the carriers displayed little vigor, surveys in this department indicated total traffic for the second quarter will show as wide a gain over last year as the 15 per cent upturn believed to have been registered in the first three months.

Rayville Scouts Sell Birdhouses To Buy Uniforms

By Mrs. W. D. Cotton
(Morning World Correspondent).

RAYVILLE, La., April 2.—(Special)—"Will you buy a birdhouse, mister? . . . I'm a Rayville scout and my troop is selling them. . . . Oh, sure! Any kind you like. . . . Paint it any color you want. . . . Yes, I'll put it up for you. . . . Yes, sir, I've made a birdhouse before. . . . You will? You'll buy one? . . . Gee, that's swell!"

Will you really buy a birdhouse from a Rayville Boy Scout? Will you help a boy to buy his uniform? That's why he wants you to buy a birdhouse.

"What's so important about a uniform?" you say. Don't you remember the time when you were half-grown and the kids were going to have that costume party in the big barn? And don't you remember how you made a big secret of what you were going to wear? You almost forgot about "Slim," didn't you? He was the boy who didn't come.

Know why? He didn't have a costume to wear and you didn't know, did you, that he peeped in at the windows and watched you play?

"What's that got to do with birdhouses?" Plenty! There are boys in the troop who have to go to the scout meetings and be with the kids who have on the full scout uniform and they have to wear the same shiny breeches and the worn shoes that they have had on all winter because daddy can't spare the money to dress them up. Now, do you have any doubt that they would welcome a chance to make some extra money and buy that uniform that they have wanted so long?

Do you realize that a small town offers very few advantages for school boys to get an odd job? Of course there are jobs helping in grocery stores and delivering packages, but not enough to go around for the boys who want them.

Here's a chance for these boys to learn something useful. The old law that the devil finds work for idle hands to do, has never been repealed. Here's a chance for you to give a helping hand toward starting a sound industry for these scouts. Who knows what it may lead to?

Two Saturdays ago the scouts spent the day at Red Bud Lodge, the country lodge of Dr. and Mrs. John C. Calhoun, a few miles out of Rayville. The occasion was a program sponsored by the Rayville club women on the conservation of our Louisiana birds and wild flowers and at which one hundred guests were present.

Now, you've heard of a bird singing for his supper? Well, these scouts each made a bird house to pay for their dinner. Before they left that afternoon each boy climbed up, put his birdhouse up in the tree that he selected. And to look up and see a group of trees holding varied colors and shapes of these little houses was a pleasing sight.

The Rayville scouts have faith enough to believe that you are interested in them, but— There is a story told of a little girl who knelt and prayed that the Lord would keep the sparrows out of the trap her brother had set for them in the back yard. Finishing her prayer, she went out in the back yard and kicked the trap to pieces. They not only need your interest, they need action; so, won't you buy a birdhouse, mister, from a Rayville scout?

Anagrams were known to the Greeks and the Romans and became popular throughout Europe in the middle ages.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

A RECORD IN THOROUGHNESS.—Professor Thomas Hasselbach of the University of Vienna, who lectured daily in theology from 1453-1495, restricted himself to the subject of the first chapter of Isaiah for the whole period of 42 years during which he occupied the professorial chair. Before he died, he expressed his vexation at having been unable to exhaust this subject.

POLICE JURORS MEET APRIL 15-16

Two Governors Will Address State Assembly At Natchitoches

Final arrangements for the annual convention of the Police Jury association of Louisiana, in Natchitoches, have been completed, and the most interesting program in the association's history has been provided, according to announcement received from L. F. Clawson, secretary, whose offices are in Shreveport.

The dates of the convention are Thursday and Friday, April 15 and 16, with registrations of delegates beginning the afternoon of the 14th. Interesting features of the convention include a bridge and bingo party for the ladies and a stag party and floor show for the men on the evening of the 14th; a barbecue luncheon for all delegates at the Natchitoches fair grounds; a banquet in the evening in the Louisiana State Normal college dining hall on the 15th; and a trip to the salt mines at Winnfield on the 16th, with luncheon down in the mines.

Of special interest are the addresses of Governor Leche of Louisiana and Governor Earle of Pennsylvania, guest speaker of the convention, with a state-wide radio hook-up for both addresses, from 10:45 to 11:45 a.m., on the 16th.

Although reservations have exceeded expectations, according to officials of the association, the city of Natchitoches has assured the executive committee that adequate accommodations are provided for everyone and a Natchitoches committee on arrangements has been set up to provide for reception of all delegates on arrival and taking care of their comfort while at the convention.

25 SCOUTS WILL VISIT JAMBOREE

Only Eight Places To Be Filled In Ouachita Council's Quota

The following 27 scouts in the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout council have signified their intention of attending the national jamboree to be held next June in Washington, D. C., according to an announcement made Saturday to all troop leaders by Scout Executive Olan H. Black:

Robert Graves, Percy Benjamin, Jr., Jim S. Folk, Bruce Tyner, Ralph Linton, Robert Colvin Todd, all of troop 56, Tallulah; J. B. Swanson, troop 28, Monroe; Harry Bell, Floyd Stone, Ernest Steen, Robert Wood, Tim Henninger, all of troop 31, Monroe; Fred Thatcher, Jr., James Perrine, troop 13, West Monroe; Mack McInnis, Buford Goss, John Wilhite, Eugene Tull, troop 67, Sterlington; Sam Hartman, troop 16, Farmerville; Henry Butts, Albert Ehlert, James Ehlert, troop 50, Waterproof; Billy Spyker, troop 3, Bastrop; Gary Eugene Kidd, R. F. Meredith, Jr., troop 9, Columbia; Gerald Harigill, Thomas Rushing, troop 43, Rayville.

Mr. Black declared that only eight more places are left to be filled and he stated that the council will try to place all late comers with some of the other delegations such as Shreveport, El Dorado or Vicksburg.

"We can't assure them a place even then so the best plan is to arrange for a place in our troop while there is yet time," Mr. Black said.

WELFARE MEETING PLANNED BY LEGION

A joint child welfare meeting of the American Legion and auxiliary will be held at the L. B. Faulk post Monday at 8 p.m. Dr. C. L. Mengis, post commander, urges that all convention committee chairmen attend, as this will be the last meeting for deciding plans for the entertainment of the state convention.

Dr. Scott Hamilton will give an illustrated lecture on crippled children, and Dr. William Guerriero will explain the Monroe maternity clinic, recently established. Dr. H. C. Hughes will discuss "Visual Defects."

Each person who attends the meeting is asked to bring an article of food or clothing for the "shower" for George Phillips, caretaker of the legion home. Mr. Phillips was assigned from the relief office to the task of caring for the legion home and grounds, and has done such a capable job, Legionnaires declare, that they desire to give him a big "shower" to express their appreciation.

WPA Counts Noses To Learn Former Positions Of Clients

Data Provided For Placing Relief Workers In Other Activities

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(Special)—When federal relief rolls were at their highest, the works progress administration counted noses all around to find out what Louisiana's 79,425 citizens on relief had done before hard times struck.

The puopose was to get a concrete outline of cold statistics setting forth the job at hand in getting these people back to work or training them for other employment. Although the census of relief was taken in March, 1935, and despite some difficulty with interpretations of "unemployed," "inexperienced," "employable" and other terms, the survey is still considered an excellent cross-section of the whole problem.

Louisiana's unemployed run contrary to the general pattern found in other states. Farmers usually form the largest class on relief, but in Louisiana their total is way down the list. Largest group in the state was found to be that of domestic and personal service workers, of which 16,712 were counted on relief. Most of them were negroes, 14,799 of them. The group includes such workers as 7,146 family servants, 4,492 home laundresses, 625 cooks, 213 barbers and beauticians, etc.

The 2,359 farmers counted was a comparatively small number. The group was divided about half and half between white and negro farmers and included 1,758 farm laborers and 579 "farmers."

Unskilled laborers out of work formed another large relief classification. This group, too, was predominately negro, there being 10,965 of them. This class included such smaller groups as 1,907 who had been in the lumber and furniture industries, 2,291 longshoremen and stevedores, 1,964 building laborers and helpers, 1,055 odd job men, etc.

One of the largest classifications in Louisiana was that formed by inexperienced persons, in other words, people who had never done any work for pay. These were mostly women. An inexperienced person was described as one who "performed no gainful work of any kind" for the preceding 10 years. This includes young persons looking for their first job and old folks who have retired but want to work again. In the state there were 13,670 on relief in this plight, 5,496 of them between 16 and 24 years old.

Manufacturing industries let 10,659 on Louisiana relief rolls, it was found. This classification covered considerable territory, including 1,405 deliverymen, 228 watchmen, 558 cabs and bus drivers and chauffeurs, 5,566 "operatives," 1,001 from food and beverage industries, etc. These were all semi-skilled workers.

From the construction business came 6,008 skilled and 4,181 semi-skilled workers. The first classification included such groups as 2,022 carpenters, 1,070 painters, 168 electricians, 83 foremen, etc., while the other covered types of workmen such as 539 firemen, 323 equipment operators, 2,316 truck and tractor drivers and 121 pipe layers.

With totals getting smaller going down the list of classifications, the census found 2,754 on relief who had formerly been skilled workers in industry. This included 422 foremen and inspectors, 486 sawyers, 662 mechanics, 259 locomotive engineers and firemen, 250 machinists and others.

Getting into the "white collar" sections of the relief rolls, 2,417 sales persons were found on relief in the state. From retail stores came 1,477. There were 180 real estate and insurance agents, 179 "newsies," 16 traveling salesmen and 77 canvassers.

Former office workers formed a relief classification of 2,336 including 951 clerks, 335 stenographers, 299 bookkeepers and accountants, 127 telephone operators, etc.

From business and industry came 1,183 proprietors, managers and officials, of which group the largest number—383—were hucksters, peddlers and junk dealers. Others enumerated were 289 retail dealers and managers, 68 building contractors, 19 from trucking and cab companies and 7 foresters.

The classification of professional and technical workers covered a large territory and totaled 1,141 for Louisiana. Included were 371 teachers, of which 9 were from colleges, 223 musicians and music teachers, 143 trained nurses, 96 technical engineers, 42 clergymen and religious workers and small groups of artists, actors, architects, lawyers, etc.

TO ADDRESS INSTITUTE

Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the Monroe First Baptist church, will deliver an address at 3 p.m. today at the Tabernacle negro Baptist church, located at Breard and North Ninth streets, in connection with the closing of a Bible institute that has been conducted there by W. B. Fleming, director of education of the home mission board of the national negro Baptist convention.

ROBERT GERMANY GIVEN PROMOTION

WASHINGTON, April 3.—(CPS)—President Franklin D. Roosevelt today approved the recommendation of the line selection board for the promotion of Lieutenant Robert W. Germany, Jr., of Monroe, La., from junior grade lieutenant to lieutenant in the United States navy. The Monroe navy man was one of 270 officers in the grade of lieutenant, junior grade, to be promoted to lieutenant.

Lieutenant R. W. Germany is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Germany, 1504 Fairview avenue, Monroe. He graduated from the old City High school in 1926 and entered the United States naval academy that year, from which he was graduated in 1930.

After graduation he was assigned successively to transport service on the Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and other battleships. His last assignment has been on the Lamson, one of the new type destroyers.

In a letter received Saturday, Lieutenant Germany wrote his parents that he will return for a visit to Monroe about May 1, and will spend the month here, leaving from here direct for Annapolois, where he will pursue advanced studies.

Father Of Mrs. C. H. Sisson Killed In Auto Mishap In California

Mrs. C. H. Sisson, wife of Police Secretary Sisson, yesterday received word here of the death of her father, L. L. Wilson, about 55, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident near Long Beach, Calif. Mr. Wilson had been on a hunting trip, according to information obtained here, and was on his way home when the accident occurred.

Mr. Wilson lived 38 hours following the accident, but died late Friday night at a Riverside, Calif., hospital without regaining consciousness, according to the message received here.

Details of the accident were unavailable here. Funeral services will be held Tuesday, probably at Lemore, Calif., birthplace of Mr. Wilson.

FRUIT CROP DAMAGED

CALHOUN, La., April 3.—(Special)—According to Robert Wright, horticulturist at the north Louisiana agricultural experimental station, the fruit crop has been seriously damaged by cold weather this season. Most of the station trees were in full bloom in February, but several hard frosts played havoc with them. Mr. Wright said: "We expect a very small peach crop and practically no pears." A new four-acre peach orchard has been planted on the farm for experimental work.

Several Monroe Residents Planning European Tours During Summer Months

Rotary Convention One Of Highlights

Zimbalist Concert Outstanding Event Of Past Week; Reception Given At Whitfield Home

By Eve Bradford

WE take the great hurdle between late winter and advancing spring and wonder what the summer of 1937 is going to do for us. Shall we be sailing the high seas, motoring over highways, resting beside the seashore or climbing mountain peaks? Shall we perhaps forgive France all her sins of omission and commission and look up the world's fair of the arts in Paris? The plans and the pictures are something magnificent; all that spacious sightly terrain between the Trocadero and the Champ de Mars, with the lovely Island of the Swans thrown in.

The most enthusiastic person we know of for the nonce, is Enola Rogers who with Jack will sail from New York May 22 on the Roma for literally every chief port in the Mediterranean—Madeira, Gibraltar, Villefranche, Genoa, Algiers, Naples, Isle of Capri and then via motor to Nice where they will attend the International Rotary convention. On to Monte Carlo where we sincerely trust Lady Luck will smile upon them—a tour of the French and Swiss Alps and then to Paris for the exposition—on to Brussels and Antwerp with austere old London the last lap of a journey that for sheer beauty, adventure and allure is incomparable. The jolly part of this wonderful tour lies in the fact that Enola and Jack will have six wonderful companions—Charlie and Mable Wallace, Helen and John Sherrouse and Ed and Louise Seymour. They will all walk up the gangplank of the Roma together and again when they sail for home July 1 on board the Normandie. Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Masur will join them in Nice for the convention but their itinerary stretches to the North Cape and along the shores of Sweden. Not until August will they turn their faces homeward.

Dora Anish is off for Michigan during apple blossom time. Dora's summer looms up big with promise as she is turning her thoughts toward old world traveling with Paris the first port o' call, and then on to Germany with its heart-warming Gemutlichkeit.

Melba Liner, hurrying to the Frances hotel yesterday to keep a luncheon engagement, was wearing what we consider one of the smartest and most colorful models in her truly beautiful trousseau—it resembled in colors, the coat worn by Joseph of Biblical fame. A short wool jacket of dubonnet, a skirt of navy blue, a blouse of paisley and a most fetching off-the-face hat of navy straw. A cunning paisley handkerchief was tucked in the tailored pocket of her jacket. Another lovely model in her trousseau—strictly feminine—is a dusty pink crepe frock, free of trimming and vastly becoming. Still another frock, greatly admired last week at an afternoon tea was a long, diaphanous model of apple green chiffon—the very essence of springtime.

The highest social moment last week was the Zimbalist concert. Like a chord lost from some heavenly chorus was the music that poured from the violin in the hands of this great artist. All too soon the music died away and the audience, transported to high heaven on the waves of melody, came back to the prosaic every-day existence. The breath-taking finger work in "The Witches Dance" almost brought the audience to their feet. Here Mr. Zimbalist disclosed the full compass of his technique and an extensive one it proved to be. For the last number, but one, Mr. Zimbalist reserved a little tour de force—a single-handed rendition of "Sparks" in which his right hand plucked at the strings in forceful, dynamic manner. Again his all-encompassing technique went sailing and soaring.

Later, at the Henry Whitfield home, Mr. Zimbalist was a much surrounded person—extremely dignified and courteous and quite an aristocratic man with large, fine eyes, aquiline nose, sensitive face and the most beautiful pair of hands you ever gazed upon.

We saw Mike Easterling and his two handsome sons utterly absorbed with the music at the Zimbalist concert. So enraptured were these youngsters we decided they must have inherited a love of music from their talented mother. Carl McHenry and his daughter, Cornelia, were also drinking deep at the fount. They are such wonderful companions, these two. Swimming together, walking together and concerting together, life is just a wonderful adventure. However, it takes Frances and Mary Wilton to complete the happy family circle.

Imagine the thoughts of Frances Keenan's guests when she served those "April Fool" cocktails last week. Reaching for the sparkling glasses containing the delectable looking mixture, the first sip convinced the guests that something was wrong. For their hostess, a recognized connoisseur, to serve anything but the perfect drink seemed beyond comprehension. The appearance later of the genuine aperitifs broke the tension and caused considerable merriment.

A thrilling moment in the R. W. Germany home when the news arrived yesterday announcing the promotion of Robert, Jr., to a full lieutenancy in the United States navy. Friends who have known Robert since infancy are equally as thrilled as the family.

Helpful Hints On Tasty Meals

"I'm tired of serving ordinary meals," said a Monroe hostess, "I want my guests to remember my party because of some unusual food. I don't want to serve a Norwegian meal or a German meal or a Chinese meal; I want an American meal with something added to it that will lift it out of the ordinary class.

So this hostess set out to learn just what unusual foods can be bought in Monroe. For the benefit of other hostesses who have a yen for the unusual, a few of the possibilities she discovered are listed:

Pickled walnuts sent from England in glass jars. They are pickled sour and for serving are usually cut into four parts. The shell as well as the kernel is eaten. These are delicious when served with Stilton cheese or with meats. Pickled walnuts can be served as a salad—add to them a few capers and serve with a French dressing. (Capers are little buds from a plant canned in France and used in many kinds of salad and appetizers.)

Hearts of artichoke are canned in olive oil in a flat glass jar. They can be eaten with lemon juice or with a French dressing seasoned with cheese, or they can be dipped in an egg batter and fried in deep fat.

Rooster combs are startling, canned in jelly made from the liquid in which they are stewed. They are skinned and put up in glass and are used sometimes in cocktails.

Cruppo chips are made from a combination of arrowroot and fresh shrimp. Raw, they could be mistaken for potato chips, but before serving they must be dropped into a pan of hot, deep fat. They spread and puff and increase many times in size while cooking. These can be served with salad or soup or as the base for canapes.

Date syrup is something to use when appetites are tired of maple syrup on waffles and pancakes. It can be used for cakes, ice creams or sundaes.

Hearts of palms, three in a can, come from the Isle of Reunion off South Africa. They are a rare delicacy, either as a salad with French dressing or split, heated and served with a Hollandaise sauce in which has been stirred unsweetened whipped cream.

Ketovi caviar is red, in contrast to the usual black caviar, Ketovi caviar comes from Russia, and each egg is as large as a pea. It is gay when used to garnish deviled eggs, salads or hors d'oeuvres; it is also used just as is ordinary caviar.

Pearl onions are seeds about the size of peas. They have a delicate flavor that suggests chives. To prepare them for bottling they are placed in a bag of salt and shaken until the outer skin is loosened and can be separated. This delicacy comes from Holland.

East Indian chutneys, described as "condiment, relish, thick sauce and pickle," can be had either unsweetened or "sweet, fruity and hot." Chutney is made from mangoes, figs, sultanas, raisins and other fruits, seasoned with ginger and lime juice and many oriental spices. Chutney can be used as an appetizer, with salads, with the meat course or to "finish off" a meal.

Coconut honey is "a modification of an ancient Philippine delicacy served at fiestas," but now is, for the first time, offered on the American market. It is made from the juice of fresh shredded coconuts. It can be used as a syrup or for cold drinks or for desserts.

Interest High In Bristow Lecture

Gwen Bristow, a reporter on the Times-Picayune of New Orleans from 1925 to 1933, had her first novel, "Deep Summer," published in New York March 30. The day following publication of her book Miss Bristow began a lecture tour of Louisiana, directed by Miss Annette Duchein, lecturer on books for the state university.

The idea for the story of the book grew out of Miss Bristow's travels and experiences on assignments throughout the state, during which she became intensely interested in the early history of the river communities. The book deals with the life of typical Louisiana settlers in approximately the period from 1770 to 1810, and is rich in descriptions of the homes, historic events, plantation and river life, disasters and triumphs of those significant years. The economic changes brought about by the introduction of sugar cane and cotton into indigo-growing plantations are traced, as well as the almost humorous political uncertainties of the inhabitants during a period when Spain, France and the United States all laid claim to the territory.

In order to authenticate the background of "Deep Summer," Miss Bristow searched the state archives, read old family letters, newspapers and magazines of the period, and tried to recreate in her imagination the actual conditions under which the early settlers lived and worked.

Miss Bristow came to Louisiana on a temporary job between terms at the Columbia university school of journalism. At the end of two months her strong desire to stay was fulfilled when her position was made permanent. She was born and brought up in South Carolina and was graduated from Judson college in Marion, Ala.

Miss Bristow's appearance in Monroe is being awaited with keen interest by members of the book circle organized by Miss Duchein.

Pine Top Site Of Beautiful Flowers

Cooley Sanatorium Located In One Of Most Attractive Spots In Parish; Vandals Take Blooms

Ouachita's finest social project is the building and operation of the tuberculosis sanatorium at old Pine Top, which Mr. G. B. Cooley, president of the parish tuberculosis association, has devoted his entire time to for the past two years. The two brick buildings (one for white and one for negro patients), are located on the hilltops, overlooking the bend in the river. A lovelier spot could not have been chosen, with its hills and hollows near the junction of the Ouachita and the D'Arbonne.

The irregular topography of the location and the many kinds of soils have resulted in a variety of wild flowers and shrubs seldom to be found in one locality. Spring brings bluets, spring beauties, wild verbena, sweet williams, blue-eyed grass, dandelions, penstemon, and spiderwort into blossom. Right now the hillsides are beds of mayapples and bird-foot violets and in the valleys are trees of snowy mayhaw, hawthorne and drifts of dogwood. Trailing vines of yellow jasmine are to be seen, and wild azalea buds are almost ready to burst into blossom. In summer, clematis, Indian pink, butterfly pea, wood sorrel, vervain are abundant, and one orchid has been found.

The fall is bright with cone flowers, black-eyed Susan, goldenrod, the purple fruit of the Spanish mulberry. Even winter is gay with the red berries on haw and holly trees and the coral beans of the mamou. These are a few plants and flowers that have been remembered.

Mr. Cooley plans to preserve the plant-growth as it is, with very little formality of arrangement. He realizes the pleasure that the cycle of wild growth through the year will bring to the patients whose days will seem long without interest in beauty of environment.

The destruction and mutilation of wild flowers at Pine Top by vandals has grown to such an alarming degree that immediate steps will have to be taken to safeguard the beauty of this remote spot.

Miss Julia Wossman, philanthropist, educator and civic spirited citizen, expresses herself most forcibly on the subject of vandalism and the preservation of wild flowers not only at Pine Top but in the surrounding countryside now in full springtime glory. She said:

"There has been vandalism by people taking away the plants for their own gardens. It is difficult to understand how one who is interested in beautifying one's own surroundings would want to deprive those who are temporarily banished from their own homes by illness of even one object which would add to their pleasure. This is being done, however, to such an extent that signs have been prepared asking that the plants shall not be removed. Will not the public assist in the preservation of the wild growth?"

Mrs. Smith Honored By Business Women

Thursday's luncheon at the Business and Professional Women's club house was gay and festive with Mrs. George Wesley Smith, the president, the guest of honor on the anniversary of her birthday.

The courtesies, including a beautiful gift and the presentation of a handsome birthday cake, came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Smith. Quite equal to the occasion, she expressed deep appreciation in a brief talk delivered extemporaneously.

A delicious three-course luncheon featuring several special dishes, was enjoyed by Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Laura Slator, Mrs. Jennie Thornton, Mrs. Lillian Jackson, Mrs. G. B. Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

TESTS show that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath—and that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleaning methods, which merely polish exposed surfaces, fail to remove decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between teeth. And these deposits, tests prove, are the source of most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifies and washes away odor-breeding food and acid deposits.

At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently, yet thoroughly, cleans and brightens enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile.

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate Dental Cream at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth and a sweeter, purer breath. Why not get a tube today!

Social Activities In Monroe Reach High Peak; Bridal Theme Predominant

Miss Liner Honored During Coffee Hour

Mrs. Keenan Gives Luncheon For Visitors From Shreveport; Guests From Minden Feted

Social activities are now at a high peak with interesting visitors in the city being feted daily and approaching weddings keeping the bridal theme predominant.

One of the principals in a prominent April wedding is Miss Melba Liner whose engagement days are overflowing with gracious pre-nuptial affairs. Outstanding among the events of last week was the morning coffee hour in the B. D. Hodges home in Fairview with Mrs. Vernon Maish and Mrs. Virginia Hammond the hostesses.

Miss Liner selected, to wear at this time, one of her loveliest trousseau frocks, a dusty pink crepe model with corsage of pink camellias, a gift from her hostesses. Pink camellias were also worn by the hostesses and Mrs. J. C. Liner, who assisted in the courtesies.

Guests were greeted in the dining room by Mrs. T. G. Easterling and Mrs. Joseph Renwick, who presided over the silver coffee urns gracing either end of the refreshment table. A flaring basket overflowing with pink carnations and weigela with misty pink tulle adorning the handle, formed the floral note for the lace-covered table. The pink and green theme was sustained in the beautifully embossed petit fours, the open-faced sandwiches, the chaud-froids and the many delicacies passed among the guests on silver platters by Miss Ruth Easterling, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. Ben Downing, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. Henry Guerriero and Mrs. B. D. Hodges.

Mrs. J. L. Keenan's luncheon on Thursday complimentary to an attractive coterie of young ladies from Shreveport—Misses Dorothy Nell, Allene and Barbara Quigles—was one of the most distinctive events of the week.

Aperitifs and hors d'oeuvres were served the guests upon arrival in Mrs. Keenan's suite, which is beautifully furnished and abounding in countless objects d'art and treasures she has picked up here and there.

Luncheon was served in the Cameo room, buffet fashion, from a long table bathed in candlelight and fragrant with rainbow colored blossoms overflowing from an antique epergne. Nobody poured at this luncheon; lace-covered buffets were set and guests foraged among the delectable viands—baked hams encircled with crystalized pineapple and other fruits, molded salads and relishes, sweets and ices passed by attendants.

It was all very lovely, very charming and delightfully informal.

* * *

The lush, fresh beauty of spring flowers was seen to splendid advantage on the luncheon table in the main dining room of the Frances hotel when Mrs. Maurice Frazier presided with customary graciousness, complimentary to Mrs. John Lathram's house guests, Mmes. Benton and Goodwill of Minden, on Thursday at one o'clock.

Enjoying the delicious food, the conversation and the numerous courtesies extended by the hostess were, in addition to the guests of honor: Mrs. John Frazier and daughter, Miss Lydia Frazier of Ellwood, Ind., Mrs. C. B. White and Mrs. John Lathram.

Mrs. B. Beasley's compliment to Mrs. Lathram's guests was a boating party aboard the Brown Kraft Wednesday night. Informality was the keynote, with chairs grouped in the comfortable glassed-in cabin where supper was served to Mrs. Benton, Mrs. Goodwill, Mr. and Mrs. John Lathram, Mr. and Mrs. Carrick B. White, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. Gene McRoberts, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Simpson and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Frazier.

Review Club Meets With Mrs. E. P Cudd

The program for the afternoon was led by Mrs. C. B. Braun, who cleverly gave Virginia Woolf's "Flush." "Flush" is a biography written in fine prose, of Elizabeth Barrett's day, giving one a "dog's eye" view of the Brownings. The book was really a work of an artist, the most delightful volume in many years.

Mrs. Woolf gleaned from Elizabeth Barrett Browing's own letters and other writings all the facts about her dog "Flush," and has clothed with real life the dry bone of an anecdote. Through this story one learns customs, conditions, both material and physical, and life in general of this period.

The parliamentary law study for the afternoon was given by Mrs. Givens, who gave a clever interpretation of minutes.

Those present and enjoying these lectures were Mrs. C. B. Braun, Ben Breard, Henry Colbert, E. P. Cudd, A. R. Holloway, B. W. Leigh, Reese Major, C. V. McGimsey, Chester Nenny, DeWitt Henry, D. Crawford Young, Allen Givens, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Strahan, Spinks and Roy Hale.

UNIQUELY DRAPED

The severeness of the sheath gown has been overcome by Jean Patou through introduction of a full panel in the center front of this glamorous creation. Shirring radiates from the panel at the hipline and the front fullness drapes from it. The material used is a soft silk faille with green, red, yellow and pink floral design on white.

Study Club Names Officers

Miss Carrie D. Drew was hostess to the Study club last week at the home of Mrs. James Drew. The living room was decorated with bridal wreath and azaleas.

Mrs. Eugene Flournoy gave a splendid review of "Audubon" by Constance Rourke. Mrs. Flournoy told very interestingly of the mystery of Audubon's parentage and his childhood in France. She stated that in early manhood, Audubon formulated the plan of portraying American birds in their natural surroundings. To this end he studied the birds along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and during his sojourn in Louisiana.

The wedding of Miss Effie Mae Dranguet, the lovely daughter of Mrs. L. A. Dranguet, to Mr. Burwood Nichols, son of Mrs. C. B. Wesley, was quietly solemnized Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the rectory of St. Joseph's Catholic church, with the Rev. Father Weinzapel officiating.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of only close friends and relatives, and afterward an informal reception was held at the Dranguet home.

The bride was attired in a lovely spring suit of light wool in a coral shade, worn with a lace blouse of the same color. Her hat was of dubonnet felt and other accessories were of gray. She wore a corsage of lavender iris and purple pansies flecked with yellow. As something old she carried an exquisite handkerchief also carried by her aunt, Mrs. Livingston Prudhomme of Natchitoches, at her wedding. She had no attendants.

Mrs. Nichols has been with the state department of public welfare. Mr. Nichols attended Louisiana State university, and is now with the Consumers Power company of Grand Rapids, Mich., where he is a member of the distribution department.

Mrs. George Hawks Delivers Interesting Address Before Local Garden Club

Resident Of Vermont Gives Planting Ideas

Desirability Of Maintaining Continuity Of Blooms Stressed By Former Miss Breard

A most interesting address was made at a meeting of the Garden club when Mrs. George Hawks of Bennington, Vt., spoke to the members on the care and planting of gardens.

Mrs. Hawks, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. G. M. Snellings, this winter, is affectionately remembered by her girlhood friends as Margaret Breard. Since her marriage she has resided in Bennington, where she has been prominently identified with the garden club activities of that city as well as the entire vicinity.

Mrs. Hawks has specialized extensively in the culture of gladioli, having a 12-acre tract of the gorgeous blossoms on her estate in Vermont. She has also specialized in tulips, narcissi, peonies and other bulbous plants.

Endowed with a keen zest for living and a rare sense of humor, Mrs. Hawks' discourse before the Garden club was highly interesting as well as instructive, and her interest and success in garden club projects have made her an authority on both landscaping and the care and planting of gardens.

She likened the garden to an outdoor living room. "The trees and shrubs create the walls of the living room," she continued, "the vines the drapes and the grass the carpet."

Mrs. Hawks stressed the desirability of maintaining a continuity of bloom in the garden, so that at all times the gardener will have a sequence of blossoms during the blooming season. She suggested a mass planting of narcissi at the back of the garden, so that at the close of their blooming season their somewhat bedraggled foliage will be obscured by blooming iris or other flora.

Some authorities on gardening recommend the plaiting of the leaves of the narcissi and pinning them to the earth with wooden pins, thus concealing them until their foliage has entirely dried.

Mrs. Hawks concluded her remarks by stating that every gardener should have a nook or retreat in her garden where she could enjoy solitude away from the eyes of the public, and at the same time enjoy the beauty of her garden, perhaps planning even greater triumphs in the coloring and arrangement of her plants.

American Composers Crowding Out Jazz

Through the medium of international exchange broadcasts, outstanding works of American composers are slowly but surely crowding jazz out of the consciousness of concert-going Europeans as the typical American music, Mrs. Helen Harrison Mills of Peoria, Ill., chairman of international music relations for the National Federation of Music clubs, reported to the board of directors this week.

Making that statement in connection with the announcement of an international exchange broadcast program with Denmark, Mrs. Mills announced that the works of 40 American musicians are to be heard in the capitals of Europe and South America during the season of 1936-1937.

Highlights of the international music relations program include an educational campaign to promote better understanding of American music in Czechoslovakia, which is being fostered by the federation; a chamber music concert in Yugoslavia, sponsored by the Society of Friends of Great Britain and America, and the finale of the series of American concerts which were begun last season under the direction of the American Institute of Rumania. This took place in Bucharest in March under court patronage and was attended by the Dowager Queen Marie and other members of the court. Works heard included Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass," Mason's "Chanticleer Festival Overture," Griffes' "White Peacock," Janssen's "New Year's Eve in New York," with Strube's violin concerto.

An American festival of symphonic works is also to be held in Brussels in April under the direction of the society of new concerts of Brussels.

The educational campaign in Czechoslovakia has been furthered by two series of concerts, consisting of six programs each, in both of which symphonic and chamber music were used. One of these series went by radio to all parts of the country.

The chamber music concert in Yugoslavia took place at the Kolarac Popular university in Belgrade. Choruses by United States composers were learned for a concert given by widely known choral society of mixed voices, which took part in the annual Anglo-American day observance in Yugoslavia.

A feature of the afternoon was the presentation of beautiful gifts of a miscellaneous nature to Mrs. Kirby, by Ann Elizabeth Young and Bobby Phifer. The wedding march was played by a talented little musician, Marie Houston Moore, sister of the honor guest.

CLEOPATRA, they say, was the first to recognize the beautifying properties of milk though it took another famous beauty—Helena Rubenstein—to publicize the idea. It's not a lot of hooey, however, even if actresses are often accused of sponsoring useless things; scientists have proven that milk oils have a natural affinity for the skin tissue. They are of the same type of glandular origin as our own skin oils. All this to tell you of a new milk bath preparation for cleansing and softening the skin—a preparation with milk as its base. It is a rich cream yet melts the minute it touches water and penetrates the delicate tissues. Try it. "... that was on April 4, 1925"

12 YEARS OLD TODAY! . . .

BIRTHDAYS are a good time to take stock of one's self. That goes for printing establishments as well as for men. Let's pause for a moment and see how far we have come. . . . Twelve years may not be so many years in the printing business, and we don't claim the honor of being Monroe's oldest establishment, but, we have consistently served at one time or another most every business concern in Monroe.

We have learned through the past 12 years to properly appreciate the value of consistent advertising and the importance of good printing, also, the necessity of getting the most in return for every dollar spent for advertising and printing. The quality of advertising and printing is reaching new heights, and as a result only advertising of outstanding merit can hope to impress itself upon the prospect's mind with sufficient force to stimulate action and get results.

This period of greater appreciation and discrimination in matters of advertising and printing has found us well prepared. Long ago, we saw the coming demand for the best and have qualified ourselves in every way to supply only the best. The highest quality printing is less expensive in the end because it will be read, and advertising matter must be read to get results.

There was a time, and not so very long ago either, when the average buyer of printing was not discriminative or choosy. If the matter could be read or the paper written upon, the work was acceptable. Price was always the paramount consideration with this class of buyer. But times have changed.

Today, even the man in the street and lady in the home are keenly alive to the difference between the good and the not so good in printing as in everything else, and they are influenced as much by the quality of a piece of advertising literature as by the selling talk it carries. Advertisers and others of discriminating tastes have learned that our printing creates the kind of impression on the prospect that helps them sell their goods.

If you are satisfied with cheap, sloppy printing, we cannot give it to you—not at any price. We have a reputation to sustain, a reputation built up by over twelve years of unceasing effort to be just a little in advance of all other printers in this community in the production of quality work. We keep modern by always being among the first—if not the very first—to put into our shop the best.

We desire the confidence, as well as the patronage of the buyers of printing in this community, and shall endeavor to secure both by strict adherence to ethical business principles. We do not "shoot low" on one order and high on the next one, or charge one price to one person and another price to someone else, with the hope that the general average may prove satisfactory.

We firmly believe that in the celebration of our 12 birthdays we have contributed to the growth and development of the city of Monroe and Ouachita Parish. We are proud of our accomplishments and thank our many friends and customers for their interest shown in our behalf.

'Lloyds Of London' Closes Engagement At Paramount

Get your howloscope read at the Paramount Monday and Tuesday. Joe E. Brown turns astrologer in "When's Your Birthday," with Marian Marsh, Fred Keating and Edgar Kennedy.

The story of the birth and growth of the greatest insurance house in the world is the theme of "Lloyds of London," starring Freddie Bartholomew and Madeleine Carroll. Featured is the coming star of the year, Tyrone Power, son of a famous actor. Power brings to the screen a fresh personality that is expected to bring a new star to the pictures. In the strong supporting cast are Sir Guy Standing, C. Aubry Smith, Virginia Field and Douglas Scott. At the Paramount today.

Spectacular Film Boasts Stellar Cast

Freddie Bartholomew, Madeleine Carroll And Tyrone Power In Picture

AGAINST the turbulent canvas of adventure and intrigue which forms the pulse-stirring background of "Lloyds of London," the picture that has startled two continents and which plays today at the Paramount theater, there stands out one of the great love stories of all time, when fierce courage and vengeful fury fought to the death for a love that flamed while the fate of an empire hung in the balance.

Packed with the thrill of forbidden kisses that changed the destiny of a whole empire, as the fateful lovers forgot everything but that they were man and woman in each other's arms, the new Twentieth Century-Fox triumph tells the story of human passions that were inextricably woven with the course of history.

When Freddie Bartholomew, as young Jonathan Blake, and Douglas Scott, as the youthful Horatio Nelson, discover a plot to scuttle a ship and collect the insurance from Lloyds, the boyhood friends determine to warn "Mr. Lloyd" of the plot. At the last moment, Horatio's uncle takes him off to sea, and Freddie sets out alone on the hundred-mile walk to London.

The young lad's courage so impresses Sir Guy Standing, head of the syndicate, that he rewards the boy by taking him into the business, where every year Jonathan grows in stature and reputation.

During the years that follow, Jonathan often hears the great bell of Lloyds toll its message to the ears of listening Britons—twice for good news, once for disaster. Thus rings out the news of the French revolution, of the heroic struggle between England and France for supremacy of the seas, and of the swift rise of Napoleon.

Through these eventful years, Jonathan Blake, now played by Tyrone Power, has grown along with Lloyds. A secret mission to France brings a meeting with Madeleine Carroll, a stormy sea-swept voyage back to England, during which they discover their love for each other, and a crushing blow for Jonathan's new-found hopes when he learns that she is already married to Lord Stacy, his avowed enemy.

In the midst of world turmoil and personal torment, Jonathan, now famous in Lloyds, struggles to maintain equilibrium and fight his way through to happiness for himself, honor and glory for his firm, and supremacy for England. To protect Admiral Nelson and keep the integrity of his fleet, and ultimately to save the British empire, he risks everything—his position, the woman he loves, even making himself liable to charges of treason.

"Lloyds of London" stands out as one of the greatest triumphs of Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief. Directed by Henry King, with Kenneth Macgowan as associate producer, the screen play of "Lloyds of London" was adapted by Ernest Pascal and Walter Ferris from an original story by Curtis Kenyon.

'Plainsman' Is Feature At Capitol

Gary Cooper And Jean Arthur Head Cast Of Spectacular Picture

THE TENDER LOVE which existed between two of the hardest characters of the old west, "Wild Bill" Hickok, two-fisted, hard-shooting exponent of law-and-order as the newly opened territory knew it, and "Calamity Jane," a beauty who packed a pair of six-guns and drove a six-horse stagecoach over what then passed for roads, is the basis of Cecil B. DeMille's latest screen masterpiece, "The Plainsman," which begins today at the Capitol theater.

History relates how Hickok, played by Gary Cooper, was retained by the government to investigate gun-running in the west because he was among the most-feared of the bold and toughened characters of a region known for its hard and brave men, when that region was first opened for immigration, around 1870.

It also relates that Hickok never wounded an adversary. It was always a sure hit, and with this reputation as his letter of introduction, the handsome soldier-of-fortune went into the far west to find out who was selling rifles to the Indians in express violation of a government order.

On the way he meets the beautiful "Calamity Jane," so named by a troop of soldiers who found her as a child in the wilderness beside the bodies of her dead parents—killed by Indians. They never knew her real name and she was, indeed a child of calamity. The handsome Hickok loves the beautiful "Calamity Jane," but never lets her know it, mostly because he resents her familiarity with other men. But she loves him and never has any compunction about showing it.

Hickok discovers who is responsible for the gun-running after General George A. Custer and his whole cavalry regiment are wiped out by the Indians at Little Big Horn. But the discovery costs him dear. One of his prisoners, the notorious Jack McCall, portrayed in the motion picture by Porter Hall, whom he herds into the Deadwood saloon, operated by "Calamity Jane," brings tragedy in a breathless climax.

The DeMille film begins around 1865 when the Civil war ended and the trek west was begun, and ends shortly after the Custer massacre. It is broadly conceived in the traditional DeMille manner. A thousand Indians from the Tongue River reservation were used in the filming, as well as several troops of federal and state cavalry, to give "sweep" to the background.

Let's Do Some Figuring for Ourselves!

Stare the facts boldly in the face .... The ITINERANT PEDDLER can NOT compete with the merchant ... to YOUR advantage. He hasn't the buying power ... he hasn't the financial rating and credit standing ... he hasn't the space to carry merchandise ... he hasn't one thing to offer you that will justify you deserting the local store. The peddler can NOT give you credit ... he does NOT belong to any organization which will protect YOU ... his prices are higher ... he disturbs the quiet of your home ... he is dangerous to the safety of your household and can give you not ONE good reason as to why he should secure your business, whereas your local merchant can give you many MANY reasons why you should trade with him.

Today's Dollars Buy Tomorrow's Satisfaction

The dollars you spend today should buy safety and satisfaction for the tomorrows that are ahead. Every purchase you make should be regarded as an investment. Don't cast your dollars carelessly upon the waters of smooth talk. You worked for those dollars or some member of the family did so don't spend them in haste and repent at leisure. It is your RIGHT to get full value for every penny you spend and you WILL get it from your local merchant and NOT from the itinerant peddler.

"Made to Your Measure"

DOES IT KEEP THE SALESMAN'S PROMISES?

The beautiful patterns, the fine texture ... the striking coloring and weave of the fabric the salesman showed you ... were they in the suit you received? Was the fit perfect and if it wasn't (which was probably the case) what could YOU do about it?

BETTER BE SAFE THAN SORRY

You Get Better Quality---Lower Prices--- When You Buy From Your Local Merchant

Let's dig deep into this peddler business. Compare the prices he asks with those asked by your local storekeeper. Why give him (the peddler) the extortionate difference for inferior merchandise of off brand? You WON'T do it if you first pause and consider what you are doing.

It may seem to the reader at times, that we "are bearing down hard" on this peddler business, but the facts justify our earnestness. Too few housewives realize the importance of caution in trading with strangers. All the advice we have given on previous pages should be carefully read and carefully FOLLOWED.

BE CAREFUL OF STRANGERS

DON'T admit strangers to your home. They may be surveying your premises as the forerunner of a burglary.

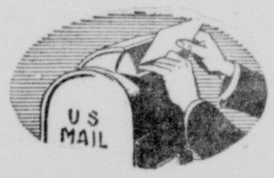

DON'T sign any contracts which a stranger offers. This is the way some shrewd forgers have secured signatures.

DON'T hire servants until you have assured yourself through investigation that they are honest and bear good records.

DON'T cash checks for strangers. You have no way of knowing their worth or worthlessness.

DON'T open your door wide to strangers. Place your foot behind it when it is partly opened. Daylight burglars have forced an entrance many times.

DON'T give strangers any information about yourself or about your neighbors.

DID YOU EVER TAKE A COURSE BY MAIL?

Figures, from a reliable statistical bureau, prove that about ten per cent of the people who take correspondence courses, ever complete them. It's too easy to "cut class" when you are not controlled by the discipline of the school room. Enroll with a school in your city and get something for the money you spend.

YOUR GROCER IS YOUR FRIEND

Your grocer wants to hold your good will ... It is one of his assets. If he holds YOU he will hold your friends. And he justifies this good will with a service that the so-called "grocery on wheels" can not hope to give you. Remember, YOUR GROCER IS YOUR FRIEND.

'BETTER HOUSING' AID JOINT DUTY OF FHA, INDUSTRY

Administrator Says People Must Be Given Chance To Own Homes

WASHINGTON.—The federal housing administration, industry, and the private financial interests of the country have a joint responsibility in continually offering "better housing" to those who want it, Federal Housing Administrator Stewart McDonald said in a recent statement.

Two years ago the housing administration was mapping a new course over an unknown sea, Mr. McDonald said. Encouragement and interest from the individual home owner, the prospective buyer, manufacturers and dealers in building supplies, architects, builders, real estate operators, bankers, savings and loan associations, and other lenders throughout the country has resulted in well over a million families living in better homes under healthier, happier conditions.

Permits Increase

Mr. McDonald pointed out that the volume of new residential building permits for last July was the greatest of any July since 1929 and represented an increase of 725 per cent over July 1934, two years after the signing of the act by the president. He added that there is still a greater group of people holding a vast potential buying power who are anxious to obtain the benefits of the program.

"They have a certain, if moderate, economic independence," Mr. McDonald said. "They have pride, courage and industry. All they ask is recreation, freedom from household drudgery, health, and comfort. These returns may be achieved through home ownership. The insured mortgage of the federal housing administration shows these people a safe way to that goal.

Valuation Important

"For the individual, the greatest appeal of this system is not only the strict regulation of interest rates and other charges but the fair and unbiased valuation system. This is the best protection to the individual in the most important transaction of his entire life and the strongest safeguard to the financial institution as well as its depositors.

"Thousands of well-constructed homes are being built or purchased with the safeguards of the insured mortgage system," Mr. McDonald continued. In many cases the down payments are less than $500 and the monthly payments less than $20.

"The federal housing administration stands shoulder to shoulder with every honest builder and mortgage lender to assist people of moderate means to obtain homes that are properly built and properly financed," Mr. McDonald concluded.

The program is dedicated to home ownership; to fair values and better built homes, to be paid for through a safe, long-term method as simple and as easily as paying rent.

PLAN GARAGE

In planning the new home it is advisable to include a garage or to make provision for one to be added in the future. The federal housing administration insures mortgages up to 80 per cent of the appraised value of the dwelling property.

For Warm Climates

Following no particular architectural period, this house derives its chief charm from painted brick walls and low roof. The plan is adapted to a climate where one must seek shelter from the sun's rays. The dark coolness of the living room is welcome here, but would hardly be suitable in a northern setting where for many months of the year direct sunshine is desired in all rooms at least part of the day. The kitchen is a little larger than most modern houses of this size require. The bedrooms are of adequate size and the inclusion of the garage in the body of the house follows the modern trend. The house, located in Tulsa, Okla., cost $3,300 and the lot an additional $950. The Federal Housing Administration has insured a mortgage for $3,000 on the property.

Store Window Displays May Attract Trade

In modernizing grocery stores it has been found that windows with high backgrounds do not promote favorable displays. It is far more satisfactory if the prospective customer is able to see beyond the merchandise display in the window and into the interior of a well-arranged store.

A window completely shut off from the store usually has a detached look and lacks atmosphere. There should be a low background, the top of which is not more than 44 inches from the store floor.

This is one of the ways in which stores may be modernized to contribute to the convenience to customers and employes, to provide satisfactory merchandise display, and to increase profit possibilities through credit advanced by private financial institutions insured by the federal housing administration.

COMBINED PORCH AND TERRACE PLEASE ALL

Porches offer pleasure and convenience to home owners, and space for them may be arranged so that a roof covers half the area, thus affording shade and comfort and relief from the sun's glare as well as from showers.

The remaining space may extend into a terrace and be exposed at all times. Thus enthusiastic sun lovers are pleased as are those who have more conservative tastes regarding the elements.

Builder Has Choice Of Numerous Types And Styles Of Roofing

Roof coverings vary about as much as any other item of building. The main types are the paper, impregnated, slate-covered shingles in strips or in single units; wood shingles, composition shingles, cement tiles, terra-cotta tiles, metal shingles, sheet metal, and slate.

Old roofs may be renewed or replaced with funds procured from private sources under the modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

In building a new house, the type of covering is selected and the roof structure built accordingly. Most roofs require a deck or sheathing to which to fasten the covering, but in some areas, particularly near the sea, wood shingles should be placed over shingle lath, as the underside of the shingles must be allowed to "breathe" on account of the excessive dampness in the air; otherwise they will rot. With all types of covering, except the paper and wood shingles, heavy roofing felt should be placed over the decking before the covering is put on.

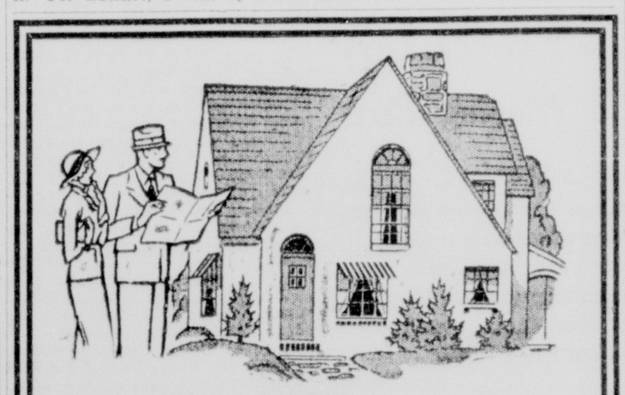

Of course, there is a great difference in weight among some of these materials, and the roof frame must be figured to carry the load placed upon it. For instance, 2 inch by 6 inch rafters may be all right for wood shingles on a certain house, while 2 inch by 8 inch rafters or even 2 inch by 10 inch rafters might be needed for tile or slate.

In renewing an old roof, this matter of weight must have careful study. If the old roof is of wood shingles, it may be possible to cover it without removing the shingles, but to do this the frame must be checked to make sure it can carry the additional weight safely. If a heavy slate roof is wanted, the frame will undoubtedly have to be considerably reinforced.

NEW PAINT CAN BE WASHED WITH SOAP

A semi-gloss finish paint which is practically soil proof is on the market. It can be scoured with soap powder, and even pencil marks and match scratches are readily eradicated. Manufactured in a variety of colors, if can be applied to walls, ceilings, woodwork, or metal.

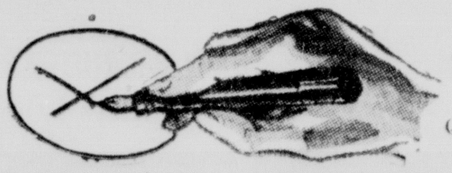

Durable paint of this kind may find many uses in homes built under the terms of the federal housing administration.

MORTGAGES SHOW STRONG UPTURN

Credited With Share In Volume Of Increase Of Reserve Banks

Home mortgages insured by the federal housing administration have apparently figured largely in the advance during the last two years in the volume of real estate loans held in portfolios of member banks of the Federal Reserve system.

Since the beginning of 1935 the federal housing administration insured home mortgages, a new type of Federal Reserve collateral, have been gaining in popularity because of their safety through federal housing administration insurance, their long terms (averaging 17 years against 3 to 5 years of old-style mortgages), and their ready and nation-wide marketabilit".

Reports of condition of all member banks of the Federal Reserve system for December 31, 1936, show a gain of $121,000,000 in real estate loans over December 31, 1935, and a gain of $155,000,000 over March 4, 1935, when such loans reached their low point in the portfolios.

The federal housing administration reported $402,827,118 premium-paying mortgages on December 31, 1936, practically all of which were insured after March 4, 1935. As national banks financed around 32 per cent of this amount and state banks more than 30 per cent, or a combined total of between two hundred million and two hundred and fifty million dollars, it appears likely that the increase of $121,000,000 of real estate loans in portfolios of members of the Federal Reserve system has been very largely due to their participation in the mutual mortgage insurance system of the federal housing administration.

Manufacturers Of Boilers Turn To Modernism

With the universal desire to use basement space for recreation purposes, boiler manufacturers have given special thought to the construction and appearance of boilers.

The modern boiler with its colorful jacket of steel is handsome and attractive, particularly the de luxe models in which everything, including the dampers, controls, oil burner and gages, are concealed or recessed within the jacket. Underneath the jacket is a thick covering of insulation which provides further assurance that all the heat of combustion will be transferred to the water.

The modern home constructed and purchased under the insured mortgage system of the federal housing administratio ncontains adequate and efficient heating equipment.

CONCEALED LIGHTING IN SHELVES FOR ALCOVE

When a home is to be built with a combined living-dining room, an alcove at one end may be divided from the rest of the room by pillars. It is not necessary to utilize valuable window space for the alcove. Built-in shelves across one wall, with concealed lighting, give effective and adequate illumination. The federal housing administration insures mortgages for the construction or purchase of new homes.

TWO OFFICES GET 10,000TH REQUEST

Southern California And New Jersey Set Records For Applications

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Two insurance offices of the federal housing administration have reported receiving their ten thousandth application under the insured mortgage system.

September 11 the district office for southern California at Los Angeles reported receipt of its ten thousandth application, bringing the total to approximately $41,000,000 of potential business. Previously, as of August 31, the New Jersey office reported 10,154 applications totaling just over $50,000,000, indicating a larger average mortgage for New Jersey than for the Los Angeles area.

As the month turned, the district office for northern California at San Francisco was rapidly approaching the 10,000 mark for applications with a total of 9,170, totaling $39,056,000. As of the same date, August 31, the Los Angeles offices had a total of 9,635 applications totaling $39,580,000.

Of the applications acted on as of August 31, the New Jersey office had accepted for insurance $35,200,000 and the Los Angeles office $30,500,000.

'Greater Louisiana College Campaign' Makes Excellent Progress

PINEVILLE, La., April 3.—(Special)—The campaign for a greater Louisiana college made excellent progress over the state during this week.

The called session of the Louisiana Baptist convention at Winnfield was one of the most spirited meetings ever held by that organization, which unanimously endorsed the recommendations of the executive committee for $150,000 to be used to pay debts and make necessary improvements at the college.

The student body of the college returned from a four-day vacation with more than $4,000 as their memorial to this cause. Previously they had set a goal of $3,000 for this campaign. The faculty of the institution has contributed $4,974 to the campaign.

The Woman's Missionary union, auxiliary of the Louisiana Baptist convention, in its annual meeting at Winnfield, accepted as its quota $50,000 for the "Greater Louisiana College Campaign." This is accepted as big news by leaders of the movement because this organization has never in recent years failed to reach its goal in any movement.

Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president of Louisiana college, stated Saturday that he has no doubt but that the people of Louisiana will more than reach the goal set by the convention and do a service for the college that will cause it to go forward as it has not done in recent times.

Sunday, April 4, has been set as the date for the campaign in the Baptist churches of the state. At that time they will initiate the movement for a greater Louisiana college by making their pledges which will be payable during the months of April, May, and June.

SMALL PORTION OF TAXES UNPAID

Registered Notices To Be Sent Soon To Delinquent Taxpayers

While the collection of parish taxes for 1936 is being made at a rapid rate this year, about 15 per cent of the taxes due have not been paid, it was learned yesterday at the sheriff's office, where collections are being made. Registered notices of taxes due will be sent to persons failing to make payments within the next 10 days.

To date collections have amounted to over half a million dollars, $689,850.48 having been taken in since December. This represents 85 per cent of the taxes due in Ouachita parish.

Within 20 days after the registered notices have been sent to the taxpayers, property on which taxes are due will be advertised for sale by the sheriff's department, it was said. Delinquent tax sales will probably be advertised about May 10.

A penalty of 10 per cent per annum is to be assessed on all taxes that had not been paid before March 15.

There are still several homes adjudicated to the state for non-payment of taxes that have not been redeemed for the years 1934 and 1935, it was reported.

There will be no postponement of tax payments during the summer months as has been the custom in previous years.

PAY DATES ANNOUNCED BY WELFARE DIVISION

L. G. Hughes, director of public welfare for Ouachita parish, announced Saturday that he has been informed by the office of John H. Pollock of New Orleans, director of finance of the Louisiana department of public welfare, that beginning April 1 pay dates covering monthly grants to recipients of public assistance will be changed in all parishes. The pay date in Ouachita parish has been changed from the 8th to the 11th.

In April, the current month, however, instead of making payments on the new pay date, checks will be mailed out on April 9. Thereafter the checks will be mailed out on the 10th of each month.

A DIME STORE FOR HER THOUGHTS

Whatever Eleanor Young may be thinking of these days it's a pretty safe bet the thoughts of the New York and Newport debutante aren't very far from young Woolworth Donohue, who glances pleasantly from the inset photograph. Miss Young is reported to have captivated the grandson of the Woolworth chain store fortune founder. In Palm Beach, where these pictures were taken, the couple were seen much together.

TREACHERY

WITH TARZAN'S ASSENT, FLINT AND GORREY FLED TO THE SECRET TUNNEL THEY HAD PREPARED FOR SUCH AN EMERGENCY.

THE ATTACKERS HALTED IN CONFUSION. THEN THEY BOWED, ANXIOUS TO WIN FAVOR WITH THEIR NEW LORD.

FROM THE BALCONY TARZAN LOOKED DOWN ON HIS CONQUERING HORDE AND SHOUTED: "THE TYRANT HAS FLED. VICTORY IS OURS!" "SLAUGHTER THE TRAITORS!" THE PEOPLE CRIED: BUT TARZAN COMMANDED MERCY FOR FLINT'S MISGUIDED PUPPETS.

WITH FIRM HAND, HE RESTORED PEACE; THEN HE DISPATCHED RUNNERS TO HIS JUNGLE CAMP, WHENCE....

....THE REFUGEE PRINCESS NAKONIA WAS BORNE BACK TO BE CROWNED QUEEN OF THE GOLDEN REALM.

WITH SPIRITED FESTIVITIES THE PEOPLE CELEBRATED THE END OF THE WAR AND THE RESTORATION OF FREEDOM.

BUT THAT WAR WAS A MERE SKIRMISH COMPARED TO THE CAMPAIGN THE TREACHEROUS FLINT WAS PLANNING NOW.

NEXT WEEK: FLINT'S RETURN

WHITE OUTCAST IN A MOOR'S HAREM

© 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

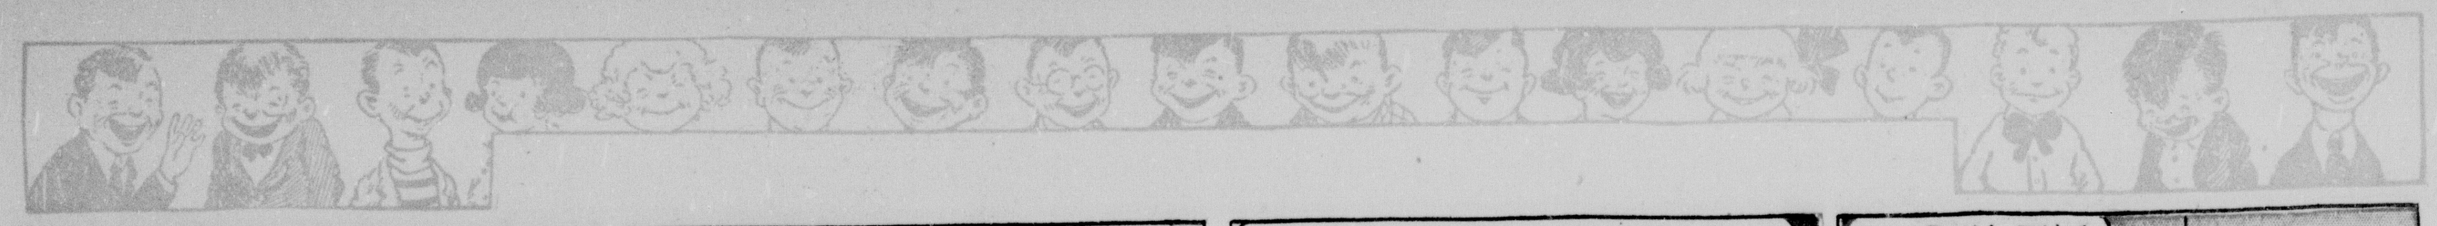

AHMED BEN MOHAMED, in 1656, was besieging the Portuguese fortress of Agadir in what is now French Morocco, and the garrison's formidable resistance irked the Moorish chieftain. The victorious attack cost Ahmed 2000 men. He raged, and in revenge ordered every Portuguese in Agadir slain. The governor, Monrai, and his family he held captive. He had fallen in love with Monrai's daughter, Donna Mencia, and offered to free her family if she would marry him.

The girl refused and Ahmed ordered her turned over to his soldiers. Donna Mencia succumbed, entered Ahmed's harem and her family was released. She became unpopular with the other wives. One day Ahmed found her dead, poisoned by the jealous concubines.
